GRUNDY FOR CURBING 'BACKWARD STATES' ON THE TARIFF BILL

PENNSYLVANIA KNOWS BEST

"Unfortunate," He Holds, That the Constitution Gives Equal Voice to States in Senate.

BATTLES INVESTIGATORS

He Assails Borah—Would "Hate to Tell" His Opinion of Wisconsin.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, told the Senate Lobby Committee today that certain "backward" States of the West, through their Senators, had been altogether "too vocal" in the consideration of the current tariff bill, and that some method should be found to "silence" them at times when legislation affecting the economic welfare of the United States is under way.

Mr. Grundy declared it "unfortunate" that the framers of the Constitution had seen fit to grant to the States equal rights and representation in the Senate, as the effect of the arrangement was to give sections slow in developing their resources an equal voice in legislation directly involving such great reservoirs of wealth and taxation as Pennsylvania.

Mr. Grundy was recalled today for cross-examination on testimony he gave before the lobby committee on Oct. 24. Last week Mr. Grundy and the Senate investigating committee got along very well, and that session was decorous and orderly in contrast with today, when the witness and his questioners appeared to be antagonistic from the outset.

Criticizes Senator Walsh.

At one stage Mr. Grundy sharply described a series of questions put by Senator Walsh of Montana as "impertinent." There were frequent references to the Vare case, to the party service which Mr. Grundy had performed in the collection of Republican campaign funds, and to the relations of the witness with public men and his activities here as a part of the tariff lobby.

At times the hearing resembled a hot political debate, in which the five members of the committee were arrayed against the witness. Mr. Grundy was once reproved by Senator Blaine of Wisconsin, a member of the committee, for alleged evasion, and Mr. Blaine exclaimed heatedly:

"Look me squarely in the eye and answer my question."

The hearing was marked by frequent spats between Mr. Grundy and Senators Borah, Caraway and Walsh, and in one interchange with the witnesses Mr. Borah denied emphatically a statement that he had opposed the debenture plan at the Kansas City convention.

Chairman Caraway repeatedly indicated that the witness was not frank with the committee and that, while it might be "smart" for him to "sidestep," eventually the investigators would get what they were after.

Hit at "Most Vocal" States.

Mr. Grundy was impelled to enter into a discussion of his belief that "backward Western States" should be silenced on the tariff by questions asked by Senator Walsh. The Senator read from a statement submitted to the committee a week ago, in which Mr. Grundy asserted that if "volume of voice" in the Senate were proportioned to population, productive power or the total contributed toward the national upkeep, some of those States "which are now most vocal would need amplifiers to make their whispers heard."

Mr. Grundy also had declared that "such States as Arizona, South Dakota, Idaho and Mississippi, &c., do not pay enough toward the upkeep of the government to cover the costs of collection." As a result of Mr. Walsh's examination, Mr. Grundy finally included Arkansas and Montana in his list of "backward" States, thus bringing in three of them having representation on the lobby committee.

"You have not mentioned Wisconsin in your list," suggested Senator Walsh. "What do you think about that State?"

"What I think about Wisconsin I'd hate to tell you," replied the witness. This evoked an outburst of laughter in the audience, in which the committee joined.

Favors a Few Concessions.

Mr. Grundy again caused laughter when he said that he would permit the "backward" States, through their Senators, to have their say on questions affecting "Junior Red Cross work and outdoor relief," but that, generally speaking, they should be required to "hold their peace" on

Von Opel, Rocket Flier, Weds Woman Pilot Who Advised Him

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—Fritz von Opel, the first to fly a rocket plane, and who intends to sail for New York the beginning of November to study and work at General Motors plants, was married on Saturday to Frau Selinik, née Loewenstein, the former wife of a Wiesbaden actor. For many months she has been von Opel's professional adviser on aviation and she herself is one of Germany's six woman pilots, flying her Handley Page plane with the greatest skill.

Frau von Opel, who is also a daring automobilist, is handsome, slender and blonde. When the airman landed safely from his rocket flight she was the first to congratulate him, shedding tears of joy. She will accompany him to the United States.

COALITION FIGHTING MOVE TO KILL TARIFF

Will Try to Force Through Bill, While Reed Favors Ending Session Nov. 15.

WATSON QUITTING CAPITAL

Departure for Florida Tomorrow for Health Leaves Jones as Republican Senate Leader.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Faced by Old Guard Republican willingness to leave the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill to its fate, the Democratic-Progressive coalition was today more determined than ever to drive the bill through the Senate and force the conservatives to accept it in a completely rewritten form.

Coalition strategy was centred upon fixing on the Old Guard leaders any responsibility for abandonment of the remodeled bill with the Simmons-Norris flexible amendment to the farm debenture plan. To those old-line Republicans who are now ready to desert the measure, the coalition applied the unflattering comparison of "rats and a sinking ship."

The administration Republicans refused to be stirred by such criticism. Senator Reed of Pennsylvania reiterated his conviction that the bill would never emerge from conference. Senator Moses announced that he would vote against the bill in the Senate, before it ever went to conference. The Republicans were so dismayed that they even seriously considered a motion to adjourn the Senate about the middle of November until the regular session starts on Dec. 2.

To add to their disorganization it was revealed that Senator Watson, Republican floor leader, would leave for Florida on Thursday to rebuild his shattered health.

McNary to Act as Aide.

Old Guard lieutenants hurriedly announced that Senator Jones of Washington, assistant leader, would take charge in Mr. Watson's absence, aided by Senator McNary of Oregon, who is popular with all Senate factions, has a fine record as a conciliator and more influence than most regular Republicans with the farming public.

When it was first announced that Senator Watson was going to Florida, reports spread that his illness was so serious that he might never return to the Senate as floor leader. His friends, however, denied this. They admitted that he was an ill man and needed a complete rest for a time, but asserted that he would return to assume his duties.

There was some assumption that Mr. McNary would be made temporary leader, because Senator Jones had not sufficiently recovered from the effects of a recent operation, but Mr. Jones assured Old Guard members that he felt capable of taking over the task.

While pessimistic, Senator Watson, who is dropping work by his physician's orders, would not admit that the outlook for passing the tariff bill by the end of the special session was absolutely hopeless. He did not share the view that the session might as well be adjourned, which Senator Reed may propose for about Nov. 15.

Instead, Mr. Watson will work until his departure to bring about "some sort of agreement for some sort of bill," basing this plea on the idea that the coalition must concede increases on industrial as well as agricultural rates.

Says Action Would Aid Business.

"It would have a quieting effect on business to pass the tariff bill," asserted Senator Watson. "Tariff bills are always the occasion of some unrest, though this bill has caused less agitation than usual because a Republican tariff is to be superimposed on a Republican tariff and everybody knows that if this bill fails the country would continue to be prosperous.

"It is true that there ought to be changes in agricultural rates to meet new conditions, but it is equally true

KAHN REFUSES POST IN SENATE CAMPAIGN; CALLS CHOICE UNWISE

He Writes to Moses to Withhold His Name for Treasurer Due to 'Divided Reception.'

WAS RELUCTANT, HE SAYS

HOLDS VIEWS CONFIRMED

Declares He Is a Wall St. Man but a Liberal in Politics—Friends See Him Put in False Light.

Otto H. Kahn in a letter to Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, made public yesterday, declined the post of treasurer of that committee because of the "divided reception" which the announcement of his designation as treasurer had met.

Announcement of the selection of Mr. Kahn was made by Senator Moses at the dinner given last Thursday evening at the University Club here by Jeremiah Milbank for Claudius H. Huston, the new chairman of the Republican National Committee. Publication of this announcement, together with the report that speakers at the dinner attacked the members of the Progressive Republican group in the Senate, brought protests from some of these Senators against the selection of Mr. Kahn.

Mr. Kahn in his letter to Senator Moses declared that, while a Wall Street man, he was a liberal in politics. He said some of the interpretations placed on his designation were erroneous, but added that the way it had been received justified his earlier feeling that he was not the right man for the position. No formal action for the appointment of a treasurer of the Senatorial committee has yet been taken, and Mr. Kahn requested Senator Moses not to present his name to the committee.

Mr. Kahn's Letter.

Mr. Kahn's letter follows:

Oct. 28, 1929.

My dear Senator:

When you did me the honor to ask me to act as treasurer of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee I told you that I feared your kindly sentiment toward me, springing from a long friendship, was swaying your judgment, that I felt sure that I was not the right man for the position, that, moreover, I was overwhelmed with demands upon my time and energies and that I hoped very much you would not persist in your request.

You argued to the contrary and, among other things, pointed to the fact that, while a Wall Street man, I was known to be, as indeed I am, a liberal in politics. You repeated your invitation when I had the pleasure of seeing you at Mr. Milbank's dinner last Thursday.

I thereupon stated that, though my views were unchanged, I felt that if we want effective party government, such as our political system requires, every citizen should be willing to make good his professions of party allegiance by submitting to being drafted, within the limits of reason and possibility, and that if the leaders of the party to which I belong demanded of me a service which did not conflict with my other duties and responsibilities I was not at liberty to refuse, however reluctant I was to accept.

You regarded this answer as tantamount to an acceptance in principle, as you were perfectly justified in doing, and at what was supposed and intended to be a strictly private dinner, you made informal reference to that acceptance.

Sees His Doubts Confirmed.

But the divided reception with which the report of the appointment of a separate treasurer for your committee and of my designation as such treasurer has met, however erroneous some of the interpretations placed thereon, appears to have confirmed the validity of the doubts which I ventured to express when you offered that position to me, and to justify me in concluding to abstain from occupying it.

I understand that no formal action has been taken as yet by the National Republican Senatorial committee concerning the appointment of a treasurer, and I am making free to write these lines to request that you will please refrain from bringing my name before the committee for appointment to the treasurership.

Believe me, dear Senator,

Very faithfully yours,

OTTO H. KAHN.

Hon. George H. Moses, The Senate, Washington, D. C.

Newark Man, 4 Feet 10, Says He Was Smallest in A. E. F.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP).—Nicholas Casale of Newark, N. J., wants to be known as the smallest man who went to France with the American Expeditionary Forces.

He has appealed to Representative Hartley of Kearny to establish that fact. Casale recently secured an affidavit from the Veterans' Bureau certifying that he was 4 feet 10 inches tall and weighed 106 pounds when he enlisted. The bureau has refused to declare him the "smallest man," saying it would require months for clerks to scan the record of every man who served with the A. E. F.

It was not explained how Casale secured enlistment when the minimum requirements are 5 feet and 110 pounds.

Pilot Lands Western Express Ship at Albuquerque After Being Forced Down.

Passengers Tell of Cold Night in Deserted Ranch House as Snow Swirled Round.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 29.—Lost for more than twenty-four hours while marooned on a bleak New Mexico mesa, Western Air Express tri-motored liner 113 escaped today from the snow-swept stretch where it was forced down Monday and landed here with its crew of three and two passengers, chilled but safe.

Caught in a blinding swirl of snow Monday at 10:15 A. M., the plane was forced down near Prechado, seventy-five miles southeast of Gallup, N. M. The crew and passengers found refuge in an abandoned ranch house.

The passengers are Dr. A. W. Ward of San Francisco and W. E. Merz of Mount Vernon, N. Y. The crew includes James E. Doles, chief pilot, of Los Angeles; Allan C. Barrie, co-pilot, of Burbank, Cal., and R. L. Britton, steward, of Los Angeles.

Employes of the airport and pilots of two planes waiting for the weather to clear to resume the search for the 113 stood amazed as the big craft glided along the runway. They rushed out to the plane and as the group of men who had been given up for dead stepped out they danced around them, clapped them on the back and hugged them in delight.

Wild Night of Intense Cold.

Despite their fatigue, Dr. Ward and Mr. Merz were lighthearted and stepped jauntily from the plane. They regretted only the loss of time but joined in praise of Pilot Doles for his skillful manoeuvring to save the ship in the storm when further progress could not be risked.

They told of a harrowing night which followed the forced landing, of tramping through snow to find shelter, of sleeping on an old bed spring covered with seat cushions from the plane and of shivering in intense cold while they took turns in keeping up a fire.

"A half frozen rabbit and a rabbit's foot brought us good luck," Dr. Ward said.

"The half-frozen rabbit had been captured in the bushes by co-pilot Barrie. The rabbit's foot was worn by steward Britten. He had bought it the day the T. A. T. plane City of San Francisco crashed."

Suddenly Enveloped by Storm.

"We left Holbrook, flying east," Doles said, "and were about one hour out when we had to dodge a storm. I nosed her down towards St. John's. Suddenly the storm seemed to break over us all at once, and a landing became a necessity.

Navy Paymaster Leads Way to $47,000 Loot, Dug Up by Night in Washington Chicken Yard

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Led by Lieutenant Charles Musil, a navy paymaster accused of embezzling $54,600, naval authorities, in a search late at night, recently uncovered $47,000 of the loot buried in a chicken yard in Southeast Washington on the grounds of the Home of the Aged and Infirm.

When Lieutenant Musil voluntarily surrendered himself, on Oct. 14, to the naval authorities at New York, after having disappeared on Sept. 28 from his post as paymaster for Destroyer Division 40 at Charleston, S. C., he is said to have turned over $1,500 to Captain C. T. Owens, commanding the receiving ship Seattle.

This leaves $6,100 unaccounted for and navy officers, in announcing today the discovery in the chicken yard, said they were trying to locate the rest of the money, although they had scant hope of success.

According to the story told to the officers by Lieutenant Musil, he came here directly from Charleston and buried the money in the yard of his former home. He then left for Chicago, where he bought some stock, and went to Detroit and into Canada. From there he proceeded to New York, where he became conscience-stricken and gave himself up.

He was held at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, but when he told his story of the buried money he was brought here to direct the search for it. He is now awaiting general court-martial on specifications covering embezzlement.

Lieutenant Musil was born in Illinois in 1893, enlisted in the navy twenty years ago and was commissioned in 1921. He has a wife and 9-year-old son in New York City.

HOPE SEEN IN MARGIN CUTS

Banks Reduce Requirements to 25 Per Cent—Sentiment in Wall St. More Cheerful.

Resources of the banking group which was organized last Thursday to stabilize conditions in the stock market were utilized yesterday to break the force of the terrific flood of selling which accompanied the biggest day, from the point of view of volume, ever experienced on the New York Stock Exchange.

Despite the drastic decline, sentiment in Wall Street last night was more cheerful than it has been on any day since the torrent of selling got under way. Periodic "lifting spells" which developed between intervals of extreme weakness were cited by bankers at the close of the market, as testifying to the presence of investment buying. The public is in some measure regaining its senses and the unreasoning fear which has prompted the sacrifice of securities for any price they would bring is at length subsiding.

While even the tremendous buying power of the banking group was unable to turn the tide of selling in yesterday's market, the group did not relax its concern over the situation on the Exchange. Two meetings were held during the day, one at noon and one at 4:30 P. M., the latter lasting until 6:30 P. M.

Will Continue Support.

After the evening meeting Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. spoke to reporters.

"I want to take occasion," Mr. Lamont said, "to explain again, as heretofore, that the banking group was organized to offer certain support in the market and to act as far as possible as somewhat of a stabilizing factor.

"It was not the intention of the group to attempt to maintain prices, but to maintain a free market; in other words, to correct the condition that prevailed last Thursday.

"The group has continued and will continue in a cooperative way to support the market and has not been a seller of stocks."

The statement was issued at the request of reporters to quiet rumors which had been abroad that the banking group had been selling stocks instead of supporting them.

These rumors were, of course, without foundation, for the group is known to have purchased heavily in directions where the force of its buying power would be most effective in stemming demoralization. It was reliably reported that in many instances when no bids could be obtained on the floor for large blocks of stock forced on the market the group had supplied the necessary bids and in other instances had acted as a stabilizing influence upon the list as a whole.

At the noon meeting of the group Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Company, director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and head of the Young committee on reparations which recently developed the Young plan, joined the

240 Issues Lose $15,894,818,894 in Month; Slump in Full Exchange List Vastly Larger

The drastic effects of Wall Street's October bear market is shown by valuation tables prepared last night by THE NEW YORK TIMES, which place the decline in the market value of 240 representative issues on the New York Stock Exchange at $15,894,818,894 during the period from Oct. 1 to yesterday's closing. Since there are 1,279 issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the total depreciation for the month is estimated at between two and three times the loss for the 240 issues covered by THE TIMES table.

Among the losses of the various groups comprising the 240 stocks in THE TIMES valuation table were the following:

Group.	Number of Stocks.	Decline in Value.
Railroads	25	$1,128,686,488
Public utilities	29	5,135,734,327
Motors	15	1,689,840,902
Oils	22	1,282,617,778
Coppers	15	824,403,820
Chemicals	9	1,621,897,897

The official figures of the New York Stock Exchange showed that the total market value of its listed securities on Oct. 1 was $87,073,630,423. The decline in the 240 representative issues therefore cut more than one-sixth from the total value of the listed securities. Most of this loss was inflicted by the wholesale liquidation of the last week.

U. S. STEEL TO PAY $1 EXTRA DIVIDEND

American Can Votes the Same and Raises Annual Rate From $3 to $4.

BIG GAIN IN STEEL INCOME

Earnings for Nine Months Are $15.82 a Share, Against $8.17 a Year Ago.

Two leading industrial companies yesterday declared extra dividends of $1 a share on the common stock, as a result of their earnings through the Summer months. The companies were the United States Steel Corporation and the American Can Company, whose interests touch every section of the country. Their action caused the Wall Street district to accept the extra dividends as final proof of the prosperity of the country, despite the breaks which have occurred in the stock market.

While the directors of neither of the companies referred to present conditions in the stock market as a reason for taking the extra dividend action at this time, the opinion was expressed that the directors chose this time to declare the extras as reflecting their belief in the fundamental soundness of industry.

Directors of the American Can Company, in addition to declaring the $1 extra disbursement, also increased the regular dividend rate on the common stock from $3 a year to $4 a year, committing themselves to this payment for the future.

The United States Steel directors contented themselves with announcing that earnings for the first nine months of this year were nearly double those of the same period for 1928, namely, $15.82 a share on the common stock outstanding, compared with $8.17 for the nine months of 1928.

Steel Surplus Up $22,909,447.

Earnings of the United States Steel Corporation for the three months ended on Sept. 30 were reported as $72,009,686, equivalent to $5.57 a share on the common stock outstanding, and the extra dividend makes the disbursements for the quarter less than half of the actual earnings. The operation for the three months, after the preferred and common stock dividends, including the extra dividend, increased the surplus of the company by $22,909,447.

September was the lowest for the three months which enter into the quarterly earnings. The amount reported for this month was $21,794,450, which compares with $26,298,050 in August and $24,917,187 for July. The total earnings for the quarter after deducting all expenses incident to operations, including those for ordinary repairs and maintenance of plants, taxes, including the reserve for Federal income taxes, and the interest on bonds of subsidiary companies, amounted to $70,178,713. Allowances for depreciation, depletion and obsolescence took away another $18,810,393, leaving the net income for the three months at $53,364,320. The interest for the quarter on the bonds of the company outstanding amounted to $1,778,970, and the payment of the 1¼ per cent dividends on the preferred stock amounted to another $8,304,919.

Extra Due to Rise in Earnings.

The official statement issued by the company after the meeting of the directors read as follows:

RESERVE BOARD FINDS ACTION UNNECESSARY

Six-Hour Session Brings No Change in the New York Rediscount Rate.

OFFICIALS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Mellon Also Attends Cabinet Meeting, but Declines to Discuss Developments.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The further decline in stock market prices today passed without expressed apprehension on the part of Federal officials. The situation was watched intently by the Federal Reserve Board, which held a continuous session from 10 A. M. until 4 P. M., with Secretary Mellon in attendance.

Secretary Mellon, as ex-officio chairman of the board, attended the early part of the meeting before going to the White House for the Cabinet meeting. It could not be learned whether the market situation was discussed by the President and the Cabinet.

At 2:30 P. M. Mr. Mellon returned to the Reserve Board meeting, and remained until near its close. During the day he had conferred with Under-Secretary Ogden L. Mills and Roy A. Young, Governor of the Reserve Board. After the board adjourned, neither Secretary Mellon nor Mr. Young would even intimate the nature or scope of the discussions.

Board Reviews Credit Situation.

Members of the board, while admitting that the market situation was under discussion, declared at the end of the day that there was no change which called upon the board for action relative to credits.

There was a report that the board had reviewed the credit situation to determine whether the time had come to lower the rediscount rate to ease credit for business ventures.

The board has hesitated to act on the rediscount rate during the stock market decline, fearing that lowered rates might be employed to bolster up the market. The board's policy is not to aid in speculation, but it feels that the rediscount rate should be lowered to stimulate credits for business when it is apparent that such action would not be accepted as assistance to speculative loans.

Mr. Young said there was no change in financial conditions which the board thought called for its action.

Cut in Discount Rate Expected.

It is thought the question of lowering rediscount rates may come before the Federal Reserve Board shortly. The Boston Federal Reserve Bank directors will meet tomorrow and the New York directors on Thursday. It is possible that one of these banks may suggest a lowering of the rates.

Some observers believe that a reduction in rediscount rates might have a strong psychological effect not only upon business but the market as well. There was no official indication that such a move was imminent, although some observers thought such action might come if suggested by the New York bank directors, since the rate there is 5 per cent as against 6 per cent in other regions. Some thought the New York rediscount rate might be reduced to 5 per cent soon.

Today's session of the board was the longest since the financial flurry

CLOSING RALLY VIGOROUS

Leading Issues Regain From 4 to 14 Points in 15 Minutes.

INVESTMENT TRUSTS BUY

BIG TRADERS HARDEST HIT

Bankers Believe Liquidation Now Has Run Its Course and Advise Purchases.

Stock prices virtually collapsed yesterday, swept downward with gigantic losses in the most disastrous trading day in the stock market's history. Billions of dollars in open market values were wiped out as prices crumbled under the pressure of liquidation of securities which had to be sold at any price.

There was an impressive rally just at the close, which brought many leading stocks back from 4 to 14 points from their lowest points of the day.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange aggregated 16,410,030 shares; on the Curb, 7,096,300 shares were dealt in. Both totals far exceeded any previous day's dealings.

From every point of view, in the extent of losses sustained, in total turnover, in the number of speculators wiped out, the day was the most disastrous in Wall Street's history. Hysteria swept the country and stocks went overboard for just what they would bring at forced sale.

Efforts to estimate yesterday's market losses in dollars are futile because of the vast number of securities quoted over the counter and on out-of-town exchanges on which no calculations are possible. However, it was estimated that 880 issues, on the New York Stock Exchange, lost between $8,000,000,000 and $9,000,000,000 yesterday. Added to that loss is to be reckoned the depreciation on issues on the Curb Market, in the over the counter market and on other exchanges.

Two Extra Dividends Declared.

There were two cheerful notes, however, which sounded through the pall of gloom which overhung the financial centres of the country. One was the brisk rally of stocks at the close, on tremendous buying by those who believe that prices have sunk too low. The other was that the liquidation has been so violent, as well as widespread, that many bankers, brokers and industrial leaders expressed the belief last night that it now has run its course.

A further note of optimism in the soundness of fundamentals was sounded by the directors of the United States Steel Corporation and the American Can Company, each of which declared an extra dividend of $1 a share at their late afternoon meetings.

Banking support, which would have been impressive and successful under ordinary circumstances, was swept violently aside, as block after block of stock, tremendous in proportions, deluged the market. Bid prices placed by bankers, industrial leaders and brokers trying to halt the decline were crashed through violently, their orders were filled, and quotations plunged downward in a day of disorganization, confusion and financial impotence.

Change Is Expected Today.

That there will be a change today seemed likely from statements made last night by financial and business leaders. Organized support will be accorded to the market from the start, it is believed, but those who are staking their all on the country's leading securities are placing a great deal of confidence, too, in the expectation that there will be an overnight change in sentiment; that the counsel of cool heads will prevail and that the mob psychology which has been so largely responsible for the market's debacle will be broken.

The fact that the leading stocks were able to rally in the final fifteen minutes of trading yesterday was considered a good omen, especially as the weakest period of the day had developed just prior to that time and the minimum prices for the day had then been established. It was a quick run-up which followed the announcement that the American Can directors had declared an extra dividend of $1. The advances in leading stocks in this last fifteen minutes represented a measurable snapback from the lows. American Can gained 10; United States Steel common, 7¼; General Electric, 12; New York Central, 14½; Anaconda Copper, 9¾; Chrysler Motors, 8¾; Montgomery Ward, 4½, and John Manville, 9¾.

Bank and Trust Stock Prices Crumble in Record Trading ville, 8. Even with these recoveries the losses of these particular stocks, and practically all others, were staggering.

Yesterday's market crash was one which largely affected rich men, institutions, investment trusts and others who participate in the stock market on a broad and intelligent scale. It was not the margin traders who were caught in the rush to sell, but the rich men of the country who are able to swing blocks of 5,000, 10,000 up to 100,000 shares of high-priced stocks. They went overboard with no more consideration than the little trader who was swept out on the first day of the market's upheaval, whose prices, even at their lowest of last Thursday, now look high in comparison.

The market on the rampage is no respecter of persons. It washed fortune after fortune away yesterday and financially crippled thousands of individuals in all parts of the world. It was not until after the market had closed that the financial district began to realize that a good-sized rally had taken place and that there was a stopping place on the downgrade for good stocks.

Third Day of Collapse.

The market has now passed through three days of collapse, and so violent has it been that most authorities believe that the end is not far away. It started last Thursday, when 12,800,000 shares were dealt in on the Exchange, and holders of stocks commenced to learn just what a decline in the market means. This was followed by a moderate rally on Friday and entirely normal conditions on Saturday, with fluctuations on a comparatively narrow scale and with the efforts of the leading bankers to stabilize the market evidently successful. But the storm broke anew on Monday, with prices slaughtered in every direction, to be followed by yesterday's tremendous trading of 16,410,030 shares.

Sentiment had been generally unsettled since the first of September. Market prices had then reached peak levels, and, try as they would, pool operators and other friends of the market could not get them higher.

It was a gradual downward sag, gaining momentum as it went on, then to break out into an open market smash in which the good, the bad and indifferent stocks went down alike. Thousands of traders were able to weather the first storm and answered their margin calls; thousands fell by the wayside Monday and again yesterday, unable to meet the demands of their brokers that their accounts be protected.

There was no quibbling at all between customer and broker yesterday. In any case where margin became thin a peremptory call went out. If there was no immediate answer the stock was sold out "at the market" for just what it would bring. Thousands, sold out on the decline and amid the confusion, found themselves in debt to their brokers last night.

Three Factors in Market.

Three factors stood out most prominently last night after the market's close. They were:

Wall Street has been able to weather the storm with but a single Curb failure, small in size, and no member of the New York Stock Exchange has announced himself unable to meet commitments.

The smashing decline has brought stocks down to a level where, in the opinion of leading bankers and industrialists, they are a buy on their merits and prospects, and brokers have so advised their customers.

The very violence of the liquidation, which has cleaned up many hundreds of sore spots which honeycombed the market, and the expected ability of the market to right itself, since millions of shares of stock have passed to strong hands from weak ones.

Bids Provided Where Needed.

One of the factors which Wall Street failed to take into consideration throughout the entire debacle was that the banking consortium has no idea of putting stocks up or to save any individuals from loss, but that its sole purpose was to alleviate the wave of financial hysteria sweeping the country and provide bids, at some price, where needed. It was pointed out in many quarters that no broad liquidating movement in the stock market has ever been stopped by so-called good buying. This is helpful, of course, but it never stops an avalanche of liquidation, as was this one.

There is only one factor, it was pointed out, which can and always does stop a down swing—that is, the actual cessation of forced liquidation. It is usually the case, too, that when the last of the forced selling has been completed the stock market always faces a wide-open gap in which there are practically no offerings of securities at all. When that point is reached, buying springs up from everywhere and always accounts for a sharp, almost perpendicular recovery in the best stocks. The opinion was widely expressed in Wall Street last night that that point has been reached, or at least very nearly reached.

Huge Blocks Offered at Opening.

The opening bell on the Stock Exchange released such a flood of selling as has never before been witnessed in this country. The failure of the market to rally consistently on the previous day, the tremendous shrinkage of open market values and the wave of hysteria which appeared to sweep the country brought an avalanche of stock to the market to be sold at whatever price it would bring.

From the very first quotation until thirty minutes after 10 o'clock it was evident that the day's market would be an unprecedented one. In that first thirty minutes of trading stocks were poured out in 5,000, 10,000, 20,000 and 50,000 share blocks at tremendous sacrifices as compared with the previous closing. The declines ranged from a point or so to as much as 29½ points, and the reports of opening prices brought selling into the market in confused volume that has never before been equaled.

In this first half hour of trading on the Stock Exchange a total of 3,259,800 shares were dealt in. The volume of the first twenty-six blocks of stock dealt in at the opening totalled more than 630,000 shares.

There was simply no near-by demand for even the country's leading industrial and railroad shares, and many millions of dollars in values were lost in the first quotations tapped out. All considerations other than to get rid of the stock at any price were brushed aside.

Brokerage Offices Crowded.

Wall Street was a street of vanished hopes, of curiously silent apprehension and of a sort of paralyzed hypnosis yesterday. Men and women crowded the brokerage offices, even those who have been long since wiped out, and followed the figures on the tape. Little groups gathered here and there to discuss the fall in prices in hushed and awed tones. They were participating in the making of financial history. It was the consensus of bankers and brokers alike that no such scenes ever again will be witnessed by this generation. To most of those who have been in the market it is all the more awe-inspiring because their financial history is limited to bull markets.

The machinery of the New York Stock Exchange and the Curb market were unable to handle the tremendous volume of trading which went over them. Early in the day they kept up well, because most of the trading was in big blocks, but as the day progressed the tickers fell further and further behind, and as on the previous big days of this week and last it was only by printing late quotations of stocks on the bond tickers and by the 10-minute flashes on stock prices put out by Dow, Jones & Co. and the Wall Street News Bureau that the financial district could get any idea of what was happening in the wild mob of brokers on the Exchange and the Curb.

Ticker Finishes at 5:32.

In the afternoon trading the tickers got more than an hour behind. Current tape prices were 5, 10 and 20 points away from those on the floor of the Exchanges. The Exchange ticker did not tap out the final quotation on stock prices until 5:32 P. M. The Curb tickers completed their task at 6:17. In most cases no attempt was made to keep up records in the Exchange board rooms, and only the last prices received from the Exchange floor by the ticker services were posted.

The following table shows the lag of the Exchange ticker during the day and the selling price of United States Steel common during the intervals of the day:

Record of the Day's Volume.

Just how the tremendous total of more than 16,000,000 shares was built up in a five-hour trading day, a record likely to stand for a long while, is reflected in the following table, which shows the volume at intervals yesterday as compared with the previous day:

	Tuesday.	Monday.
10:30	3,259,000	615,600
12:00	(11:30) 8,375,200	3,130,900
1:30	12,652,000	5,547,900
2:30	13,838,000	6,328,500
3 P. M.	16,410,030	9,212,800

All low records, as measured by THE NEW YORK TIMES average of fifty representative stocks, were broken in the drastic liquidation, and prices on the average now are lower too than they were during last October. As measured by these statistics, the average of twenty-five railroad shares declined 6.29 in yesterday's trading and the average of twenty-five industrials was off 43.03. The combined average of fifty representative stocks showed a decline at the close of 24.66.

Peaks Reached in September.

The bull market, the most extensive in the history of the country, started in the Coolidge Administration and reached its height with a tremendous burst of speculation in the public utility issues, the flames of speculation being fed by mergers, new groupings, combinations and good earnings.

The highest prices were reached in early September. At that time the market had a quick break and an equally rapid recovery. Then started a slow sag. Two developments, not considered important at the time, served to start the ball rolling downhill. The first of these was the refusal of the Massachusetts Public Service Commission to permit the Boston Edison Company to split its shares; the second was the collapse of a pool in International Combustion Engineering shares on the Stock Exchange, an over-exploited industrial which had been pushed across 100 by a pool and which crashed when the corporation passed its dividend.

In the meanwhile, the Hatry failure abroad had diverted a tremendous volume of selling to the United States, and under these influences the market continued to sag until it literally crumpled of its own weight.

CURB STOCK DROP LARGEST ON RECORD

TRADING WIDEST IN HISTORY

New Lows for the Year Set by Most Issues—Biggest Loss by Tubize Silk.

In the widest trading it has ever experienced, the Curb Exchange yesterday suffered the most severe decline in its history. Few stocks missed the setting of low records for the year. Utilities and investment trusts were the heaviest issues on the list, but no group escaped the widespread selling, which rolled up a total turnover of 7,096,500 shares, compared with 6,337,415 last Thursday.

Losses were from 2 to 99 points, the latter occurring in Tubize Silk in an inactive market, contrasted with the heavy volume in other issues. Other severe losses occurred in Aluminum Company of America and Aluminum, Ltd., Atlas Plywood, E. W. Bliss, Colgate-Palmolive-Peet, Deere & Co., Ford of Canada A, Glen Alden Coal, General Baking preferred, Lane Bryant, Newmont Mining, Noranda Mines, Powdrell & Alexander, United States Foil B and Walgreen.

In the utility section sharp declines occurred in Allied Power and Light, American and Foreign Power warrants, American Cities B, American Light and Traction, Central States Electric, Commonwealth Edison, Baltimore Gas, Duke Power, Eastern Gas and Fuel, Electric Bond and Share, Electric Investors, Electric Power and Light option warrants, Indian Territory Oil, Northern States Power A, Standard Power and Light, Tampa Electric and United Gas.

New lows were established by Cities Service, Associated Gas, Central Public Service, American Gas and Electric, American Superpower, Middle West Utilities, Niagara Hudson Power, United Corporation warrants and United Light and Power A. Most of the stocks ended above the lowest marks.

In the oil group the declines principally affected Lion Oil, Humble Oil, Imperial Oil, Petroleum Corporation, Standard of Indiana, Standard of Kentucky and Vacuum Oil, which went to record lows for the year.

Bottom marks in the investment trust group were shown by Blue Ridge, Marine Midland, Insull Utility Investments, Haygart, Graymur, Goldman Sachs, Electric Shareholdings, Electric Power Associates, National Investors, Pennroad, Prudential Investors, Selected Industries, Shenandoah, Utility Equities, Utility and Industrials, Transamerica, Tri-continental, Tricontinental Allied and other less active issues.

Fokker Aircraft, Anchor Post Fence, Cord Corporation, Crocker Wheeler, Thermoid, Doehler Die and many other issues reached new lows in the decline.

CHICAGO CRASH CONTINUES.

Stocks Drop $r to $75 a Share In Heavy Selling—Gain in Last Hour.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Chicago stocks cracked again today as another selling wave engulfed the market. Prices sank $1 to $75 a share as large blocks of securities were thrown into the melée.

Commonwealth-Edison took the brunt of the battle as it sold off to a low and close of $235, after sales of 3,500 shares, a decline in value for the day of $75. Middle West Utilities registered the biggest individual turnover of the day with sales of 156,700 shares. This stock closed $6.50 lower.

The market had a ray of hope in the last hour when seventy-six issues closed higher than the lows for the day. The recoveries from the bottom prices ranged from $1 to $20 a share.

Three stocks finished with net gains on the day. These were led by Midland United, which sold up nearly $2.50 to $24, on sales of 6,100 shares. Swift International and United Reproducers were up fractionally, National Standard closed unchanged at $34, and Central Illinois Securities held its loss to 25 cents.

The rallies from the darkest moment were led by Auburn Automobile. This stock dropped $50 to a low of $120 and then worked up to $140 to cut the loss to $30.

Although wheat prices on the Chicago Board of Trade opened 2½ to 6¾ cents a bushel lower, in sympathy with the break in stocks in New York and a decline in Liverpool, an extremely nervous feeling prevailed and price changes moved within a range of 5 cents during the day. The market, traders said, acted surprisingly well, all things considered. The break in prices brought large buying by foreigners, and especially by millers who have made large sales of flour for domestic use and export. Export sales have increased and bids on hard Winters at the gulf are within 1 to 2 cents of the December price in Chicago, the best relative bids this season.

SAN FRANCISCO BANKERS AID.

Stocks Rally at Noon When Reassuring Statement Appears.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29 (AP).—Caught in a whirl of frenzied selling stock prices tumbled headlong in early transactions on the San Francisco Exchanges today and then rallied sharply around noon as hysteria gave place to bargain hunting. No basis for the widespread alarm shown by traders was manifest along Montgomery Street outside the action of the market itself.

Transamerica, no longer supported by its president, A. P. Giannini, dropped more than 32 points cutting its market quotation in half, then recovered 18 points, settling again and steadying around 41 as 74,000 shares changed hands in less than three hours.

A statement signed by six leading San Francisco bankers and read on the floor of the San Francisco Stock Exchange added impetus to the recovery. The bankers said that business conditions on the Pacific Coast and throughout the country are sound and they recommended cool judgment of values.

RECORD PHILADELPHIA SALES.

500,000 Shares Traded on Exchange With Losses Up to 22 Points.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—With sales of more than 500,000 shares, surpassing all previous records, securities on the Philadelphia Stock Exchange joined in another great decline today. Total losses exceeded those made on any other one day on the local board, the declines in individual stocks ranging from a fraction to twenty-two points. There was some recovery before the end, but advances from the lowest prices of the day were very small.

Margin calls sent out by local brokers last night were said to have met with prompt and generous response, yet prices continued to sag until the new commitments were wiped out. More than forty stocks on the Exchange tumbled to new low marks.

Interest again was centred on the public utility issues and especially on United Gas Improvement new stock. This issue fell steadily to below 24, and although it moved up a little before the close, it showed a net loss of more than five points for the day.

BIG LOSSES AT BOSTON.

Investment Trust Stocks Lead Selling, With Many New Lows of Year.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—Prices were slashed unmercifully on the Boston Stock Exchange again today, the investment trust group, which is the principal trading section of the local list, bearing the brunt of the selling. Nearly all the stocks in this group were hammered to new low points for the year. Several of the industrials and specialties were also thrown overboard in the scramble to get out of stocks.

The most spectacular drop was in American Founders, which sold down to 66, a maximum loss for the day of 29 points, and closed at 80 for a net loss of 15. United Founders also showed a wide loss, selling at 31 all day, for a net decline of 17½ points. General Capital, which did not open until 2 o'clock, sold down to 20, closing at 30 for a loss of 25 points.

In the industrial group Bigelow Hartford lost 6½ to 85, United Shoe dropped 6 points to 60, Libby-McNeill was off 3¼, Hy-Grade Lamp 5½ and Union Twist Drill 3¾.

Coppers were heavily liquidated all day, Quincy being the leader, with a decline of 10 points to 20. In the utilities New England Telephone was the chief sufferer, showing a decline of 19 points to 140. Boston Elevated common slipped 5 points to 67.

RECORD DROP IN MONTREAL.

New Lows in 31 Exchange Issues and 20 in Curb Stocks.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 29.—Stock values on the Montreal Stock Exchange crashed today and new records were made for volume of trading, 540,151 shares, and fifty-one stocks dropped to new low prices for the year or longer. Twenty fresh minimums were created on the curb.

Nickel and Brazilian together furnished seven-tenths of the turnover. International Nickel sold off to the new low of 20½, and closed to 30¾, for a net decline of 5¼ points, while Brazilian dropped to the fresh bottom of 39, and closed at 43½, for a net loss of 7 points.

Utilities were weak, Montreal Power suffering the most severely. Equipments, papers and implements showed many sharp breaks. The close was weak.

MANY WIPED OUT IN TORONTO.

New Lows Made by 62 Stocks—Reassurances From Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 29.—A new sales record for the Toronto Stock Exchange was made today when new lows for 1929 were set for sixty-two stocks. More than a hundred issues were carried downward. The leaders bore the brunt of the selling, losses reaching 50 points. The sales totaled 331,100 shares.

The day meant the end of hundreds of small traders. In view of the liquidation, A. E. Phipps, president of the Canadian Bank Association, and Sir Thomas White, a vice president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and a former Dominion Minister of Finance, issued statements telling Canadians that business conditions were sound. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, also issued a reassuring statement from Ottawa.

Time to Buy Stocks, Says Raskob; Sees Only Temporary Effect on Business

John J. Raskob, one of the country's leading industrial and political leaders, declared last night in a statement to THE NEW YORK TIMES that many stocks are selling at bargain prices and that he and his friends are buyers of stocks. It may be stated in this conection that Mr. Raskob has been out of the stock market for many months and did not reenter it until he believed that stocks had reached a level at which they could be purchased with safety.

His statement, written at his desk last night, was as follows:

"Many of us have long felt great concern because of the inflated condition of the stock market during the past several months. Huge amounts of money have been loaned in the call money market at most attractive rates during this period by people who ordinarily would nave this money invested in securities. The present decline in the stock markets of this country has carried prices, in many instances, to levels ridiculously low, with the result that nearly all of the standard railroad stocks are cheap and the industrial list is filled with stocks selling at real bargain prices.

"In a panic, whether in a theatre fire or the stock market, people lose their heads and go too far, which always results in needless and unnecessary suffering.

"Prudent investors are now buying stocks in huge quantities and will profit handsomely when this hysteria is over and our people have opportunity in calmer moments to appreciate the great stability of business by reason of the sound fundamental economic conditions existing in this great country.

"The pendulum has swung too far. The list is filled with bargains and my friends and I are all buying stocks."

Mr. Raskob was asked if he believed that the decline in the stock market would have great effects on business. He answered that he did not believe the effects would be other than temporary, lasting probably two or three months, and that he did not believe that the effects would be drastic in other than luxury industries.

Hundreds Added to Forces To Speed Delivery of Stocks

The various stock delivery, transfer and clearing agencies of Wall Street were stepped-up to an extraordinarily high rate of speed yesterday to cope with the unsurpassed volume of transactions on the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges, while hundreds of additional runners were obtained from the telegraph companies to assist the regular staffs.

The Stock Exchange advanced the delivery time for securities from 2:15 to 2:45 o'clock to permit the runners to deliver the huge stacks of securities at their proper destinations. The delivery time was advanced to 2:30 the day before.

The Stock Exchange Clearing Corporation reported yesterday that the work arising from Monday's 9,212,800-share day was completed in record time and that adequate preparations had been made to take care of yesterday's 16,410,030-share volume.

BANK STOCKS BREAK IN RECORD DEALINGS

BARGAIN HUNTERS ACTIVE

Trusts and Investment Trusts Hit Also in the Unlisted Market—Many Issues Neglected.

A demoralized market in unlisted securities culminated yesterday in what was said by some dealers to be the largest selling of bank stocks on record. For the greater part of the forenoon, bids were highly erratic, if obtainable at all. Gradually, however, a definite selling wave developed in the bank and trust issues and spread to the investment trusts. Other groups were practically neglected as a result of the attention focused on these issues.

Since trading in unlisted securities is carried on by telephone between dealers' offices instead of on a central trading floor, accurate estimates of the volume of sales were unavailable. For that reason, one unlisted house spokesman expressed the opinion that the sales of bank stocks yesterday, while admittedly greater than those of Monday or Thursday, had been exceeded one day last year. The general opinion, however, seemed to be that the bank stocks changed hands in unequaled volume.

Bank Stock Bargains Hunted.

The unlisted market was described as a field day for bargain hunters in bank stocks. These sharpshooters provided a moderate rally around 2 o'clock which, in the case of some dealers, proved short-lived. One house asserted that it had plenty of bids at the close, but others reported a lack of buying support at that time. This house said it had plenty of bids in for bank stocks and that its closing orders were higher than the prices at which it sold bank stocks earlier in the day.

Selling of the bank shares was again ascribed to a need for funds by holders who sought to protect their commitments on the open market exchanges against yesterday's slump. Yesterday, however, the further break in bank stocks was attributed in part to a growing conviction that the bank stocks had been inflated in value and could be obtained at lower prices than had prevailed in recent markets.

National City Bank led in activity. This issue sold as low as 300, and the best bid at the close was a net loss of 120 from Monday. The greatest loss was made by First National, which, owing to its high price, fluctuates more widely on fewer sales than do other bank stocks. First National closed at a low bid of 5,200, down 1,600 points from Monday's closing bid. Among trust companies, Brooklyn Trust led in weakness, closing at a bid of 800, down 360 points from Monday.

Chase National Bank sold as low as 135 and closed down 38 points at 150. Chatham-Phenix sold as low as 110 and closed at 120, off 10. Bank of United States sold as low as 85 and closed down 27 at 98. Bankers Trust touched 130 and closed 135, down 35. Central Hanover's low was 280 and its close 330, down 40. Equitable Trust touched 425 and closed at 450, down 110. Guaranty sagged to 580 and closed at 625, down 175.

One house claimed to have bids for these banks and trust stocks from 5 to 10 points above these closing figures. However, houses which specialize in bank and trust issues said these figures represented their prices.

Investment Trust Issues Hit.

Next to the bank and trust issues, the wave of selling in unlisted trading showed its greatest influence on investment trust issues. British Type Investors sold as low as 5 and closed at a bid of 10 for a loss of 13¼ points. United Founders Corporation touched 20 and closed at 33 for a net loss of 20.

As was the case Monday, most of the trading interest in the unlisted market was absorbed by the bank and trust shares. Insurance shares, which showed some activity Monday, lapsed into comparative inactivity yesterday, although high-priced insurance stocks that did appear were hard hit.

CURB FIRM IS SUSPENDED.

John J. Bell & Co. Admits Inability to Meet Obligation.

The selling flood that has almost inundated the stock market brought its first brokerage house failure yesterday when John J. Bell & Co. at 40 Exchange Place, members of the New York Curb Exchange, was suspended from the exchange because of its admitted inability to meet its obligations.

The announcement of the suspension was made by the Exchange soon after the market opened. There was no statement of assets or liabilities, but it was said last night that a statement would be made today. No petition in bankruptcy has been filed by the firm.

MARGINS CUT TO 25% ON LOANS ON STOCK

Bankers Meeting in Morgan Offices Decide Deflation Has Been Sufficient.

FRESH BUYING POWER SEEN

Impaired Accounts Can Be Better Protected Also by Move, It Is Believed.

Following a meeting in the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. at noon yesterday of the banking group organized last Thursday to support the stock market, it was announced that the banks composing the group, together with several other banking institutions of the city, had agreed upon a reduction of the margin required on security collateral loans to 25 per cent of the market value. This announcement meant that brokers were enabled to borrow up to 75 per cent of the market price of the securities offered as collateral.

It has been the custom for the banks to establish a base price considerably below current market quotations and to lend from 60 to 70 per cent of this base. Yesterday's move indicates that the banks believe security values have been so far deflated as to make unnecessary the enormous margins maintained during the advances in stocks. The action of the bankers was promptly followed by leading brokerage houses, which informed their customers that their accounts would be carried on a 25 per cent margin.

While the banks displayed a much more liberal attitude toward collateral loans, they continued to exercise a keen discrimination as to the class of security they would accept in loan envelopes.

Two Statements by Brokers.

The easing of marginal requirements was explained in two statements issued on behalf of the banking pool.

The first statement, issued at J. P. Morgan & Co. at noon, follows:

"It is learned this morning that many of the leading institutions, including the following: J. P. Morgan & Co., National City Bank, First National Bank, Chase National Bank, Bankers' Trust, Equitable Trust Company, New York Trust Company, Irving Trust Company and Bank of America, are stating to their customers that for the present they plan to require the maintenance of only 25 per cent margin on their Street demand loans."

A statement issued later was as follows:

"There is no money problem involved in the present situation. There is plenty of money and it will be loaned freely.

"As indicating that bankers are feeling that present price levels are safe, it may be said authoritatively that certain of the larger banks in the Wall Street district revised margin requirements as of last night (Monday), making a requirement of only 25 per cent margin on closing quotations, instead of the previous practice of 40 per cent margin or of setting arbitrary prices from which a somewhat lower margin was required.

"It is understood also that many Stock Exchange houses have also followed the change."

While many other banks than those named in the statement took like action, a few others did not commit themselves to any hard and fast rule, preferring to exercise discretionary judgment.

Loan Value Reductions Not Severe.

The marking down of loan values yesterday was not severe, according to the best opinions available on the subject, and it was expected that the tendency was to accept leading stocks at prices closer to market quotations than formerly on the theory that the compression in market values would automatically curtail the extent of any drops in standard issues.

It was explained that the reduction of margin requirements on the lower price levels was intended to build up fresh buying power as well as to save impaired accounts so far as it was possible, and in leading brokerage houses it was reported that buying of stocks yesterday had resulted from the establishment of 25 per cent margins.

The heavy declines of Thursday, Monday and yesterday, estimated at approximately 30 per cent. with respect to the average level of Stock Exchange stocks, has been accompanied by large reductions in brokers' loans, the contraction having been especially noteworthy yesterday. The prediction was ventured by several leading firms that brokers' loans would show this week a reduction of as much as one billion dollars since last Wednesday, when the last Federal Reserve Board figures were compiled.

It was ascertained that Stock Exchange houses had little difficulty with respect to the loan situation and that the measures taken by the banks to reduce their margin requirements had greatly helped to protect impaired accounts.

6-DAY STOCK TAX $1,500,000

State Income From Transfers Exceeds All Previous Marks.

ALBANY, Oct. 29 (AP).—Unparalleled trading in stock markets in the last six days will put close to $1,500,000 in the coffers of the State, officials of the Department of Taxation said tonight.

This income, derived from the stock transfer tax, said Frank S. McCaffrey, Deputy State Commissioner, breaks all records since the tax was first levied, nearly a quarter of a century ago.

The State imposes a tax of 2 cents per $100 of par value of all stocks. Stocks with no par value are taxed 2 cents a share.

Crowds See Market History Made; Phones, Cables Swamped

CROWDS AT TICKERS SEE FORTUNES WANE

Other Investors Sit Silently in Brokerages and Watch Movies of Disappearing Gains.

CAMARADERIE IN TRAGEDY

Throng at Exchange, Eager to Be Near as Market History Is Made, but Scene on Floor Is Orderly.

Groups of men, with here and there a woman, stood about inverted glass bowls all over the city yesterday watching spools of ticker tape unwind and as the tenuous paper with its cryptic numerals grew longer at their feet their fortunes shrunk. Others sat stolidly on tilted chairs in the customers' rooms of brokerage houses and watched a motion picture of waning wealth as the day's quotations moved silently across a screen.

It was among such groups as these feeling the pulse of a feverish financial world whose heart is the Stock Exchange, that drama and perhaps tragedy were to be found. On the floor of the Exchange itself there was little to indicate that the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, all were dumping holdings upon a market whose buying appetite was sated.

But the crowds about the ticker tapes, like friends about the bedside of a stricken friend, reflected in their faces the story the tape was telling. There were no smiles. There were no tears either. Just the camaraderie of fellow-sufferers. Everybody wanted to tell his neighbor how much he had lost. Nobody wanted to listen. It was too repetitious a tale.

Crowds Outside Exchange.

Crowds gathered about the chaste white building that is the Stock Exchange, drawn by the fascination of being close while financial history was being made, to catch the fever of excitement that emanated from it. Many who stopped at Broad and Wall Streets knew not why they had come or what they had hoped to see. Actually they saw little enough—bankers whom they did not know by sight hurrying in and out of the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. across the way, other sightseeers, a special detail of policemen and a few political speakers who addressed the noonday crowds near the Sub-Treasury Building.

Inside the Exchange, from which all visitors have been barred since Thursday's break in prices, the scene was only a little more dramatic. Even in the closing rally, when excitement reached the high pitch for the day, the scene was not so different from that beneath the grandstand at race meets when bettors hurry to lay their wagers with bookmakers before the bugle sounds. In calmer moments the floor resembled Grand Central Terminal at commuting time with the information desk multiplied many times.

In each horseshoe trading post, uniformed clerks with nimble fingers filed away contract slips and sent duplicates sliding through pneumatic tubes. They were like information clerks in a busy railway station handing out time-tables. Pages and ticker boys darted back and forth like porters. Brokers, swamped under an avalanche of orders to sell, sell, sell, bustled frantically about the edges of their trading posts, harassing the clerks like impatient travelers trying to find out in two minutes' time the best route to Kalamazoo.

Still it was an orderly seething, except at intervals when wild rumors sent blood pressure up and prices down.

Growing Excitement at Close.

The hands of the clock on the west wall moved steadily around toward 3 o'clock, the hour of closing. Time was growing short. Little groups of brokers went into huddles around the posts where the more active issues, General Electric, Steel, Anaconda, were being bought and sold. The hoarse undertone that wailed up from the floor increased in volume. Occasionally it was pierced by a whistle, a shriek. A few hands were upraised as bidding for stocks began. It looked like what it was—a rally. A state of mind, like that which sweeps over great crowds at football games, at prizefights, swept over the valuted room and communicated itself electrically to every one who was a part of it.

Amid this growing turmoil the clock's hands crept steadily around toward the right angle of 3 o'clock—the hour when the broker's work is done and the hour when the troubles of his clerical force in the office begin. William Crawford, a dark-haired youth who is superintendent of the mechanical department which reports the record of sales and prices, sauntered out upon the marble rostrum, sat down and took a watch from his pocket.

The tumult of shouting increased. The whole tempo of the scene speeded up. The small man in gray continued his calisthenic bidding. The first stroke of the closing gong came at fifteen seconds of 3. The last choked off a shouted offer and reduced the bedlam to a murmur. Slowly, singly the brokers surrendered the floor to the porters to sweep up the torn papers, which littered it so thickly as to form a carpet.

M. C. Bouvier and William B. Wadsworth, who welcomed him as a member in 1889, left the floor showing fewer signs of strain than brokers half their age, although they had been more active in the trading than in many years.

As soon as word of the sensational drop in prices which marked the opening of the Exchange, reached Police Headquarters, Commissioner Whalen, anticipating crowds of sightseers in the financial district, ordered thirty extra patrolmen and four mounted policemen to proceed to the neighborhood of Broad and Wall Streets. They augmented the special guards around the Morgan offices and helped shoo sightseers away from the Exchange.

The turnover of more than 16,000,000 shares in a day's trading swamped the machinery of the financial world. The clerical forces of brokers' offices were held with their noses at their ledgers until long after midnight. The sidewalks teemed with scurrying runners, clutching comparison slips in their hands. Hundreds of taxicabs lined the curbs in Wall Street, Broad Street and Exchange Place. Others snarled themselves into traffic jams on Broadway which usually is almost deserted in that part of town after 7 or 8 P. M.

Restaurants in the financial district, which usually close early in the evening remained open until midnight and virtually all their tables were filled. The office buildings themselves were as brightly illuminated as at 5 P. M. on an ordinary day.

MAYOR VOICES OPTIMISM.

Urges Movie Exhibitors Not to Show Pessimistic Pictures of Slump.

Mayor Walker urged about seventy-five motion picture exhibitors lunching at the Hotel Astor yesterday to refrain from showing pictures putting a pessimistic outlook on conditions in the stock market.

"This is where the motion picture exhibitors can serve," the Mayor declared. "Show pictures that will reinstate courage and hope in the hearts of the people. Give them a chance to forget their financial losses on the stock market and look with hope to the future.

"Industry and basic financial organizations are sound. It is only the abnormal inflation of the market that has sagged. There is no panic and no likelihood of there being one. Just the same, the morale of the people must be maintained, and you can do it."

Women Traders Going Back to Bridge Games; Say They Are Through With Stocks Forever

The women who some time ago took up the pastime of high finance seemed yesterday on the verge of returning to bridge. They filled the uptown offices of Stock Exchange firms, irritable and nervous. Toward 3 o'clock the general tenor of their remarks was that they were through forever.

Stock brokers have said that the women speculators are the worst losers. Many of those appearing the most worried yesterday were elderly. They pushed their way into the crowded rooms, asked for the latest quotations and then blamed the brokers for the condition of things. In one office a stout woman with chins asked a harassed manager for a quotation, heard it and then remarked: "You might at least be a gentleman." She went away crying.

Another woman, also elderly, went into the same office and announced loudly that she had lost $10,000. She seemed proud that she had lost it and went around for some time telling her friends. She wore four rings on one hand and smoked a succession of gold-tipped cigarettes from a jewel-studded gold case.

Four women were making the rounds of the offices on upper Broadway, apparently bent on turning catastrophe into a social affair. They drove in a large car with a chauffeur and entered each office regally. One of them, who said she had lost $15,000, remarked of an office that "this place is depressing." They went elsewhere.

The men in the uptown offices gathered around the tickers, sat quietly in their chairs or stood along the walls of the room. They made calculations, they appeared worried, but they said very little.

Shortly after 3 o'clock a small boy wandered into one of the uptown offices, looked around and finally found his mother. Apparently that is where he had been accustomed to meet her after school. They went out together shortly afterward, the boy asking for an ice cream cone and the woman telling a friend of her day's losses.

PROPOSAL TO HALT TRADING REJECTED

Exchange Governors, However, May Consider Question Again at Session Today.

FACILITIES ARE STRAINED

Officials Say Suspension Would Be Only to Permit Brokerage Houses to Catch Up or Business.

Business will go on as usual on the security markets today. The governing committee of the New York Stock Exchange decided, at a special meeting last evening, that the emergency is not of sufficient gravity to warrant a suspension of trading.

Although the situation is concededly serious, the governing authorities, after a careful canvass, determined not to make any alteration in the trading schedule. The Exchange will open at 10 o'clock and close at 3 as usual. For a time yesterday it looked as if business might be confined today to four hours instead of five, or that an indefinite suspension might be ordered.

After the meeting Richard Whitney, the acting president of the Exchange, issued the following statement: "The meeting considered carefully the present situation, but felt no action was necessary and adjourned to its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon."

The subject of closing the Exchange may be considered again at the regular meeting of the governors today. The question of closing, it was emphasized yesterday, will be determined by the condition of the physical machinery of the Exchange and of member firms. If the Stock Clearing Corporation threatens to break down, or the member firms are swamped to such an extent that they cannot cope with the emergency, the governors will stand ready to order a suspension of trading.

Members of the governing committee, it was learned, conferred in the morning with important banking executives at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co.

BROKERAGE CLERK SEIZED.

Arrested on Larceny Charge When Police Can't Find Partners in Firm.

The police arrested a clerk employed by the brokerage firm of Graham & Clark, 545 Fifth Avenue, last night, after a fruitless attempt to locate a partner in the firm, and charged the clerk, George R. Plant, 27 years old, of 250 West Seventy-seventh Street, with grand larceny on complaint of Haldey M. Crist of Harwood Avenue, Swarthmore, Pa., growing out of an alleged stock deal.

Crist said that on Oct. 19 he had given the brokerage firm $1,000 with which to purchase for him some General Motors stock, and that he gave them $6,000 more for the same purpose on Oct. 23. Crist said the stock was never delivered. Arriving here last night, he went to the East Fifty-first Street station and told his troubles to Detective Frank Reihl. Reihl went to the Graham & Clark offices and, finding only Plant and a telephone operator there, arrested the clerk.

PHONE, RADIO, CABLE BEAT ALL RECORDS

100% GAIN ON OCEAN PHONE

Western Union Handles Traffic 200 Per Cent Over Normal—Pressure on Cables Heavier Than in War.

Every form of electrical communication was severely taxed yesterday by the increasing pressure of messages resulting from the break in security values on the country's leading exchanges. The traffic yesterday surpassed in volume all previous known records for telegraph, cable and telephone communications between the leading cities of the entire world.

Instead of being fairly well distributed, yesterday's additional telephone traffic was concentrated upon a relatively few lines with greater intensity than upon the first day of the breaking market. The routes bearing the force of this concentration were those to Boston, Montreal, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Toledo and St. Louis, while the transcontinental lines were kept busy connecting San Francisco and Los Angeles with New York. More than 11,000 messages above the usual daily total were put through between such points.

At the same time, transatlantic telephone messages yesterday showed a more than 100 per cent increase over the normal average for this season, as hundreds of Americans in Europe turned to this form of communication for conferences with their WWall Street brokers.

Telegraph Wires Hum.

Western Union wires carried without a delay yesterday the strain of the heaviest stock market trading in history, the company reported. Increases of 200 to 300 per cent in the volume of business to San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle and other points in the Far West were handled.

Wire facilities of the Western Union to Pacific points were expanded by the addition of twice as many circuits as were put into use last Thursday, the previous record day on the market. Increases in the volume of telegraphic messages were easily handled, it was reported, although gains in business from individual brokers ran to 500 per cent. Many brokers whose private wires were loaded to capacity turned to the telegraph for the balance of their messages.

Records were established in cable communications to and from Europe yesterday as traders on both sides of the Atlantic tried to keep up with the unusual New York stock market, the Commercial Cable Company reported. European markets were kept in instantaneous connection with the swift happenings on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, and transmission of stock messages was made in a few seconds' time.

Never Such a Volume Before.

"Never in the history of international communication have Atlantic cable facilities been taxed as they have been during the present market," Thomas M. Drew, business manager of the Commercial Cable Company, said yesterday. Mr. Drew has been connected with the cable company for forty-one years and said that it was the most acute situation not excluding the World War, in his experience. "We have never at any time before been called upon to do such a large volume of business in such a short time," he said.

The cable traffic jumped to nearly 20,000 messages a day over the Commercial Cable Company's lines, with probably 3,000 messages dealing with the stock market. Messages were principally from New York to Paris and London, although there was a large increase in westbound traffic also. R. G. McLaughlin, assistant general manager of the metropolitan division of the Postal Telegraph Company, said yesterday's market was estimated to have increased telegraph business originating in New York from 10 to 15 per cent.

Rosenwald Guarantees Workers' Stock Accounts

CHICAGO, Wednesday, Oct. 30 (AP).—The Herald and Examiner in a copyrighted story today said Julius Rosenwald, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., had guaranteed the stock market accounts of the 40,000 or more employes of his company.

The accounts are guaranteed, the newspaper said, regardless of what stocks the employes may hold. Many have bought a diversified list of stocks on margins, The Herald and Examiner understood, and as a result of Mr. Rosenwald's action their accounts have been secured, even should a further market drop develop.

John Higgins, a vice president of the mail order house, is in charge of the protective plan. Employes not only in Chicago but in all communities where the company has branches, are affected.

INSURANCE HEADS URGED TO BUY STOCKS

Conway Suggests Price Level Offers Good Purchases for Investment.

Prompted by the drastic readjustment of securities prices, Albert Conway, State Superintendent of Insurance, recommended yesterday to insurance companies the purchase of leading common stocks. At the same time, he called into conference the heads of the largest life insurance companies in the State to see if there was any way in which, under the laws, they could make such purchases.

"These life insurance companies were unanimous in their belief that the values of many of the leading common stocks had been readjusted to the point where they could be purchased," said Mr. Conway. "Unfortunately, they felt that under the law of the State of New York, as at present, their hands were tied."

Mr. Conway informed the officials that he would recommend to the next legislature an amendment to permit the purchase of the leading common stocks by life insurance companies for investment purposes. The life insurance presidents offered to return this afternoon for another conference in an attempt to devise some immediate steps to remedy the situation.

Those who conferred with Superintendent Conway were:

THOMAS O. PARKINSON, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society.
DARWIN P. KINGSLEY, president of the New York Life Insurance Company.
EDWIN P. DEFFIELD, president of the Prudential Life Insurance Company of America.

Under the law, fire, marine, casualty and surety companies may invest in common stocks, but the life insurance companies are limited to investments in preferred or guaranteed stocks earning 4 per cent or more a year and paying dividends for five years prior to the time of the investment.

FALLS DEAD AT TICKER AS STOCKS DECLINE

Providence Merchant Worried Over His Holdings—Kansas City Man Shoots Himself.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 29 (AP).—David Korn, 57, proprietor of a coal firm and prominent in charitable activities here, dropped dead in a broker's office in Providence this afternoon as he was watching the ticker. Witnesses said Mr. Korn had appeared worried as news of the stock market crash came into the office.

The brokers said, however, that Mr. Korn's holdings were in no especial danger.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 29 (AP).—John G. Schwitzgebel, insurance man, fired two shots into his chest at the Kansas City Club today in an attempt to commit suicide.

"Tell the boys I can't pay them what I owe them," he told friends who rushed to his room.

A brother said he believed Schwitzgebel "had been caught in the market."

BERRY STOPS SALE OF $60,000,000 BONDS

MESSAGE FROM SICKBED

Controller, Advised It Would Be Patriotic Move, Telephones to Halt Preparations.

Because of the demoralized condition of the financial market, Controller Berry, from his home in Staten Island, where he is convalescing from illness, telephoned yesterday to his office an order cancelling the $60,000,000 sale of city bonds which was to have been held there at noon today.

The following statement was issued later from the Department of Finance in the Municipal Building, by direction of the Controller:

"Owing to the most demoralized conditions of trading which the Stock Exchange has ever seen, the principal banking houses and financial institutions which had formed syndicates to put in bids for the city's $60,000,000 sale of corporate stock and serial bonds tomorrow have suggested to the Controller that it would be a patriotic move and in the best interests of the country as a whole to aid the efforts now being made by the large banking institutions by temporarily postponing the $60,000,000 sale and thus help in relieving the great strain on the money market.

"Owing to the city's splendid financial condition, it fortunately can afford to wait until a more opportune time for disposing of these bonds, consequently the Controller has decided to withdraw the sale and now announces its postponement by telephone from his sick bed."

The securities that were to have been sold today comprised $36,000,000 of 4½ per cent gold serial bonds of the city and $22,000,000 of 4½ per cent gold corporate stock of the city, principal and interest of which were to have been payable in gold. These securities are exempt from both Federal and State income tax. They are expected to be used in large part by executors, administrators, guardians and others holding trust funds, these securities being legal investments for such fiduciary trusts.

When word came from the Controller's bedside to cancel the sale workmen were already busy in his outer office in the Municipal Building rigging up telephone connections so that news of the bidding might be flashed by a score of financial agencies and news services today.

The terms of the sale provided that only sealed proposals would be received and that they would be opened publicly in the presence of the commissioners of the sinking fund.

BANK CLERK ARRESTED.

Interstate Trust Employe Says He Took $6,000 to Pay for Stocks.

Harry Gelman, 19 years old, of 2,007 Harmion Avenue, the Bronx, was arrested last night at Simpson and Westchester Avenues by Detectives Philip and O'Connel of Inspector Mulrooney's staff, charged with the larceny of $6,000 from the Interstate Trust Company at 180th Street and Broadway, where he was employed as a bookkeeper at $1,300 per year.

According to the police, Gelman admitted he had taken the money from his bank by watching inactive accounts, destroying the signature cards and signing the names of depositors on checks. He said he used the money to speculate in the stock market.

BANKERS OPTIMISTIC; WILL CONTINUE AID

banking leaders. At the evening meeting Chellis Austin, president of the Equitable Trust Company, entered the conference. The original group, which was first organized last Thursday and which has since been meeting daily, includes:

ALBERT H. WIGGIN, chairman of the Chase National Bank.
WILLIAM C. POTTER, president of the Guaranty Trust Company.
SEWARD PROSSER, chairman of the Bankers Trust Company.
GEORGE F. BAKER Jr. of the First National Bank.
THOMAS W. LAMONT, partner of the Morgan firm.

In addition to Mr. Lamont, George Whitney and several other Morgan partners have regularly participated in the meetings of the group.

In discussing the developments of the day Mr. Lamont and Mr. Whitney, who acted as spokesmen for the group, said last night that the feeling among bankers so far as they could see was that the public was coming somewhat to its senses. This was shown, it was said, by the fact that there had been during the day a considerable amount of first-class investment buying. Large capitalists, they said, had been "bargain counter" buying and there had been heavy purchasing by many corporations of securities destined for employe stock funds and similar purposes. The resistance shown by certain groups, notably the rails, and the fact that in most cases closing quotations were above the low prices for the day, indicated, it was said, that a more promising situation had developed.

As an indication that the outlook for leading corporations is far brighter than the action of the stock market would seem to indicate, reference was made to the declaration yesterday afternoon of extra dividends by the United States Steel Corporation and the American Can Company.

A further constructive development of the day was the action of leading banking institutions in reducing margin requirements upon security loans. This move was announced at midday at the time of the first meeting of the banking group. According to the announcement the institutions participating in the group, together with other leading banks of the city, had agreed upon a reduction of margin requirements to 25 per cent of the market price of the securities pledged as collateral.

The move was taken in Wall Street to indicate that the bankers felt that security prices had now sunk to so low a level that the large margins required previously were no longer necessary to secure the safety of the loans. The action of the banks was at once followed by large Stock Exchange houses which reduced the amount of margins required of customers to a corresponding figure and in some cases to even as low as 10 per cent. In the opinion of bankers the move did much to obviate the necessity for distressed selling, since the revision of margin requirements enabled many traders to hold their commitments without being forced to put up more margin.

In addition to the large offers of funds which the banking group has received from other banking institutions, offers of money from corporations and other wealthy institutions to be employed in support of the stock market were received, it was learned yesterday. According to the best opinion in Wall Street the banking group has at its disposal a stupendous sum, amounting possibly to $750,000,000, and it is clear that once the overwhelming deluge of selling has, in some measure, spent its force the resources of the group will be enormously effective in bringing order back into the market.

In the face of the unprecedented rush of selling which broke loose yesterday it was impossible for the buying power of the group or of the many investment purchasers who came into the market to make headway. Indiscriminate purchases of securities in an attempt to turn the tide would have been futile, bankers outside the group conceded, in discussing the matter, for it would be manifestly impossible for any banking coalition, no matter how great its resources, to purchase even a major part of the 16,410,030 shares dumped on the market yesterday.

Improved Sentiment Noted.

At the close of the day a very much improved sentiment was displayed in financial circles. Bankers remarked that the ample credit available would do much to help tide through the period of crisis.

In this connection there were indications that a reduction in the rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank is almost certain to be ordered this Thursday. A special meeting of the directors of the bank was held yesterday afternoon, and it was at first expected that a reduction would be voted. No announcement was made, however, but it was regarded as significant that in well-informed quarters reference to this failure to take action received the comment "a couple of days won't make much difference."

Confirmation of the reports that the Reserve has recently been a purchaser of United States Government securities was given at the Federal Reserve Bank and it was indicated that the bank of issue would maintain central banking tradition by making available at this time of crisis an abundance of credit.

Other developments of the day pertaining to the credit situation which added to the improvement of sentiment included a reduction in the yield rates on bankers' acceptances, continued ease in time and call money and the increasing expectation of an enormous decline in brokers' loans to be announced in the figures given out tomorrow night by the Federal Reserve.

Renewed Buying Expected.

Bankers, consulted as to whether or not they believed that the full force of the decline had spent its fury, were chary of predictions. They said, however, that the prices of sound securities had been driven down to a point where strong investment buying would be inevitably attracted from all over the world, and that ultimately as distressed selling decreased, this buying was bound to be felt with greater and greater force.

As an indication of how attractive security prices in this market have now become, it was learned that several houses having foreign connections had received cable communications from investment trusts and other interests abroad instructing them to be on the lookout for large offers of sound stocks at attractive prices.

Although the close of the day found Wall Street shaken by one of the most drastic declines in its history, there was no denying the increased optimism with which leaders of the financial district viewed the situation. On the surface, as one banker remarked, all that could be said was that another day had been passed, but a careful scrutiny of events indicated that there had been a considerable recovery from Monday's hysteria and that conditions had now reached the point where, at least, some measure of resistance to the decline had become evident.

HARRISON PREDICTS RECOVERY IN STOCKS

Head of Bancindustrial Service Sees Real Justification for Advancing Values.

URGES FAITH BY INVESTORS

At Dinner in His Honor He Stresses Need for Informing Public as to Values Behind Securities.

Optimism as to the future of American business and predictions that the prices of securities were bound to rise when the present crisis in the stock market is over were expressed by bankers and financiers who attended a dinner last night to Milton W. Harrison in honor of his election as president of the Banc-industrial Service, Inc., at the Bankers' Industrial Exposition, 11 West Forty-second Street. More than 200 guests were present.

"There is a real justification in advancing values when American business is proceeding along lines of consolidations resulting in huge economies, greater efficiency and thus inherently enhancing security values," Mr. Harrison said.

"The immediate lesson we must learn, however, is to get knowledge through to the public concerning the real values behind the securities of business. The confidence of the investor provides adequately against undue inflation in market values as well as needless deflation due to ignorance and fear."

Aron Says Crash Is Unnecessary.

The overlooding of the facilities of the stock exchanges of the country, combined with a panicky state of mind among investors, for which, he said, there is no justification, were held responsible for the crisis in the stock market by Harold G. Aron, chairman of the executive committee of the International Germanic Trust Company and Republican-Fusion candidate for Controller.

Three definite proposals were set forth by Mr. Aron as a cure for the stock market situation.

First. Positive financial leadership, "as in 1907," sharp disapproval by the banking world of short selling as against the public interest and, finally, the closing of the Stock Exchange "until the public comes to a sober second sense and a realization of its own self-inflicted punishment." The last measure was urged by Mr. Aron "if sanity is not promptly restored."

"It is my humble judgment," said Mr. Aron, "that we are witnessing today for the first time in American financial history what is really a panic, by which I mean a totally unnecessary, unreasonable and foolish display of mass psychology which has no reason in fact or in reality. So far as human intelligence can comprehend there is no reason for fear on the part of the American business man or investor."

Letters Commend Harrison.

Letters of tribute to Mr. Harrison were read from Dr. A. H. G. Giannini, chairman of the board of the Bank of America National Association, and Victor A. Lerner, president of the Bowery Savings Bank.

Among those who accepted invitations to the dinner were:

CHELLIS A. AUSTIN, president of the Equitable Trust Company.
WILLIS H. BOOTH, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company.
BARRON COLLIER, president of the Street Railways Advertising Company.
J. M. DAVIS, president of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.
KERWIN H. FULTON, president of the General Outdoor Advertising Company, Inc.
FREDERIC J. LISMAN of F. J. Lisman & Co.
JOHN C. LOONIS, president of the Commercial Trust Company.
C. STANLEY MITCHELL, chairman of the board of the Bank of the United States.
WILLIAM C. REDFIELD, president of the Brooklyn National Bank of New York.
DAVID SARNOFF, executive vice president of the Radio Corporation of America.
MATTHEW S. SLOAN, president of the New York Edison Company.
A. S. VAN WINKLE, president of the Empire City Savings Bank.
THOMAS J. WATSON, president of the International Business Machines Corporation.

SENATOR TYDINGS LAYS CRASH TO REPUBLICANS

Says Party in Power Must Take Blame for Drop in Stocks—Contradicts Watson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Senator Tydings of Maryland declared tonight that the crisis in the stock market "belongs to the party in power" and that leaders who were "yelling prosperity" a year ago, are now trying to "find a scapegoat in the face of a $15,000,000,000 loss in one week of American life."

His statement issued through the Democratic National Committee was a rejoinder to the suggestion made last week by Senator Watson, majority leader of the Senate, that Democratic delay of the tariff bill might be charged with responsibility for the crash in stocks.

Senator Tydings asserted that the suggestion made by Mr. Watson "is the most entertaining reason yet advanced for the Hoover market, the last phase of which has decreased the market value of securities listed on the New York Exchanges from $12,000,000,000 to $15,000,000,000 in less than a week."

"In the first place," continued Mr. Tydings, "it is a rather startling statement of the situation that a bill which the Republicans had in hand for eight months and which the opposition has been trying to make respectable in less than that number of weeks should be charged to the Democratic party.

"The stock crisis belongs to the party in power.

"A Republican president together with an overwhelming Republican majority in the House and Senate was elected. The whole machinery of government is in their hands. If things have gone away, they must take the responsibility."

BREAK LIFTS STOCK YIELDS.

The decline in stock market prices in recent trading periods has increased the yield of leading issues from levels which, in some cases, ranged around 1 per cent to as high as 11.11 per cent, according to a compilation by THE NEW YORK TIMES. The development is significant in the light of the statement by Arthur W. Loasby, president of the Equitable Trust Company, that as a result of the deflation of prices investors would begin purchasing yields "instead of quotations."

Baltimore & Ohio, which was one of the notably weak issues of the railroad group, yields 6.11 per cent at yesterday's close. New York Central, which declined less, yields 4.22 per cent, although its dividend is $8, against $7 for B. & O. New Haven, which until comparatively recently was one of the least prosperous of the carriers, yields 5.56 per cent at yesterday's close. "SMITH MESSAGE" A HOAX.

Springfield (Mass.) Humorists Composed Telegram on Stock Market.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 29 (AP).—An inquiry following reports that former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York had denied sending a telegram read last night at a banquet tendered to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, developed today that the message was composed by local humorists while the banquet was in progress.

The telegram contained the laconic query, "Will they blame the stock market on the Democrats?"

The communication was not only a hoax as far as Governor Smith was concerned, but it also was for the large and representative Democratic audience present. The great majority of the Democratic leaders in attendance were unaware of the origin of the "message," and it is understood that William G. McKechnie, who acted as master of ceremonies, read it under the impression that it was authentic.

HOLDS CANADA IS SECURE.

Premier King Says Stability Cannot Be Affected by Market.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 29 (Canadian Press).—In the face of the serious decline in prices of stocks, Premier Mackenzie King this evening made a brief statement to newspaper men in which he declared that economic conditions in Canada had never been sounder, nor faith in the development of the Dominion greater, if one was to judge by those indices used by the large financial and insurance companies. The hectic conditions which had prevailed recently might have an adverse effect on Canadian stocks, but Mr. King said that the confidence shown by foreign investors should in itself be a factor in inspiring confidence in the Dominion and its future.

Stock Exchange Has Bad Day as Anglo-American Issues React to Crash Here.

FEAR FOR OUR PROSPERITY

Financial Experts See Danger of Business Recession Which Might Affect England.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The fresh avalanche of selling in Wall Street worried financial London today—and not merely those investors who had dumped American stocks on the market. The terrific violence of Wall Street's slump has gone deeper than London ever dreamed. The question now asked is where the decline is going to end.

Last Thursday's panicky selling left London's "City" in a comfortable position saying, "I told you so." It had been expected for a long time. Yesterday's $9,000,000 share day left the city disturbed but calm. Today's collapse, however, fell like a clap of thunder, and drove holders of American securities to throw them on the market at cruelly slashed prices.

Pandemonium reigned late this afternoon in Shorters Court, where most dealings in American securities take place. The rush began with the deep tolling of the bell announcing 4 o'clock and the closing of the stock exchange after a disastrous day. Prices had fluctuated wildly and every Anglo-American issue had gone plunging downward. At the stroke of 4 brokers rushed from the Exchange to Throgmorton Street and soon there was a pushing mass of excited traders jammed in Shorters Court.

Prices were shouted from two windows overlooking the court. Arms shot above the crowd and voices rang out calling, "I'll buy a thousand, I'll buy a thousand." As the ticker reeled off the steadily crumbling prices in Wall Street, the excitement mounted and occasionally men left the court dejectedly. They had lost small fortunes in a few minutes' trading across the ocean.

The onnly form of speculation that was heard today was not in shares but in predictions. The wholesale shakeout in Wall Street was felt here to be healthy and long-needed. Financial experts today expressed fears that American prosperity might suffer and England suffers if there are hard times in the United States.

"Instalment buying on automobiles, radio sets, fur coats and furniture in the United States will become a burden," predicts the financial editor of The Evening Star. "Demand for these industries may slacken and the price of raw materials like tin may fall. The Wall Street slump will cause a recession in American business as surely as the present share slump had inevitably to follow the share boom. The share debacle has created a questioning mood."

England's hope in the present situation is the lowering of the present 6½ per cent discount rate and the world-wide clearing of monetary conditions. That is why the evening newspapers carry such bleak headlines on the front pages tonight and why millions of Englishmen—quite apart from investors or stockbrokers—take such an interest in Wall Street developments.

The prevailing opinion of London newspapers is that the slump is bound to react unfavorably on the luxury trades, and through them on the more serious industries such as steel.

"We are not watching the inexorable operation of economic laws which American investors have defied," writes The Daily Mail's financial editor. "We are watching the complete disorganization of a complex market by an assault upon it of a leaderless and panic-stricken mob."

The Daily News holds the result may be beneficial to Europe, owing to the return of some gold. "But if the depression is so widespread that the average American citizen can no longer afford for the time being to buy imported goods, there will obviously be a serious reaction on European trade," it continues. "The tariff wall will become temporarily almost insurmountable."

DR. KLEIN DECLARES BUSINESS IS SOUND

BLAMES BOOM PSYCHOLOGY

Tells Radio Audience That the Industrial and Commercial Structure Is Safe.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, who is one of President Hoover's closest friends, discussing the business outlook over the radio tonight, took the position that the New York Stock Exchange crash is not a major barometer of business. A decline in security prices, he added, does not greatly affect the buying power of the country. Those involved in the speculative activities of the past few days are not more than 4 per cent of all the families in the entire nation, said Dr. Klein.

The normal purchasing power of the United States has not, said Dr. Klein, been appreciably impaired by what has happened on the stock exchanges of the country. Regardless of speculative uncertainty, the industrial and commercial structure of the nation, he declared, continues sound. The country, he said, as regards stock prices, has been under the influence of "a boom psychology."

There are many observers who profess to see in Dr. Klein's statement a reflection of the administration's thought in the present stock crisis.

Lamont Sees President.

Secretary of Commerce Lamont, Dr. Klein's immediate superior, was with the President some time today. Dr. Klein was hours in preparing tonight's utterance and it was not released to the press until after 9 o'clock, shortly before he went on the air. His speech follows:

"On Friday last the President stated that the fundamental business of the country, that is production and distribution of commodities, is on a sound and prosperous basis. The best evidence is that although production and consumption are at high levels, the average prices of commodities as a whole have not increased and there have been no appreciable increases in the stocks of manufactured goods.

"However, there has been a tendency of wages to increase, and the output per worker in many industries again shows an increase, all of which indicates a healthy condition.'

"There is no reason today to change a single word of this statement of the President. Stock Exchange prices have gone down materially since Friday, but the stock market is not the major barometer of business, and a decline in security prices does not greatly affect the buying power of the community, on which buying power rests the activity of production, the earnings of corporations and other business enterprises and the employment of labor.

"No one knows the number of persons engaged in this speculative activity, but even if we accepted the apparently liberal estimate of some non-official observers, who place the speculative accounts at about a million, these would still involve less than 4 per cent of all of the families in the entire nation. Or, if we put it on the basis of individuals, the ratio would be less than 1 per cent of the total population.

Does Not Belittle Hardships.

"Please don't misunderstand me or think that I am belittling the hardships of even this small fragment of our people, but even if all of these speculators suffered—and there were untold thousands who did not—you would still have a vastly preponderant majority of the nation unaffected by these speculative gyrations.

"And remember, incidentally, to cite just one corrective of this situation, that these speculative accounts could be matched twice over by the more than 2,000,000 families who derive their livelihood from export trade, which is almost entirely unaffected by this movement.

"Stock prices have gone down suddenly because over the past two or three years it seems to be generally agreed that they had risen much too rapidly. Throughout the past eight years, with very temporary and minor recessions, the production of goods and service in the United States has gradually but, on the whole, very considerably increased.

"That is the same thing as saying that national income increased. This naturally added to the profits of business, especially as, at the same time, many economies in production methods were introduced. The increased profits of business justified an advance in stock price but they did not justify going up to the sky.

"It would have been proper, no doubt, for stocks to rise in price somewhat faster than actual production of commodities because of the gradual spread among the people of confidence in the general future of American business, of confidence that the increase of production in commodities and profits of industry would in the long run continue.

"Such a conviction might justify some discounting of future larger earnings in the prices of securities. It did not justify carrying them to such a level that in many cases only hope for corporate earnings that would pay a fair rate of return on the prices paid for stocks.

"We have been under the influence, as regards stock prices, of a boom psychology. Many persons have bought stocks with little knowledge of their present or probable future dividend-paying capacity. Many, moreover, have borrowed money in order to make these stock purchases.

"A reaction was bound to occur. The main point which I want to emphasize is the fundamental soundness of that great mass of economic activities on which the well-being of the vast majority of us all depends. One may have due sympathy for the very considerable number who have lost money in the stock market without losing sight of the fact that there has been no change in the situation of the overwhelming majority of American families. The growth of the income of the nation and the advance in the well-being of its business men, its wage earners and its farmers during recent years has not been due to boom psychology nor to temporary and fleeting causes.

"It has been a definite upward trend, not a wave, whose subsidence would leave us in a deep trough.

"The fundamental cause of the expansion of business and the improvement in standards of living has been the growing efficiency of production. We have been able to produce more and more goods and services per person at work. This gain in efficiency in turn has been due to causes of an enduring and cumulative character, causes that enter into the very bodies and minds of our people and into the very foundations of our economic structure.

"The steady spread of education is perhaps the most basic of these upward-pushing forces. Closely allied with this is the growth of scientific research with its harvest of inventions and discoveries. The abundant savings of the people, with the consequent expansion of our capital have enabled us to provide more and better equipment for production, thus reducing costs. One could readily name other basic factors which have contributed to our progress and which are just as real and powerful today as they were a month ago and far more powerful than they were even eight or ten years ago.

Advance Sound, He Says.

"The most conclusive evidence that the progress of American industry and commerce in recent years has not been fictitious, has not been a mere inflationary boom, lies in the steadiness of prices of commodities. Against the immense advance in prices of securities, those of goods and services have for years been stationary or with a slight downward trend. A business boom which threatens a subsequent collapse of business is always accompanied by considerable, if not great, advance in commodity prices.

"Some of you may be expecting me to tell you what is going to happen to stock prices tomorrow and next week. If you pause to think about it, however, you will realize that it would be quite improper as well as impossible for any government official to give out such an opinion. The careful student of American economic life, equipped with an abundance of statistics, can forecast fairly well the long-time trends of production and of standards of living and even of many more specific branches of business or other economic aspects. He cannot foresee accurately short-time changes in economic conditions and least of all those speculative changes which depend largely upon the psychology of the people or a fraction of the people. All of us are justified, in my opinion, in a profound confidence in the general economic future of the country. Just what relation should exist between that confidence and his present attitude toward the stock market is something for each individual to decide for himself.

"Broadly speaking, ou raverage per capita production has increased by from 5 0to 75 per cent since 1900 and by from 25 to 35 per cent since 1919, and remember that 1919 was not a depression year but one of high activity. I fully believe that the causes which have brought about this great advance will accomplish as much during the next decade or the next quarter of a century. There may be temporary recessions but these can be reduced to a minimum if we all have confidence in the general upward trend. Many of the business depressions of past decades have been primarily psychological and could have been avoided or minimized if the business men and the masses of the people had had the proper confidence in themselves. The general public of today understands better than ever before the long-term trends of our economic life and the fundamental forces at work in it. I believe that we have very good reason to anticipate that this great knowledge will breed greater confidence and will prevent use from giving way in any large measure to a defeatist psychology."

Dr. Klein said the fundamental factor in the general situation of business is "purchasing power" and that real purchasing power is made up of wages, salaries, receipts of farmers, merchants, professional men and others and the profits of industry.

"The factors have not been changed by the drop in stock prices," he said. "The national income of the United States at this moment is hardly a fraction less than it was a month ago. Established indexes, such as the quantity of output of our farms, our mines and our factories, and the volume of our railroad transportation, support this view."

"The number of citizens whose buying ability has been affected by the decline in the value of speculative securities is not very large. Their purchases do not make up a very significant fraction of the demand for goods. There is no reason why the twenty-five or more million families, representing over 95 per cent of our population, whose incomes remain undiminished, should cut down their purchases of commodities, and therefor. very few industrials should see any appreciable reduction in the sales of their output. Aside from purchase of goods by consumers for their own actual use, the biggest demand for commodities is that for expanding what the economists call the capital equipment of the nation.

"In normal times there is an immense call for building materials, steel, machinery, railroad equipment, and many other classes of goods for the purpose of building and equipping factories, public works and other productive enterprises. At least a tenth and perhaps an eighth of the productive energy is normally devoted to this creation of capital goods. If our business men and our people maintain that confidence in the future which the long experience of the past fully justifies, we shall see no diminution in the demand for capital goods as the result of the break in stock prices. On the contrary, the diversion of capital from stock market speculation to direct productive enterprise might readily increase the demand for commodities of this sort.

Ground for Confidence.

"One of the major grounds for confidence in the steadiness of American industry lies in the widespread dissemination of better statistical information and the practice of business men in guiding their policies in the light of such statistics. Never before has American industry and commerce been so ably managed as at present. Our commercial and industrial corporations are headed by men of broad vision, high qualifications and large experience with the intricate problems of our complex economic scheme. More than this, the executives of American business have today at their finger tips current facts upon the movement of their own industries, allied industries and all industry and business which in the last analysis, because of the interdependence between industry and industry, is of great importance. Rule of thumb practices have long since given way to policies based upon proper facts and analysis.

"The business man who is momentarily disturbed by the sharp decline in stock prices will glance at the current statistics of other economic factors. He will find, for example, that in September—of course, actual October figures are not yet available—industrial employment was 5 per cent greater than a year ago, and that the amount of wage payments by our factories was 8 per cent larger than in September last year. He will see no ground for expecting reduced purchases of commodities on the part of the wage-earner. He will find that there has been no accumulation of stocks of manufactured goods because of overanticipation of future demand or because of any present failing off in demand. The American Railway Association, which collects advice 'as to the probable demands for cars,' has received reports indicating freight car requirements for the present quarter are more than 2 per cent greater than for the same quarter of 1928. This demand for freight cars reflects the production of and demand for goods.

Farm Position Favorable.

"Again, the statistics show the farmer in a relatively favorable condition and his demand for manufactured goods may well be expected to remain strong. The quantity of crop production this year has been almost as great as last year, when the income of the farmer was the highest in history. One cannot, of course, forecast the price of farm products but thus far they are practically the same as a year ago.

"We must not forget, moreover, that export trade has become a very important factor in American business. Exports of manufactured goods especially have increased steadily and rapidly in recent years. We now export approximately 10 per cent of the total output of our factories. There is no reason to anticipate any decline in this big factor in demand and on the contrary the upward movement of recent years is likely to continue.

"One of the major indications of general prosperity is the amount of new life insurance taken out. Sales of insurance were 15 per cent greater last month than in September, 1928, and every recent year has shown a gain in the annual volume of new insurance, until today we have the truly prodigious total of over 100 billions of insurance now in force. Some small fragment of this doubtless was bought with the proceeds of speculation, but by far the greater part stands as a mighty symbol of the inherent economic soundness as well as the far-sighted frugality of our nation.

"After all, the volume of our purchasing power measures the heights of living standards; it is the impressive manifestation of our highest wage rates. And, basically, our normal purchasing power has not been appreciably impaired. Regardless of regrettable speculative uncertainty, the industrial and commercial structure of the nation is sound."

months of 1929 show 15.82 per cent. upon the common stock outstanding, as compared with 8.17 per cent. for the same period of 1928. In the light of these earnings the directors today voted an extra dividend of 1 per cent. upon the common stock.

The earnings of $72,009,666, for the three months, after deductions for interest on bonds of subsidiary companies, were a gain of more than $20,000,000 over the same quarter in 1928, when the earnings were reported as $52,148,476. The net profit for the September quarter of this year of $51,575,850 compares with $29,886,259 for the corresponding period of 1928.

A comparison of the earnings after subsidiary bond interest deductions for each of the three months of the quarter reported yesterday with the same months of 1928 follows:

	1929.	1928.
July	$24,303,056	$16,135,676
August	24,897,993	18,397,178
September	21,182,596	17,417,619

$5.57 a Share in Quarter.

The earnings of $5.57 a quarter on the common stock compares with earnings of $6.68 a share for the three months ended on June 30, 1929, and earnings of $3.31 for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1928.

The income account for the quarters ended Sept. 30, 1929 and 1928, compares as follows:

	1929.	1928.
Depletion, &c.	18,819,381	17,775,018
Net income	53,354,320	34,373,458
Bond interest	1,778,970	4,487,199
Net profit	51,575,350	29,886,259
Preferred dividends	6,304,919	6,304,919
Common dividends	22,360,984	12,453,417
Surplus	22,909,447	11,127,923

The income account for the first nine months of this year compared with the corresponding period of 1928 follows:

	1929.	1928.
Depletion, &c.	47,455,607	40,305,094

Common dividends	49,807,427	37,990,933
Surplus	79,804,450	20,811,188

The total surplus as of Dec. 31, 1928, was $377,185,367, and with the amount added to surplus in the nine months of this year the surplus on Sept. 30, 1929, amounted to $456,989,823.

The United States Steel Corporation yesterday announced that an extension of its option for the purchase of the Columbia Steel Corporation had been made until tomorrow. This announcement came at the close of the quarterly meeting of the board and none of the directors would enlarge on the statement of the two days' extension on the option for the acquisition of the largest of the West Coast steel companies.

RESERVE BOARD SEES ACTION NOT NEEDED

of 1920. It is understood that it was kept closely informed of the progress of the New York market situation during the day and was in frequent touch with the New York Federal Reserve Bank, while officials of leading banks in New York were reported to have conferred with members of the board relative to the government's position.

Late in the day the board was reported to be awaiting a report from a meeting of the directorate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. The report eventually was received, but, whatever its nature, it did not cause the Reserve Board to take action. No one was willing to forecast developments which might be expected within the next few days.

BANK RATE CUT EXPECTED.

As developments of the day pointed to increasing ease in credit, banking opinion in Wall Street yesterday reached the conclusion that a reduction in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York was sure to be ordered at tomorrow's meeting of the directors. Although call money advanced from the renewal rate of 5 per cent to 6 per cent in response to the calling of $150,000,000 in loans, rates on bankers' acceptances were again slashed one-eighth of 1 per cent and other branches of credit displayed ease.

The calling of loans which developed during the day was largely the result of withdrawal of funds by out-of-town and non-banking lenders.

Rates on bankers' acceptances are now down one-half of 1 per cent from the levels which obtained since last August and leaves the bill buying rate of the Federal Reserve far out of line with the actual market.

The new rates are 4¾ per cent bid, 4⅞ per cent asked for 30, 60 and 90 day bills; 4⅞ per cent bid, 4¾ per cent asked for four months' bills, and 5 per cent bid, 4⅞ per cent asked for five and six months' bills.

Tomorrow's statement of brokers' loans is expected to show a record-breaking decrease. Some put the figure at $750,000,000.

COMMENT OF PRESS ON CRASH IN STOCKS

General View Is That It Has Run Its Course and That Basic Condition Is Sound.

NO 'CATASTROPHE' IS SEEN

Transitory Forces Held to Be Behind Decline With Prosperity Not Affected.

Following is comment from sections of the nation's press on the drastic declines in the stock markets:

NEW YORK.
No Catastrophe Is Seen.

From The World.

What can be said, and what very much needs to be said, is that, however sour things may look to individuals at the moment, the country has not suffered a catastrophe. Its power to produce wealth is unimpaired; its power to consume wealth is unimpaired. There will be many cases of individual hardship, but no hardship like that which is almost normal in other countries. In very large degree the present excitement on the Stock Exchange is concerned with a gambler's change of fortune in the distribution of the surplus luxury money. The American people has been gambling furiously, but it has been gambling largely with the surplus of its astonishing prosperity.

Finds "Feeling" Better.

From The Evening Post.

The "feeling" is better. This is the "news" of the stock market situation today. It is important. The situation, as the bankers' conference said in effect last night, is as much based on feeling as on anything else. There is no doubt that the tension of feeling is lessened here in Wall Street. Had there been quicker price transmission to the industrial heart of America we believe that a great part of the sales rush might have been averted.

Productive Powers Unharmed.

From The Daily News.

The sagging of the stocks has not destroyed a single factory, wiped out a single farm or city lot or real estate development, decreased the productive powers of a single workman or machine in the United States. All those things are still there, and when they are essentially sound, as this country is, the more magnificently they recover.

NEWARK.
Urges End of Mob Movement.

From The Star-Eagle.

While stock prices crumble, those who watch the collapse of their dreams cannot be blamed for taking desperate chances to save something from the ruins. Stock market onlookers, those who have lost nothing or who have gotten clear without damage, are the persons who must be depended upon in the present emergency to destore sanity, avert calamity and save the country from the advarse effects of a blind and foolish mob movement.

Fundamental Conditions Good.

From The Evening News.

The President was undoubtedly correct in saying that fundamental conditions are good, if he meant that there is a solid cushion toward which a declining trend can look with comfort and confidence. It has been necessary since this year opened to look in that direction, and the making of a beginning toward getting there has been too long deferred. That is the indication of all the figures which are now appearing.

SYRACUSE.
Some Knew When to Sell.

From The Post Standard.

Onefact which has not been emphasized when the stock market spectacle is being considered is that thousands tof selling orders have poured into Wall Street from those who know how and when to lose. There are thousands who have protected their principal by selling before all of their profits, in paper, were gone.

TROY.
Values Are Unchanged.

From The Morning Record.

Values have not changed. Inflated prices were bound to disappear when something or somebody pricked the bubble. Values are still there. We can still afford to be bulls on the United States.

BUFFALO.
Warnings Not Heeded.

From The Courier Express.

The attitude of the Federal Reserve Board toward the use of tremendous sums of money in the orgy of speculation that gripped the country for more than a year undoubtedly carried a warning that was heeded by many in the stock market, but to many others * * * the warnings to banks and the increases in the rediscount rate were merely news items of the day. And, unfortunately, the latter class was preponderant in the present market.

HARTFORD.
Not a Reserve Board Function.

From The Courant.

Day by day the expectations of a brightening rift in the financial horizon fail to materialize. The panicky state of mind is purely psychological. Out of the depths are heard calls for help by the Federal Reserve Board. This is not a function of the Federal Reserve.

BALTIMORE.
Calls Forces Transitory.

From The Sun.

The stock market crash obviously is the result of many forces, most of them transitory and all of them combined incapable of upsetting the firm base of prosperity. An aspect of the crash, however, that is perfectly obvious to anyone who reads is that it is an inevitable reaction to a consistent post-war Republican policy of pumping artificial stimulants into the economic system.

CHICAGO.
Bargain Prices Seen.

From The Herald and Examiner.

hTe Stock Exchange has become the bargain counter of the world. It is difficult to believe that financial shoppers in this country and abroad will not take advantage of the low prices at which the very best of securities are selling. Although losses suffered by the public have been enormous, a group of investors, numbering thousand, escaped uninjured and is now ready to take advantage of the break.

ST. LOUIS.
Country "Well Fortified."

From The Globe Democrat.

The country is too well fortified by its business and financial conditions to be materially disturbed. It was not a consequence of any impairment of these conditions, which have never been more favorable than they are at this time.

Market Called "Chance."

From The Post-Dispatch.

Since the stock market never did represent anything better than chance, it is not reasonable to suppose that the mischance of a day is going to make it very much different. There is always plenty of chance.

LOUISVILLE.
Nothing Unsound at Bottom.

From The Courier-Journal.

There is nothing fundamentally unsound behind the commotion on the Stock Exchange. Such a commotion has been long overdue, as the logical result of excessive speculation which has pushed up and kept up prices to figures which in many instances were artificial conditions will right themselves without serious injury to the country or to the market.

Grain Stronger After Crash.

From The Herald-Post.

While Wall Street was getting rid of its weak holder to their own most drastic punishment, grain was stronger. That will go to the credit side of the national prosperity and help replace that buying power which some fear has been gravely impaired.

KANSAS CITY, MO.
Demand for Expansion.

From The Star.

Now that the inevitable deflation has come, business conditions remain essentially sound with expanding demand throughout the world. With market uncertainties virtually at an end, and with credit being released from Wall Street for ordinary business uses, the way is prepared for a further advance in industry.

TULSA, OKLA.
Fears Blow to Structure.

From The World.

The continuous performance in the Stock Market indicates that professional and amateur speculators refuse to be impressed by the uneasiness of business and the public generally. Allowing the craze to run its course may not save the speculators and investing interests and may endanger the entire country. The financial structure has so far withstood the confusion, but further wildness is certain to undermine confidence and cause widespread disturbances.

INVESTMENT TRUSTS SUPPORTING MARKET

With Huge Cash Reserves, They Place Buying Orders to Aid Wavering Market.

A moderate amount of support was accorded to the stock market yesterday by several investment trusts which had maintained large cash reserves, it was reported in Wall Street last night. Many investment trust executives remained in communication with brokers on the floor of the Stock Exchange, and inserted scale orders or market orders when it became apparent that certain issues were engulfed with selling orders. The supporting orders of the trusts followed the lead of the banking pool and was said to have been the result of an exchange of messages on Monday evening between prominent bankers and investment trust executives.

While the investment trusts did not launch a concerted buying movement, their individual orders buoyed a wavering market at times when it appeared that there was no resistance to the country-wide wave of liquidation. The cash resources of the trusts, which were estimated at $500,000,000 several days ago, were reported to have declined sharply during the first two days of this week, as a result of scale purchases.

Louis H. Seagrave, president of United Founders Corporation and the American Founders Corporation, announced that the corporations had cash amounting to more than $48,000,000 and that they had been buying carefully selected American stocks Monday and yesterday.

Warder Jury Aks for Stock News.

While the stock market is turning acrobatic flip-flops in Wall Street, the twelve business men on the jury which is listening to the evidence against Frank H. Warder, former Superintendent of Banks, on trial for bribery in the Criminal Courts Building, must sit passively in the court room during trading hours. They were instructed by the court to refrain from newspaper reading for the duration of the trial.

But their interest in what is happening in Wall Street was plainly indicated yesterday when, during the mid-morning recess, they sent a court attendant to the press table to learn the latest stock market news.

Stock Letters Sent Out Last Night Marked by Expression of Confidence.

SEE PRICES BELOW VALUES

Some Do Not Expect an Immediate Turn, but Others Say a Sharp Recovery Is In Order.

The opinions of some of the leading wire houses as expressed in their stock letters sent out to branch offices and customers last night follow:

Hornblower & Weeks—Even in this abnormal market yesterday's amazing volume would seem to indicate that the process of liquidation was in its final stages. This point of view is also substantiated by the slight rally at the close and the confidence which the steel directors place in the situation by augmenting their dividend. In any case, real values are being thoroughly disregarded on the downside to a degree that cannot long obtain.

Cluett & Co.—High type of stock thrown on the market at this time in large volume indicates that the big traders and many so-called investment trusts, rather than the general public, were forced out yesterday. We do not expect an immediate turn in the market for quick profits, but do believe that purchase of sound securities around current levels will prove a profitable investment over a period of time.

E. F. Hutton & Co.—As an indication of the low prices which many outstanding issues have attained, it is interesting to consider that at times today Chrysler was selling at a level where it had 71 cents working capital for every dollar a share the stock was selling at in the market. International Harvester sold down to a level where it had 67 cents working capital for every dollar it sold at a share in the market. Similarly, United States Steel had 33 cents, Anaconda 29 cents, Famous Players 26 cents and General Foods over 40 cents. We don't think the market calls for any further comment.

F. B. Keech & Co.—Now, at last, stocks may be safely recommended both as investments and for the speculative turn. Prices in many instances are far below intrinsic value, and liquidation in many quarters is believed to have run its course. Considering the extreme extent of the deflation, a very sharp recovery is in order.

Jackson Bros., Boesel & Co.—Some very clear-cut indications came to hand in the afternoon session of yesterday's record-breaking market that forced selling had been practically completed and that the stock market had touched the natural bottom.

LA GUARDIA PUSHES ROTHSTEIN CHARGES

SEES PAYROLL PADDING

Candidate's Work in Congress Praised in Endorsement by Dr. Butler.

Nothing less than a grand jury investigation, Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican-Fusion nominee for Mayor, said last night would meet the situation he has brought to light in connection with the Arnold Rothstein "phantom village" built near Maspeth in Queens. He charges the murdered gambler's development was intended to advance the condemnation value of the land on a prospect that the city would want it. Mr. La Guardia spoke at several meetings in the Bronx.

In view of the fact that men in politics and public life were mixed up in the operations, he said, he would expect the District Attorney of Queens to demand that he be superseded and the Attorney General take over the investigation and any prosecution that might follow. Mr. La Guardia said that Rothstein and his associates, of whom one, he declared, was Maurice B. Connolly, former Borough President of Queens, were playing for a $10,000,000 stake.

Sees Payroll Padding.

Payroll padding at the public baths maintained by the city was another charge made by the Republican candidate. The modus operandi, as he described it, was to show inu the daily reports a vastly greater attendance than there had been in order to justify the larger expenditures for service involved in the padding.

"I have a list showing that where the bath attendants reported 15,320 bathers in twelve days, the actual count totaled 6,599—a difference of 8,721 persons," Mr. La Guardia said after a recital of a number of specific instances of false reports relating to attendance. He told of one instance where a clergyman in Harlem whose church adjoined one of the city's free baths had been asked one Sunday to bring around his entire Sunday school class in order to enable that particular bath to make a good showing. The clergyman had indignantly declined, Mr. La Guardia said, to be a party to such dishonesty.

"The mysterious Rothstein village cannot be laughed away by Mayor Walker," Mr. La Guardia said. "Neither will I permit it to be forgotten by the ominous silence of Connolly, Curry and the rest of the Tammany satellites.

"Rothstein and his Tammany friends were playing with loaded dice and the public did not have a chance. It was either street openings through the property—enormous awards; or an airport taking all of the land—enormous awards—or the property taken for a park, resulting again in enormous awards. The Rothstein-Connolly Maspeth land scheme was one of the most desperate schemes ever launched to mulct a public treasury of millions. Only murder frustrated the realization of their plans. Only the death of Rothstein and the disgrace of Connolly prevented it and, perhaps, the disclosures I have been making."

"How does he know?" was all Major La Guardia would say when asked to comment on the charge made by Norman Thomas, Socialist Mayoralty nominee, in a speech on Monday night to the effect that the Republicans in certain districts were in a deal with Tammany and betraying their own candidate for Mayor in the interest of their local candidates. He said that Tammany was exercising widespread intimidation of the voters and was instituting a reign of terror in advance of the coming election, unexampled since the days of Tweed.

"But that," he said, "is not a new discovery on the part of my workers. It is one of my issues in this campaign."

Butler Praises La Guardia.

Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, vice chairman of the Republican State Committee, read last night over radio station WMCA an endorsement of Mr. La Guardia's candidacy by her father, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. In his statement Dr. Butler said that the election lay between Mayor Walker and Major La Guardia and a vote for Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate, was a vote thrown away.

"It is plain that Major La Guardia has grown in public esteem, as his vigorous campaign has gone forward," the statement read in part. "No one doubts his honesty or his intelligence and in the House of Representatives he has been taking a most effective and excellent part. He is both aggressive and progressive. The program which he offers is enlightened and forward-looking."

What was termed a protest, signed by 150 German-American voters, against the attempt of the Steuben Society to "deliver" the German-American vote to Mayor Walker was made public yesterday by Keyes Winter, campaign manager of Major La Guardia.

"Americans of German or Austrian extraction do not vote in blocks," the protest read. "They cannot be delivered in blocks. Mayor Walker's attempt to treat them as a racial bloc is an affront to them. They form their opinions and act for themselves. For this reason most of them will vote for Congressman La Guardia for Mayor, because conditions in this city show that a change is absolutely necessary."

Mr. La Guardia tomorrow evening will be the guest at a reception by society women at the Savoy-Plaza. Mrs. Ruth B. Pratt, Member of Congress, will preside and Mr. La Guardia and Mrs. Grace Vanamee, Republican candidate for Register, will speak.

THOMAS ASKS SMITH TO SPEAK FOR WALKER

Socialist Candidate Wants Him to Answer Questions He Says Mayor Ignored.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, challenged former Governor Alfred E. Smith last night to discuss the campaign issues which Mr. Thomas said Mayor Walker had refused to discuss and to answer the questions which he said the Mayor had ignored.

"If Mayor Walker will not answer these questions," Mr. Thomas said in a radio speech over Station WOR, "I must ask his spokesman, ex-Governor Smith, to do it."

The Socialist candidate first expressed his sympathy with the former Governor for his "present embarrassing position." There is "an irony that comes very close to tragedy in the endorsement of Jimmy Walker and his Tammany administration by Al Smith," he said, for "every New Yorker knows that in his heart of hearts Mr. Smith loathes the tactics of the present City Administration and that time and again Tammany has rejected that which is nearest and dearest to Mr. Smith."

"But I hope that Mr. Smith will discuss the issues, and will not be led by party loyalty to a mere presentation of generalities," Mr. Thomas added.

The Socialist candidate then challenged former Governor Smith to answer the series of questions put by Mr. Thomas to Mayor Walker, on the "Equitable bus deal," the failure of the administration to put busses on the streets, its record on housing, its budget increases, the character of its school administration, its lack of relief for unemployment, the public utility situation and other issues. These questions, Mr. Thomas said, "are legitimate questions that have not been answered except as we Socialists have attempted to present our program."

Endorses Both Callaghan and Dodd.

Both Supreme Court Justice Stephen Callaghan, of Brooklyn, candidate for re-election on the Republican and Square Deal tickets, and District Attorney Charles J. Dodd, his Democratic opponent, have received the endorsement of the Brooklyn Bar Association, as being "eminently qualified for the office." In THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, a headline over an account of the Bar Association's action said that the organization "favored the re-election" of Justice Callaghan, although the story said that Justice Callaghan and District Attorney Dodd were both deemed qualified "by ability, character, integrity, legal attainments, temperament and learning."

CITY PENSION PLAN HIT AS RAID BY ARON

He Charges in Bronx That Changes in Old Law Open Way to "Refined Graft."

CITES WALKER ALLOWANCE

Changes in the pension and retirement laws, made to benefit Tammany officeholders in high-salaried positions, which will add $50,000,000 to the cost of the city administration without any increase in the number of beneficiaries from the city's pension system, were charged to the Walker Administration by Harold G. Aron, Republican-Fusion nominee for Controller, in an address last night at Public School 80, Mosholu Parkway and Van Cortlandt Street, the Bronx.

Mr. Aron said the changes were largely unjustified and would result in wholly undeserved benefits to favored individuals and groups in the city service. The total outlay next year, he said, would be $14,985,275, representing an increase over this year of $2,910,286, due to the changes.

Mr. Aron said, as originally conceived, the pension system was justified and economically sound, with contributions to the annuity fund on a proper actuarial basis and the annuities virtually self-sustaining.

"But those who sponsored the system," he added, "did not foresee the astute greediness of the present city administration; perhaps they felt that the pension system, at least, would be held inviolate from political favoritism and distortion. The passage of a number of apparently innocuous amendments to the law beginning in 1927 and becoming fully effective in 1929-1930, opened the door to an unwarranted raid upon the municipal treasury for the enrichment of special individuals or groups at the expense of the taxpayers as a whole.

"It is said that the New Tammany has graduated from the days of collection of graft for the protection of vice and that such crude forms of plunder as in the Queens sewer scandal, are not sanctioned by the leaders. We have heard also of the ethical distinctions between graft and 'honest graft' now being recognized in the better circles. But here in the pension business there is a still more astute refinement in the art of mulcting the taxpayers; there has now, so to speak, been discovered the new principle of graft in perpetuity and political rewards which run 'until death do us part.'"

The first change to which Mr. Aron made reference made the average salary for the last five instead of the last ten years of service the basis for computing annuities. While not benefiting the rank and file appreciably, he said, this change did greatly benefit a limited number of highly paid officials.

"It will benefit, most of all, a few political leaders who, when near the pensionable age, are purposely designated by Tammany Hall a few years prior to their contemplated retirement to highly remunarative jobs. It is easy as a result of this amendment for a man high in favor with Tammany Hall, by ending his service with such a job, to double or triple the pension he would have received for his twenty-five or thirty years of service, computed under the original provisions of the law."

Mr. Aron gave as instances the case of Mayor Walker, entitled under the original law to retirement allowance of $40,000; under the new of $80,000. For Controller Berry, he said, the corresponding figures were $30,000 and $110,000; for Sheriff Culkin, $35,000 and $90,000. John H. McCooey, owing to a recent legislative increase in his salary would receive a retirement allowance of the value of $80,000.

Another amendment, he said, placed the retirement age at 55 instead of 60 years and provided for an optional contribution plan under which officials in position to make substantial contributions from their own pocket during a few years would receive $1,000 from the city for every $100 contributed by themselves.

BACK GAVAGAN IN ELECTION

Endorsements by former Governor Alfred E. Smith and Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of Assemblyman Joseph A. Gavagan, Democratic candidate for Representative in the Twenty-first Congressional District, were made public yesterday by Mr. Gavagan's campaign committee.

"I congratulate you and hope very sincerely for your election, to the end that you may be able to serve the country in the larger legislative body with the same intelligence and fidelity with which you served the State in the State Assembly during my Governorship," Mr. Smith wrote.

UNION LEADER FINDS LABOR FOR WALKER

Joseph P. Ryan, Head of Trades Council, Holds Only Red Group Backs La Guardia.

6,000 ENDORSE TICKET

Excavators and Builders Local Acts in Support of the Democratic Candidates.

The assertion of supporters of F. H. La Guardia, Republican candidate for Mayor, that he will receive the support of organized labor on Election Day, was denied yesterday by Joseph P. Ryan, president of the Central Trades and Labor Council. Mr. Ryan said that Mr. La Guardia had supported a certain faction of workers associated with the communistic group which seeks the destruction of the organized labor movement. He declared that the present city administration had shown its friendship for labor and that the result on election day would demonstrate that the workers were for Walker, Berry and McKee.

"The claim of the so-called Republican candidate that he will receive the support of labor on election day is unfounded," Mr. Ryan said. "His record discloses that he has supported a certain faction of workers associated with the communistic group which has for its objective the destruction of the organized labor movement of this country.

"The present city administration during the past four years has given evidence of its friendship and support to the toilers of our city, and responsible organized labor has demonstrated its appreciation by endorsing re-election of the Walker-Berry-McKee ticket.

"The workers of this city have intelligence enough to vote in their own best interests. They cannot be hamboozled or humhugged, and this will be demonstrated clearly to the so-called Republican candidate by the vote cast by our membership on election day."

The candidacy of Mayor Walker, Controller Berry and Aldermanic President McKee was endorsed yesterday by the Excavators' and Building Laborers' Union, Local 731. According to Raffaele di Pietro, its president, this local has a membership of 6,000.

The candidates on the Democratic city ticket also have been endorsed by the Irish-American Citizens' League of Queens County and the New York Young Croatian American Club.

HELP WALKER WIN, SMITH ASKS QUEENS

LAUDS COX AND NEWCOMBE

"Whale of a City Needs a Whale of a Budget," He Says—Replies to La Guardia on Commission.

Asserting that the increased cost of government was unavoidable, and not a political issue, former Governor Alfred E. Smith urged last night the election of the Democratic nominees for city offices on their records as directors of a great business organization, the government of the City of New York.

Mr. Smith, who spoke at Public School 93, Ridgewood, Queens, in his second appearance in this campaign, rectified the omission in his first speech at Tammany Hall, when he did not mention Mayor Walker by name. Even in his Ridgewood speech he did not single out the Mayor for separate mention but joined him with the two other Democratic nominees on the city ticket at the very end of his address by urging the re-election of Walker, Berry and McKee.

Mr. Smith endorsed County Clerk Edward W. Cox, Democratic nominee for Borough President of Queens and the Democratic candidates for Queens County offices. He not only mentioned each by name but had a complimentary word or two to say of Mr. Cox, District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe, candidate for Surrogate, and Alderman Samuel J. Burden, candidate for Sheriff.

Many Unable to Get Into Hall.

The hall was crowded, with about 1,500 men and women in the auditorium and about 800 outside. The former Governor was received enthusiastically. Mr. Cox and most of the other Queens Democratic nominees preceded Mr. Smith as speakers.

"The Borough of Queens is represented in the directorate by three directors at large that they have an opportunity to vote for, and one special director that they elect from their own borough," Mr. Smith said. "This special director is known as the Borough President.

"I knew your candidate for Borough President back in the days when I presided over the Aldermanic Board. I have known Ed Cox, and I have known his devotion to public service. He put himself to a test among the rank and file of the party in this county under a direct nominating system that was of Democratic birth and origin. Every man who believes in democratic government ought to stand behind the man that came through the fire of a direct primary campaign.

"Now, I could spend a good deal of time talking about your local ticket, about Peter McGarry and about Dick Newcombe. Newcombe helped me at Albany as much as any other man in the State.

Smith Praises Burden.

"I could talk about my friend Burden, who was in the Assembly and left that dignified body to become an Alderman. Why, I never knew. Now he wants to be Sheriff. I am satisfied because I was a Sheriff myself one time. It is a position of great dignity but of few duties.

"I can commend them all in a blanket sentence to the Democrats of Queens County as representing as good a line of talent as the State could offer to the suffrage of the people of the county, and I strongly recommend the big three in the directorate of this city to the end that the public work begun may be carried on to successful fruition, that the record of constructive improvement and achievement may be augmented by their labors in the next four years by their election of that directorate, not only of your own director from Queens but the three directors at large, Walker, Berry and McKee."

At the beginning of his speech Mr. Smith discussed the five proposed constitutional amendments and the two questions to be voted upon Tuesday and urged a favorable vote on all.

Mr. Smith replied to the recent proposal of Representative F. H. La Guardia, Republican nominee for Mayor, to appoint him chairman of a non-partisan commission to reorganize the city government, in urging an affirmative vote in the referendum for the creation of a city sanitation commission.

Sees Bureau Merging on Way.

"This, I believe is the beginning of a consolidation of scattered bureaus and departments," Mr. Smith said. "I certainly believe that this should be done but it could have been done last March were it not for the failure of the Republican Legislature to pass the sanitation commission bill.

"We don't want to take too much stock in campaign talk about consolidation of departments, because this is October, when everybody is looking for votes."

Mr. Smith asserted that Mr. La Guardia had said a short time ago that the 1930 budget was "a whale of a budget."

"Why of course it is," the former Governor added. "New York is a whale of a city, and you cannot feed the needs of the city on anything short of whale food. Now, if the people of the city are prepared to reduce it to the proportion of a sardine, then the expenses can be cut down. But, before we do that, the burden clearly rests upon the shoulders of the party in opposition to show how it can be done."

Mr. Smith added that the cost of the New York City Government increased every year and would continue to increase, and that this was true of every town, village and city in the country. "It is even true of the Federal Government," he continued.

Mr. Smith recalled that he had met successfully the increased cost of government issue when he defeated Ogden L. Mills, Republican candidate for Governor, in 1926. The present city administration, he declared, stood upon its record for giving service for the money appropriated to run the government and asked for re-election on that record.

THOMAS WOULD GIVE DEWEY SCHOOL POST

Calls on Walker to Appoint Columbia Professor to Fill Education Board Vacancy.

CHARGES A BUREAUCRACY

Parties and Church Bodies Dominate System, He Says—Finds None of Superintendents Outstanding.

Calling on Mayor Walker to appoint Professor John Dewey of Columbia University to fill the vacancy on the Board of Education caused by the death of M. Samuel Stern, Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, concluded yesterday his attack upon the present school administration and outlined, in four speeches last night, the Socialist party's school program of "a scientific attempt to substitute intelligent democracy for bureaucratic red tape."

Lack of proper sanitary provisions in the schools was charged by Mr. Thomas in releasing yesterday for publication a fifth and last instalment from the 1924 Cooperative and Constructive School Survey, not yet published by the Board of Education, for which it was made. The report declared that "New York City is not providing a high degree of cleanliness in its schools," adding that "it is a revolting thought that children in the schools do not have any kind of soap and towel service." Lack of centralized responsibility was given as "one of the chief causes of conditions of uncleanliness and disrepair."

"The death of M. Samuel Stern, vice president of the Board of Education," Mr. Thomas said in his speeches last night, "makes it appropriate that I do two things: acknowledge the fact that members of the board, like the late Mr. Stern, have given years of service to an unpaid task of high public importance, and suggest to Mayor Walker that he has a marvelous opportunity to fill the vacancy by the appointment of an educator of the calibre, range of experience and breadth of vision of Professor John Dewey."

Mr. Thomas promised that if he had the opportunity he would appoint Professor Dewey to the post.

A Socialist administration, he declared, would "have its schools attempt to develop personalities rather than breed automatons and Babbitts; make educational appointments only after consultation with recognized authorities and organizations; have the Board of Superintendents supplanted by an advisory council representative of the entire system; give the Superintendent of Schools responsibility for executive leadership; extend and enforce the merit system; build smaller schools; strive to adapt courses of study to the pupils' needs; reorganize school health work; create a child guidance bureau; reorganize the teachers' training schools, and reform the continuation and night schools."

Mr. Thomas would limit the size of the schools, he said, so that they would not "become educational factories." He would extend the merit system, he said, to the choice of appointees to higher positions. He would appoint to the Board of Education only men and women in sympathy with these general educational ideas, he said, but would not attempt to dictate to them in any way the details of their work.

The machinery of the present school system, the Socialist candidate charged, is "a bureaucracy influenced by politics of parties and ecclesiastical groups," and the members of the Board of Education are political appointees "of mediocre ability and limited vision."

"I now turn to the personnel of the Board of Superintendents," Mr. Thomas continued. "It is a question whether any one of them in direct charge of the greatest educational system in America is today an outstanding educator at the height of his mental and physical vigor. Certainly Superintendent O'Shea is a man utterly without educational distinction, who was put into his high office when his predecessor, W. L. Ettinger, was forced out for refusing to do the political bidding of Mayor Hylan.

"Edward Mandel is a man of some ability, but he has sponsored educational ripper bills, acted as Red hunter and at all times played politics to the advantage of himself and his personal followers whom he has placed in high positions. Superintendent William A. Boylan's chief qualification seems to have been that he was once Mayor Walker's teacher, just as Superintendent Margaret McCosey's qualification is that she is sister to the boss of Brooklyn who has done so amazingly well by his family.

"Joseph M. Sheehan was elected Associate Superintendent by Mayor Walker's board at a time when he was under charges of gross irregularities and unprofessional conduct by his colleagues on the Board of Examiners, which charges were sustained by President Ryan of the Board of Education, who was appointed to investigate. President Ryan's decision was sustained by the State Commissioner of Education, Dr. Frank P. Graves, on appeal, but in the meanwhile Mr. Sheehan had been removed by being promoted.

"It is entirely natural that such a Board of Superintendents should have made their own promotions to high educational posts in the exempt class on the basis of religious, social and political pull of the sort which has been described by the Teachers' Union and the Public Education Association in illuminating detail."

The three great evils in the present system, Mr. Thomas declared, are the influence of reactionary organizations posing as patriotic groups, the "shocking condition of the continuation schools" and the "overcrowding and incompetence in evening schools." He also criticized the lack of a proper health inspection and "especially the lack of a child hygiene bureau."

Dr. Holmes recommended provision of towel and soap service in the schools, of shower bath facilities, of running water on every floor or in every classroom and of cleaning by vacuum. Cleanliness of schools should be "akin to that of hospitals, first-class apartment houses and hotels," he said. He found "no common standards governing the cleaning of school buildings."

The Board of Education announced last night that 1,000 copies of the complete report made by the survey committee had been received from the printers. It is expected that copies will be available for distribution today. Mr. Thomas's comment was: "I wish all my questions in this campaign had been answered with the promptitude the board has met the demand that it publish the survey."

HARVEY SEES NEW ERA DAWNING FOR QUEENS

Elimination of Connolly Has Laid Basis for Prosperity and Rapid Growth, He Says.

Smashing of the sewer ring and ending control of the borough by the faction headed by former Borough President Maurice E. Connolly has lifted the barriers that were impeding business and industrial development in Queens, Borough President George U. Harvey declared last night in speeches throughout the borough.

"The elimination of graft and corruption from public office has brought Queens into the first phase of a new era of development which will see this community grow to a great Empire City within its own boundaries," Mr. Harvey said. "The growth that is possible now was not possible when the old graft ring was in power. But the progress of the community is threatened by the old political reactionaries who through Edward W. Cox are trying to get back into seats of power."

Fred Sasse, campaign manager for Mr. Harvey, repeated his charge that Mr. Connolly and his associates were backing Mr. Cox, the Democratic nominee for Borough President. He belittled Mr. Cox's promise to appoint experts to borough offices if he should be elected and asked whether John Theofel, Deputy County Clerk and Queens Democratic leader, and other employes of the County Clerk's office were to be regarded as experts in their jobs. Each of these members of the County Clerk's staff, he added, were formerly associated with Mr. Connolly.

KNIGHT WON'T AID ENRIGHT FOR INQUIRY

Senate Leader Tells Ex-Police Head He Will Not Urge Crime Investigation on Governor.

BUT CRITICIZES ROOSEVELT

Charges Intentional Ignoring of Complaints of Conditions Here—Pledges Action in January.

Former Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, candidate for Mayor on the Square Deal ticket, made public yesterday a letter from Senator John Knight in which the Republican leader of the State Senate stated his opposition to calling upon Governor Roosevelt for a legislative inquiry into crime conditions in New York City at this time. Senator Knight criticized the Governor, however, for having "intentionally ignored complaints regarding crime conditions in New York City."

In a telegram to the Senator, Mr. Enright had suggested that he request the Governor to call a special session of the Legislature to bring about an investigation of "graft, vice and corruption" in the municipal government here. Senator Knight's reply follows:

Arcade, N. Y.
Oct. 22, 1929.

Mr. Richard E. Enright,
51 East Forty-second Street,
New York City.

My Dear Sir:

I have your letter of the 19th, and your telegram of the 20th. The Governor has intentionally ignored complaints regarding crime conditions in New York City. He has not met the responsibility which rests upon him in respect to these. He has plenty of authority indicated by investigations started in other localities.

You will understand the Governor alone has the authority to call the Legislature into extraordinary session. There is no authority in any one to compel him to do this.

If he will not investigate under his present authority to do so, without doubt he will not call an extra session. I am sure the Republicans will act with him in any extra session to bring a thorough investigation of these conditions to your city.

As I have said before, in case nothing is done until the Legislature convenes in regular session, I shall favor a resolution to institute an investigation by legislative authority. The Legislature will be convened within approximately two months. A request by me now to the Governor to call an extraordinary session will be construed as being done for political effect.

For the above reason I do not deem it advisable to make the request you suggest.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN KNIGHT.

Commenting on the letter, Mr. Enright said:

"Senator Knight is right. The Tammany Governor will not investigate anything in the Tammany Hall city of New York, but he will investigate everything in the Republican counties of New York State.

"The State Banking Department has been guilty of gross neglect and maladministration as shown by the City Trust failure. Besides State Banking Superintendent Warder, Judge Mancuso and a few individuals of no particular importance, why didn't they investigate some of the big fish of Tammany Hall?

"It will be a gross neglect of duty if the Legislature fails to provide a Senatorial investigation which will reach into every department of this city."

At a dinner dance held last night in the Hotel Brevoort, given under the auspices of the Greenwich Village Historical Society, Mrs. Catherine Parker Cuvette, candidate of the Square Deal party for President of the Board of Aldermen, said she expected to be defeated but predicted a different result in 1932.

PUTS QUERY TO BERTINI IN A CONTRACT DEAL

Groehl Aide Says He Was in Titus Water Co., Which Put $7,000,000 Proposal Up to City.

Amadeo A. Bertini, Tammany candidate for Judge of the Court of General Sessions, to succeed Francis X. Mancuso, was an incorporator of the Titus Water Engineering Corporation, which in 1926 tried to obtain a contract from the Board of Estimate, according to a statement made public yesterday by George H. Bell, campaign manager for former Magistrate Frederick J. Groehl, Bertini's Republican opponent. The contract, it was said, involved payment by the city of upward of $7,000,000 to provide an "emergency" supply of water from wells driven in Long Island.

According to the Citizens Union the scheme was "sort of a gamble with the city for development of ground waters on Long Island," under a contract pronounced by the union "decidedly loose and intangible in terms." The union also said that the Mayor "dallied with the proposal for months" until in 1928, after a wholly unfavorable report from the Board of Water Supply and under severe pressure from civic bodies, the Board of Estimate dropped it.

Associated with Mr. Bertini in the incorporation, according to Bell's statement, was Humbert J. Fugazy, a prizefight and sports promoter; Austin Titus, who, after the failure of the plan, was appointed Secretary of the Police Department, and William Long, once affiliated with the late Big Tim Sullivan. The incorporation papers show, according to the statement, that the corporation was authorized to issue 100 shares of stock, of which the incorporators, among whom was included Walter E. Titus, a brother of Austin, held one share each. Holders of the other ninety-five shares, if issued, have not been revealed.

"Judge Bertini should promptly tell the public all about the Titus Water Engineering Corporation, its backers, its qualifications for undertaking to supply water to a large community and why Mr. Titus, if capable to carry out a contract involving millions, gave up his connection with the corporation to become secretary of the Police Department, while Judge Bertini became a candidate for judge of the Court of General Sessions, a field in which he had had no previous experience," Mr. Bell said in his statement.

George C. Norton, campaign manager for Mr. Bertini, issued last night a reply in which he said:

"This project was a legitimate one. The proposal of this perfectly responsible corporation was to supply the city at the lowest price and under the most favorable conditions with water. It had the approval of the Merchants Association, of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, of the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce and a number of other civic bodies. There was nothing to be paid by the city unless the water was actually supplied.

"Mr. Groehl's managers having asked some questions about a perfectly legitimate, open-and-above-board transaction, it is pertinent that Judge Bertini's friends ask a few questions concerning the activities of Mr. Groehl.

"Is it true that Frederick J. Groehl was the president of the Associated Business Men's Protective League, Inc., which issued membership cards bearing a signature in the handwriting of Mr. Groehl as president; that the purpose of the protective league was to procure relief from jury service and the discharge of the members from criminal involvement; that Mr. Groehl received a salary of $7,500 per annum, rendering no service except the signing of the membership cards, which were used for blackmail purposes; that the high-power salesman, Norman C. Moser of the league, was charged in the magistrate's court with this offense, was defended by Mr. Groehl, held for the Court of Special Sessions, tried before three judges, again defended by Mr. Groehl, found guilty and sentenced to six months in jail; that after the investigation had been started and Mr. Groehl was called upon to explain his connection with the league he stated that he was unaware that the league was organized for an unlawful purpose?"

Clemenceau Has Trouble Breathing.

PARIS, Oct. 29 (AP).—Georges Clemenceau again had some difficulty in breathing last night. Dr. Laubry advanced his visit an hour, but found the former Premier sleeping peacefully. Today M. Clemenceau arose as usual and resumed work on his book.

WALKER DENOUNCES 'SLANDER' OF RIVALS

PAYS TRIBUTE TO BERRY

Repeats in Reply to Attacks on Tammany That He Is Organization's Candidate.

Four thousand persons who filled every seat and bit of standing space in the auditorium of the Julia Richman High School at Second Avenue and East Sixty-seventh Street, cheered Mayor Walker last evening as he appealed to his opponents to "come away from slander and come down to the record."

"Analyze it, scrutinize it, turn to any page you want, any place you want, read the history of the last four years," asked the Mayor. "It is on that history that we are asking you to return us to office.

Mayor Walker was the principal speaker at a rally of the Thomas M. Farley Association, at which Justice Thomas C. T. Crain, Democratic nominee for District Attorney, Borough President Julius Miller, Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee, and many candidates for minor offices also spoke. The Mayor's address was broadcast over WOR and through a system of amplifiers to an overflow crowd on the sidewalk in front of the school.

Remarking that he had had an exceptionally busy day, in the course of which he had attended openings of a new building of Morrisania Hospital, DeoWitt Clinton High School, and "the finest new firehouse I have ever seen," Mayor Walker asserted that "no one can go through that kind of a day and see these things in actual existence and pay any attention to the kind of slander heaped upon us in this campaign."

He paid a tribute to Controller Berry, declaring that the latter by personal negotiations had acquired for the city four or five times as much land for park purposes as could have been acquired under the old condemnation system for the same sum.

"We have made a record in the last four years that speaks for itself," continued the Mayor. "We have invited criticism and debate of the record, but we cannot get it. After some years of the practice of law I apprehended that when one has a bad case he has to resort to abuse.

"And so we have had to stand for that time-worn, moth-eaten slander and libel of Tammany Hall. I don't think it necessary to tell you in this neighborhood that if that is the issue I will meet it as I met it four years ago, when I pronounced myself a Tammany Hall candidate. If it necessary, I take this occasion to reiterate it."

CONTRADICTS LA GUARDIA.

P. J. Brady Denies Committee Favored Airport Site Near Maspeth.

Peter J. Brady, president of the Federation Bank and Trust Company, who was chairman of Mayor Walker's committee on airport facilities, said last night that F. H. La Guardia was absolutely wrong when he said that the site of the "phantom village" near Maspeth, L. I., had been recommended by his committee as suitable for a city of New York airport.

"The committee, in fact, characterized the Maspeth tract as the least desirable of all of the sections mentioned for airport purposes," Mr. Brady said. He added that the only mention of the Maspeth site in connection with airport study was by Secretary Hoover's fact finding committee on airport facilities presided over by William P. MacCracken Jr., then Assistant Secretary in charge of Aeronautics in the Department of Commerce [illegible] committee, on which he had been named as the representative of the Central Labor Council of New York, was selected early in 1927 and made a report on Dec. 20, 1927. Mr. Brady said that the Mayor's committee was not appointed until March this year.

"This unfounded attack by the Socialist-Republican candidate on the Mayor's committee airport program is wholly unwarranted," Mr. Brady said. "All of the facts had been available since the time that the Hoover committee made its report two years ago."

Grand Jury Gets Evidence Tomorrow at Hayward's Request.

At the request of Colonel William Hayward, Special Deputy State's Attorney General, District Attorney Banton arranged yesterday for presentation of evidence in alleged election frauds to the October additional grand jury tomorrow. Colonel Hayward in a communication to Mr. Banton said he would present evidence in connection with about fifty alleged violations of the election laws through illegal registration.

Mr. Hayward added that it was his purpose to obtain indictments and warrants to be used should those suspected of having illegally registered attempt to vote on election day.

Senator Wagner will go to New York on Friday evening and will speak in Brooklyn at Public School 56, Stone and Glenmore Streets, at 9:30 o'clock. On Saturday night he will join the candidates and address the final meeting of the campaign at the Century Theatre.

CAN'T FORM CABINET, DALADIER QUITS TASK

NATIONALISTS HOLD ALOOF

They Refuse Cooperation to Any Government Declining to Explain Rhine Policy.

BRIAND SEEN BIDING TIME

Extended Crisis Is Held Likely to Result in Ousted Premier Being Recalled to Power.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Wednesday, Oct. 30.—Edouard Daladier has abandoned his attempt to form a Cabinet of Left parties, following the refusal yesterday of the Socialists to participate.

At 7 o'clock last evening, after consultation with several of his friends, M. Daladier wrote a long letter to President Doumergue explaining the grounds on which he felt he could not continue to try to form a government. He started for the Elysée Palace, evidently with the intention of so informing the President and announced his intention of going to bed afterward.

Special editions of the evening newspapers announced that he had withdrawn. Then a group of Radicals assembled at their headquarters and it was announced that their leader, M. Daladier, would try this morning to form a government of the Moderate centre with the Radicals. Former Premier Briand was reported to be in agreement and the first editions of this morning's newspapers carried the story, on the strength of a statement of some of the Radical leaders that a Cabinet would be formed this morning.

After 1 o'clock new rumors were heard. M. Briand, it was said, had withdrawn his support from the proposed new Cabinet and M. Daladier had taken finally a decision to inform the President this morning that he could not form a government.

Daladier Announces Withdrawal.

Just after 1 o'clock the Radical leader issued a statement from which it was an obvious deduction that it was M. Briand's refusal to join in the Cabinet which was then proposed which had led to failure.

M. Daladier evidently had had in view a Radical Cabinet supported by the Socialists. M. Briand's conception of the needs of the situation was that the government should go as far to the Right as possible and be of the character of the "Republican union."

Such a dispute among the Left forces at this time, coming on top of the refusal of the Socialists to share in the government, presents a very serious and complicated problem for the President of the republic.

The National Council of the Socialist party refused yesterday by a vote of 1,590 to 1,431 to approve the decision taken Sunday by the party parliamentarians and make common cause with the radicals in a united Cabinet.

Yesterday's events were of the utmost importance. They may mark the rise to power of the Socialist party, to the detriment of the Radicals, as has happened in almost every country in Europe, and the beginning of a long war between the more extreme parties in the State. The Middle party, which has governed France for more than twenty years, has met its first serious check.

Within the Socialist council the debate which began Monday evening was fierce and passionate.

Led by Joseph Paul-Boncour and Pierre Reynaudel, the participationists who had won a majority in the parliamentary group, believed until the last they could carry the whole party with them.

Play for Higher Stakes.

But the opposition, led by M. Blum and Paul Faure, hold with the country delegates, especially those from the industrial districts of the north, who are determined that there should be no compromise with a bourgeois party and clung stubbornly to the belief that if the party held back just a little longer from power it would come to them and come completely.

"We are ready to form a government with the radicals," M. Blum has repeatedly declared, "but it is the radicals who now must come in with us."

The situation within the party was not improved for the participationists by a declaration of the Republican Left, the centre party, that it would not support a Cabinet in which the Socialists were included. That meant that even if the party accepted M. Daladier's invitation the combination might risk defeat at the very first meeting with the Chamber. It seemed scarcely worth while to sacrifice the principle of independence for such a short ministerial life.

When debate was resumed yesterday morning it became apparent that the opposition was going to win.

"We owe nothing to the Radicals," was M. Blum's response to M. Paul-Boncour and his friends. "If the combination succeeds it will not be you who will be the saviors of the Left, but Daladier."

After that the whole effort was to keep the party united. M. Daladier's fate had been sealed.

On the other side of the Chamber there was also a certain activity. Fifty members of the Right and Centre who had voted against M. Briand a week ago yesterday held a meeting at which they decided to remain united in opposition to any government which refused to give a full explanation of the conditions under which the Rhineland was being evacuated, on mobilization of the German debt and on the constitution of the Bank for International Settlements.

Their decision is in some ways considered unconstitutional. It is only the President of the Republic who can make treaties and his ministers owe no explanation to the Chamber until the time comes for ratification. But, constitutional or not, their attitude seems likely to cause this crisis to last many more days. It stands rather boldly in the way of M. Briand's return to power.

That somewhat weary but ever watchful veteran of a score of such political battles seems tonight to be biding his time. Whatever happens now, it is almost certain that he must be brought back as Minister for Foreign Affairs if not as Premier. An attempt, however, will be made first to construct a Cabinet under the leadership of some moderate Centre man, such as Jean Durand Clementel or some other, preferably a Senator.

Some Chance of Success.

There is some chance that it will succeed. The Radicals, for their own sake, must, after their rebuff from the Socialists, consent to share in such a Ministry. They have played for high stakes and lost, and now they can do nothing better than to join others in a central pool.

Probably, too, the Socialists, having kept their independence, will consent to give intermittent support, at least on foreign affairs, to such a government. Its composition, however, will have to be most delicately accomplished, and there still would be no certainty that the operation would succeed. If it should not, then recourse would have to be made to the oft-recurring Briand.

It would be a paradox if the man who was overthrown last week should come back so quickly, but the situation is full of paradoxes, in the midst of which President Doumergue tonight was sitting gravely puzzled. He asked M. Daladier to come back this morning to talk over what can be done. That means he intends to extract the Radical leader's promise to support a moderate government, now that the Socialists have refused him their collaboration. If that promise cannot be obtained, it may take weeks to straighten out the muddle into which George Mandel, Louis Marin and Montigny threw the country a week ago yesterday.

M'DONALD PROVES FIRST-CLASS SAILOR

Has Not Missed a Meal Though Seasickness Torments Half Ship's Passengers.

DAUGHTER ACTIVE ON DECK

Out in Rough Weather After Having a Cold—Premier in Close Touch With Affairs, Eager to Work.

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ABOARD THE S.S. DUCHESS OF YORK, Oct. 29.—Ramsay MacDonald has proved himself a first-class sailor in every respect. With nearly half the passenger list suffering from seasickness and four members of his own party more or less confined to their cabins, the Prime Minister has continued his daily routine and has not missed a single meal in the dining room.

Today was somewhat rougher than yesterday and the prospects are not promising that conditions will improve. A heavy swell caused pronounced pitching and rolling, although the seaworthiness of the Duchess of York no doubt saved all aboard from a more trying experience.

Ishbel MacDonald has been a good second to her father and has not suffered a single moment of illness at sea. A slight cold has interrupted her usual sea-going pedestrian habits, but today she resumed her long walks around the deck.

The Prime Minister is keeping in close touch with home affairs and has obtained detailed reports of new Labor difficulties, especially with respect to the textile and coal industries. While the situation is not regarded pessimistically, the general world position is not altogether reassuring. The continued violent reaction in Wall Street, with its repercussion on the other Exchanges and the delay in the formation of a stable French Government are two outstanding factors to which the Premier has been devoting some attention.

Mr. MacDonald is anxious to resume his duties in Downing Street and to give him a first-hand impression of the existing position it is probable that several members of his Cabinet will meet the Duchess of York at Liverpool and travel up to London with him. It is understood that his supporters, both in London and Liverpool, are planning an enthusiastic welcome for their chief.

SPAIN A NAVAL FACTOR.

Complicates Outlook for Accord Between France and Italy.

PARIS, Oct. 29 (AP).—Spain, which was not invited to send representatives to the London naval conference, is beginning to loom as a factor which may prevent France and Italy from signing a definitive treaty.

According to information in League of Nations circles in Paris, there is a pronounced desire in Spain to strengthen the Spanish Navy.

France, though closely allied with Spain in friendship, would probably hesitate to commit herself to a fixed ratio of sea power with Spain left outside the negotiations, and Italy, which has definite views on the naval strength of powers in the Mediterranean, is in a similar position.

FOX HUNTING SEASON OPENS IN ENGLAND

In Spite of Attack, Sport Wins More Followers—Prospects for Meets Are Excellent.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The baying of the hounds and the halloing of the hunters were heard throughout rural England today as the fox-hunting season was officially opened. Interest in the time-honored meets has not lessened despite the activities of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which has voted to ask Parliament to pass a bill abolishing stag hunting and fox hunting.

It was recently stated that the Prince of Wales had sold his hunters because the heir to the throne must not be involved in a political issue. The encroachments of motorists on the highways and the substitution of barbed wire for wood fences are also obstacles to fox hunting. The prospects of this season, however, could not be better, with more people hunting, farmers giving their support, stocks up to strength and the packs having a good young entry. Preliminary spade work for the cubbing season has found strong and healthy litters of foxes nearly everywhere.

Again women masters of fox hounds are to the fore, wives replacing husbands. It is interesting to note that John Masefield's new fox-hunting novel, "The Hawbucks," was published here on the opening day of the season.

TURKEY ON PARADE FOR REPUBLIC FETE

Police, Boy Scouts, Diplomats and Aviators Share in the Constantinople Festivities.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 29.—A colorful parade through the streets of Constantinople marked the fête of the republic today as a prelude to the opening of the Turkish National Assembly at Angora.

Six hundred police and 900 Boy Scouts marched as well as the usual military municipal organizations. Aviators circled over the city's minarets, and for the evening a State ball has been arranged, to be attended by members of the diplomatic corps.

"The productive capacity of the nation has grown considerably in comparison with previous years," said Kiazzim Pasha, the President of the Assembly, before leaving Constantinople. "The knowledge and intellectual level of the people also is rising. Every one is peaceably pursuing his affairs. Turkey is getting into better condition and is able to undertake more public works."

The budget for 1930-31, now being examined by the Council of Ministers, provides around £111,250,000 in receipts and disbursements as compared with about £110,000,000 in last year's budget.

ALICE DUER MILLER'S

new novel

"Age of Indiscretion"

Not a story of the wild, flaming "younger generation." On the contrary—the central character is a grandmother! But she's the most dynamic, captivating grandmother in modern fiction.

As up-to-date as today's newspaper, the despair of her more staid descendants, she engineers their destinies and their love affairs. The account of her escapades is told in Alice Duer Miller's own sparkling, swiftly-moving style.

Stories like this one—utterly new, charming, out-of-the-ordinary—are really typical of American Magazine fiction. They explain why more than 2,200,000 families* read The American Magazine every month, and prefer it to every other magazine.

PROTESTS CHARGE OF KILLING CHANG

SHOTWELL MAKES ADDRESS

Says Science Is Art of West and Its Great Gift—Round-Table Discussions Begin.

By HUGH BYAS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Oct. 29.—Anticipations of a clash between the Japanese and Chinese at the Kyoto conference were fulfilled earlier than expected when Motosada Zumoto, publisher of the Herald of Asia, on behalf of the Japanese delegation, protested energetically against the prepared statement in which Dr. Yui, a Chinese delegate, pointedly accused Japanese of the murder of Marshal Chang Tso-lin.

Dr. Yui called the murder an instance of Japan's policy and linked it with the expedition to Tsinan and the late Premier Tanaka's subsequent warning to Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, Manchurian war lord and son of Chang Tso-lin, against union with Nanking. He said that reports of experts showed it was impossible that any Chinese or group of Chinese could have carried out so large an undertaking, involving so much preparation, at a spot strictly guarded by the Japanese. This accusation occurred in the course of a general indictment of Japanese policy.

Mr. Zumoto said that the charges could not be allowed to pass, but Dr. Inazo Nitobe and Jerome D. Greene, the two chairmen, said that the public session was unsuitable for such a debate and promised to take up the matter in council. The other Chinese delegates disapproved Dr. Yui's action, thinking that he should have made the charges in private session.

Neither the Chinese nor Japanese authorities have disclosed the results of their joint investigation, conducted immediately after the murder. Recently one Japanese officer was dismissed for failing to provide adequate protection for Marshal Chang and others were disciplined.

The version generally accepted in Tokio is that the murder was a joint enterprise of Chinese who wished to get Marshal Chang out of the way and Japanese malcontents.

Round-Table Talks at Kyoto.

KYOTO, Oct. 29 (AP).—The Pacific Relations Conference, which opened here yesterday, today entered the stage of round-table discussions.

During the day the question of Philippine independence arose, but outside of the regular conference program, at a joint meeting of the American and Filipino delegations, at which Maximo Kalaw and others presented the viewpoints of separation from the United States.

The meeting resulted in the appointment of a subcommittee to arrange further discussion of the question in connection with the present conference.

Shotwell Addresses Conference.

Dr. James T. Shotwell of Columbia University, in an address before the evening session of the Institute of Pacific Relations on the thesis, The Machine Age and Culture, claimed that science was the art of the West and its great gift to the world, the New York office of the institute announced yesterday. He took issue with the point of view that holds that modern science and invention damage the traditional culture of a people when its methods are introduced into their daily lives.

The round-table discussion was given over to a consideration of the effects of the machine age on the traditional cultures of Eastern and Western peoples. Thirty-two studies on every phase of this subject and its related ones, the interchange of culture between Orient and Occident, were presented before the various round-table groups of the conference. These included eight papers by Americans, a monograph by Dr. Hu Shih on "Cultural Relations of East and West" and a series of twenty-one studies by Japanese, ranging from "European and American Influence Upon Japanese Education" to "Women's Problems" and "Reception and Influence of Occidental Legal Ideas in Japan."

ANTI-YOUNG PLAN BID FAILS.

German Nationalists Get Out Only 7 Per Cent of Voters.

BERLIN, Oct. 29 (AP).—The Nationalist proposal for a plebiscite against the Young plan and the "war guilt lie" appears to have failed to have received the needed signatures in order that it might go before the Reichstag and the entire country.

Registrations were definitely closed this evening, the government having received the needed signatures in or refused an extension of time, which the promoters had asked in order to get a final decision on the disputed point whether civil servants would be allowed to vote.

Although figures will not be available until Nov. 6, and a definite count cannot be announced before Nov. 30, it was regarded as certain that the requisite 10 per cent of the electorate —4,100,000—was reached nowhere except in some small towns in the eastern provinces where the Rights have a firm hold on the population. Exceptions were Chemnitz, Saxony, where 10 per cent was reached, and Potsdam, old stronghold of the German monarchy, where 20 per cent was reached.

In the rest of Germany, especially the Rhineland, where in several centres only 1 per cent registered, the majority did not heed the Nationalist-Fascist call. At Koenigstein not a voter registered.

In the city of Berlin about 225,000 persons registered, representing 7 per cent of the electorate signed, whereas the requisite minimum was 316,000. It was generally calculated that Berlin's 7 per cent was the average reached for the whole Reich. The German Government was strongly opposed to the plebiscite.

MISS MORROW TEACHING.

Mexican Pupils Greet Her in English on Second Day.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 29 (AP).—Pupils of the Alberto Correa primary school today greeted Miss Elisabeth Morrow, daughter of Ambassador Morrow, with a cheery "Good morning" in English when she arrived for her second day's work as a teacher.

She began her work yesterday by teaching the pupils to say "Good morning" and "This is a cat." She is teaching without a salary, a fact which has been widely praised in the Mexican press. The school is only a few blocks from the Embassy residence.

American Admiral Requests Moving of Destroyers From Manila to Shanghai.

By HALLETT ABEND.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 29.—A new revolt of three regiments in Ichang, the reinvasion of the Linyung district in North Kwangtung by General Chang Fa-kwei's "Ironsides" and the capture of Bingyuen in Kwangtung by a body of 5,000 Communists descended from the mountains, marked the spread of the anti-government movement today.

From the main sector in Honan, where the Nanking and Kuominchun forces are facing each other, there are no reports of conflict, but two columns of the Kuominchun are reported to be pushing toward Hupeh from the region of Nanyangfu. President Chiang Kai-shek is reported to be stopping at Kiukiang, from where he ordered the Ninth and Tenth Divisions "to take a precautionary attitude toward the armies of General Tangsheng-chi, which is not obeying government orders." The Fukien situation is obscure, the Chinese banks insisting that independence has been declared, whereas other sources are uninformed.

Saturday General Chiang Kai-shek dispatched Admiral Yang Shu-chwang to Foochow in the gunboat Puan with orders to head the Fukien government. The reported mutiny is possibly against his assumption of power.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 29 (AP).—Rear Admiral Charles B. McVay Jr. of the United States Navy today requested the movement of a division of United States destroyers from Manila to Shanghai as the result of disturbed conditions in the Yangtse Valley, scene of the latest Chinese civil war.

Severe fighting was in progress between Nationalist forces and the rebellious Kuominchun along the Lunghai Railway west of Chengchow, Honan Province, an important railway junction. The fighting also was severe west of Yencheng, seventy-five miles south of Hengchow.

Dispatches from foreign sources at Hankow said the encounters were expected to develop into major engagements. President Chiang will arrive at Hankow tomorrow to assume active command of the drive against the "people's army."

The Kuominchun forces, which recently turned against Chiang's Government and started a march upon the Wuhan cities—Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang—are reported to have suffered severe losses in men, munitions and ordnance.

AGITATES ON PRISON TOWER

Hungarian Hunger Striker Near Death From Exposure.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 29.—The hunger strike of the political prisoners in Hungarian jails, which already has claimed one victim, probably will result in another casualty.

Frans Litzmann, a prisoner in the Oedenburg jail, climbed to the top of the prison spire yesterday and declared he would not come down until the demands of the political prisoners for better food had been satisfied. His perch was eighty feet high and only a yard wide, so he could not be reached.

The fire brigade deluged him with water in yesterday's cold weather for two hours, but he did not budge. He remained at his post the whole night, being removed in an exhausted state this morning. He is now apparently fatally ill of pneumonia.

SALVATION ARMY HEAD DENIES ASKING LOAN

General Higgins Calls Report of Request for American Branch's Funds Untrue.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—General Edward J. Higgins of the Salvation Army told the correspondent today that it was utterly untrue that he had asked Commander Evangeline Booth for a loan out of the American Salvation Army's funds.

"I deny emphatically that any question of finance was raised when I met Commander Evangeline in Canada," he said. "I deny that we have received a penny from America apart from the usual contributions made every year to our missionary fund. And not a single penny is going to be asked for."

General Higgins said that he could find no sign of any "revolt" in the Army against the present methods of control and again denied that there had been a "vendetta" against the late General Bramwell Booth's family. He explained that Colonel Mary Booth had left Germany at her own request and would be placed in another post; Colonel Bernard Booth, he declared, had been removed from his former post with the approval of the late General and Mrs. Booth, and Commissioner Catherine Booth herself had declined to speak at recent centenary celebrations here.

A writ for transferring the Army's property will be applied for tomorrow, General Higgins declared, adding that the action was being taken with the full approval of the late General Booth's executors.

ADMITS ARAB RISING HAD BEEN EXPECTED

Acting Jerusalem Police Head Testifies British Could Have Curbed Attack.

ON WITNESS STAND 6 HOURS

Disarming of English Jews Brings Long Discussion Before the Inquiry Commission.

By JOSEPH M. LEVY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 29.—Major Alan Saunders, who was acting commandant of police at the time of the riots, was on the witness stand for six hours today before the British commission of inquiry. Mr. Preedy, counsel for the Palestine Government, having rested at the beginning of the morning session, the commission called on Mr. Stoker, counsel for the Arabs, to cross-examine the witness before cross-examination by the Zionist counsel, because of the alphabetic precedence of the Arabs' counsel's name.

Mr. Stoker asked several questions regarding the ownership of the Wailing Wall and also regarding the demonstration on Aug. 15, the ninth day of the Jewish month of Av, when about 200 Jewish youths proceeded to the government offices, submitted a resolution of protest to Acting High Commissioner Luke and then staged a demonstration at the Wailing Wall.

Major Saunders remarked that on the fateful Friday, Aug. 23, Arabs from the surrounding villages came to the mosque in Jerusalem unaccompanied by women, which was unusual, since the women always came to town on Fridays, although they did not attend prayers.

He admitted that it was realized that an attack was probable at any time after Aug. 15, when the Jewish demonstration was staged, and that had adequate measures been taken the attacks could have been averted or immediately suppressed, as in Nablus and Tel Aviv, where a few shots fired into the air immediately dispersed the mobs. The authorities knew as early as 7 o'clock in the morning of the 23d, he said, that the Arabs were coming in to the mosque unusually well armed.

A long discussion followed regarding the disarming on the 24th of the British-Jewish civilians and former soldiers who had been enrolled as special constables. The decision to disarm, the witness said, was on the basis that an adequate measure of protection could be given to the Jewish quarters and the suburbs.

When asked whether, if the responsibility had been on him, he would have given orders to disarm these British-Jewish constables, Major Saunders replied that it was an unfair question, and when the question was differently worded, he said: "If I had been asked if I could spare forty men with rifles, I would have said I could not."

Sir Boyd Merriman, counsel for the Zionists, brought out that in the first instance the issue had been a religious one, the Moslems having been aroused by reports circulated that their holy shrines were being threatened by the Jews.

YOUNG COUNT BETHLEN JAILED FOR DUELING

Hungarian Premier's Son Fought for Lady's Honor With Count Paul Almassy.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 29.—Count Andreas Bethlen, the youngest son of the Hungarian Premier, Count Stephen Bethlen, was sentenced today to three days' State detention by Budapest magistrates for dueling.

The court was crowded with members of the Budapest smart set, especially ladies, to hear this case, which is the conclusion of a big society scandal.

It began some months ago with a duel between the young Count Bethlen and Count Paul Almassy, which was fought with cavalry sabres, Count Almassy being badly wounded. The quarrel originated in a dispute of the two young noblemen in a Budapest bar concerning the honor of a lady.

To prevent the scandal of the appearance of the Premier's son in the police courts, Count Almassy issued a signed declaration afterward that he had received no injury.

Dueling, although nominally illegal, is not merely tolerated but encouraged by Hungarian social custom. Count Andreas Bethlen appeared personally and pleaded guilty. As he has not appealed his sentence —which means detention under State supervision with liberty to receive visitors, read self-provided literature all day and provide his own food— it will have to be served within a few weeks. Count Almassy was sentenced to two days for his part in the offense.

Count Andreas Bethlen is 27 years old, and thus makes his first appearance in public life as a duelist. In private life he is a bank clerk.

TO FIGHT LIQUOR AT GAMES.

Dry Forces and University of Tennessee Plan Joint Action.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 29 (AP).—Official sources made known today that Federal prohibition forces, the Knox County Sheriff and city police have enlisted the aid of University of Tennessee authorities in their efforts to prevent drinking at football games here and particularly at the Vanderbilt-Tennessee game Nov. 16.

Director of Public Safety W. F. Chandler said he was planning an offensive against fans who drink in the stands.

J. Carroll Cate, prohibition administrator, said that about seventy-five bottles of liquor were taken from spectators at the Alabama-Tennessee game, but that no arrests were made.

Mr. Cate, Sheriff W. C. Anderson and Mr. Chandler conferred yesterday with F. M. Massey, dean of men at the university, regarding the curbing of student drinking and the possibility of the university cooperating in discouraging the bringing of liquor here by the thousands of out-of-town fans expected to attend the Vanderbilt-Tennessee game.

BIGGEST BOOK COMPLETED.

British Museum Catalogue of Its Volumes to Go to Press Soon.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The world's biggest book, the preparation of which has taken ten years and has cost $1,000,000, will go to press soon. It is the British Museum's general catalogue of printed books at Bloomsbury and in the Museum Annex at Hendon.

The demand for such a work has come from universities and colleges in America, which are expected to purchase a third of the edition, which is limited to 650 copies.

The British Museum's first catalogue was issued in 1787 in two slender volumes. The latest printed catalogue took eighteen years to produce in more than 600 parts. The Vatican Library and the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris also are issuing new catalogues to meet the American demand.

BANK PARLEY BARS POLITICAL DECISIONS

Prepares to Put Them Up to Governments at The Hague, Leaving Blanks in Statutes.

HOPE OF ACCORD LINGERS

Baden Subcommittee to Redraft the Trust Deed—Charter Likely to Be Adopted Today Without Site.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BADEN-BADEN, Oct. 29.—After being repeatedly blocked in their labors by irreconcilable political views, the bankers here attempting to set up the framework of the Bank for International Settlements are now engaged in eliminating all political material from the statutes. Then, if a final agreement is unattainable, all the questions involving government interests can be turned back to the governments for settlement.

Thus today, in discussing the arbitration clause, which will provide a means of settling possible disputes over the statutes, all the political phases of the question were removed. The committee laid down a set of rules to govern the arbitration of all disputes arising between the bank and its customers and shareholders and with the various central banks but decided that the second Hague conference will have to determine the method of dealing with any disputes between the bank and the governments.

The same line of procedure was taken when the committee, discussing the question of revision of the bank's statutes, determined in effect to classify all the statutes according to those which it will be possible for the bank's board of directors to revise and those which cannot be revised without the consent and agreement of the governments. The latter half of the revision clause may therefore be held over for The Hague.

It is therefore apparent that the delegates here, in their efforts to compromise on their difficulties of a political nature, are appealing to deaf ears when they apply to their national treasuries for cooperation. Owing to the Cabinet crisis in France, the anti-Young plan plebiscite in Germany, the stock market difficulties in New York and the inquiry into the Bank of England, the international political atmosphere seems to be unpropitious for clearing up the difficulties which the experts here meet in interpreting such far-reaching documents as the Young plan.

Placed in the awkward position, therefore, either of the complete failure of their meeting or of engineering a compromise on their own responsibility which would afterward be repudiated by the governments, the delegates here are now engaged in preparing to place the responsibility where it belongs by passing the decision back to the governments.

All hope of agreement here, however, is not abandoned. It was announced today that the trust deed subcommittee had been instructed to make a completely new draft of the often-scrapped trust deed. It is to be supposed that in this, also, an attempt will be made to frame a skeleton draft while eliminating politics as much as possible.

Since this deed regulates the handling of reparations, which is the primary function of the bank, the remainder of the statutes of the bank would be meaningless without it. Yet the question involves precisely that political controversy over reparations payments to eliminate which the whole Young plan was conceived, and the bankers here in session find the controversy flourishing as vigorously as ever.

The charter, which leaves a blank the question of the inflammable dispute over the bank's domicile, will receive consideration tomorrow and probably be adopted without a decision on the point. The committee therefore has only the trust deed to consider after this week and if no agreement is reached it will then be obliged to frame an explanatory report of its difficulties in referring them back to the governments.

ATTACK JEWISH STUDENTS.

Vienna Nationalists Prevent Their Attendance at School.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Oct. 29.—The persecution of Jewish students which recently broke out in Budapest has spread to Vienna. Nationalist students, wearing Heimwehr emblems, assembled before the door of the Technical High School today and barred the entrance of Socialist and Jewish pupils. The rector promptly closed the school.

The aggressors then went to the university, interrupted lectures, forced the Jewish students to leave the lecture rooms and attacked them in the street. Then they attempted to demonstrate in front of the university, but were prevented by the police.

RED PAPER STRESSES AMITY TO SOVIET HERE

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Oct. 29.—To the public today has been offered a portent by one of its own most proletarian newspapers, the Workers Gazette, which prints a front page photograph of the Red Russian flag and the Stars and Stripes flying side by side in amity—in the cockpit of the airplane, "Land of the Soviets," after its arrival in Seattle.

A two-column head proclaims: "Land of the Soviets in Chicago," and a four-column banner: "America Honors the Land of the Soviets" over a brilliant article on the Soviet airplane going to New York, "the city of the yellow god [gold], as Gorki termed it," says the newspaper.

"Twelve years ago, almost day for day," says the article, "the American people learned that the workers had seized power in Russia, and immediately it was deluged by a flood of calumny and hate. It became an article of faith with the average American that the Soviet State was a horror of mud and blood, hopeless and lifeless. Now, twelve years later, to this America which despised us, which refused to recognize our existence as a world State, come our 'unaccredited ambassadors,' borne on the wings of the wind, to show the American people what we have achieved unaided.

"Across uncharted Siberia they flew, and the savage North Pacific, whose conquest bore tribute to Soviet courage, skill and industrial development. This, at least, the American people must recognize, which is worth more than any paper recognition."

BERLIN DEBT PARLEY FACES OBSTACLES

Treaty for Direct Payments to America Held Likely to Upset Young Plan.

EX-ALLIES ARE INVOLVED

Their Approval Is Necessary If Conditional Sum Is Placed in the Unconditional List.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The coming negotiations between Washington and Berlin by which the American Government will seek to obtain payments on the cost of the Army of Occupation without passing the cash through the reparations machinery of the Young plan may prove more difficult than appears on the surface. It is the opinion of experts here that a number of complications may arise, affecting all parties to the Young reparations plan.

Payments by the Reich to America stand now in the Young plan as representing an item of the division of the total annuities from Germany which are to pass through the International Bank for distribution. Washington seeks to make a treaty with Germany whereby the Reich would pay the United States directly.

Young Plan Changed Priority.

Unlike the situation under the Dawes plan, which gave certain priority to these payments, they rank in the Young plan as conditional annuities. Of the unconditional annuities of 660,000,000 marks (about $158,400,000), 500,000,000 marks (about $120,000,000) will go to France and the rest will be scattered among the other former Allies after the debt service of the Dawes loan is cared for. The annual payments of 50,000,000 marks (about $12,000,000) to 75,000,000 marks (about $18,000,000) for the American occupation costs rank outside the unconditional part of the Germany annuity.

Now, will Washington ask Germany to class the payments to America as unconditional or will Washington agree to their remaining conditional while insisting in any case that they must not pass through the International Bank?

If Washington intends to seek unconditional payments it will mean that Germany must pay more unconditionally or that the former Allies, which means France in this case, must get less unconditional cash. It will be recalled that one of the points with which Philip Snowden stopped the Hague conference for four weeks was the British demand for 90,000,000 marks (about $21,600,000) annually of unconditional payments, from which she was virtually excluded in the Young plan.

Germany refused to increase the unconditional part of her annuity and it ended by England getting 55,000,000 marks (about $13,200,000) of unconditional payments by adjustments among the other creditors. Therefore the question may arise as to whether the former Allies must surrender part of their unconditional German payments.

This would mean altering the Young plan again, and may explain Germany's notification to America that the proposed treaty would have to be accepted by her other creditors. And so it is indicated that Germany will expect France to make any sacrifice of unconditional annuities which is needed to meet the American claim.

Protest at Hague Is Likely.

If the United States demands unconditional payments greater than what England got at The Hague, there might be an interesting debate at the next Hague conference. There is a difference in that England's assent to the Young plan was needed to put it into operation, whereas America's approval may not be essential.

Another way of looking at it would be that the previous American claim is binding until the United States accepts by Congressional action the reduction laid down in the Young plan. Yet it would be rather difficult for the United States to insist on payment under the Dawes plan when the Dawes plan no longer exists.

Suppose the United States is willing to agree to allow the claims for occupation costs to remain conditional annuities. The United States would then perhaps be in a position of making a treaty with Germany which would be subject to suspension by action of the other governments, for the conditional annuities can be suspended on approval of a commission composed of the governors of the banks of issue.

The Young plan provides that the Federal Reserve Bank be represented by a director of the International Bank for Settlements. If the Federal Reserve declines to name a director, as America declined to take part in the organization of the world bank, a body beyond American control could suspend the operation of the American treaty with Germany.

Thus it will be seen the matter is very complicated. The situation may be said to be the result of the United States Government allowing the Young committee, which dealt with matters of real concern to America, to meet and make plans without being represented.

London and Paris still show a lack of understanding as to just what the American Government seeks to obtain by seeking this revision in the Young plan before it goes into effect. It had been generally supposed that American silence during the months since the Young plan was drafted signified American acceptance of its terms. The record does not show that the United States observer at The Hague conference, which was called to put the Young plan into effect, made any observations which would indicate that the United States was trying to make a separate arrangement with Germany.

POLISH PAPERS COMBINE.

Two Pro-Government Organs Unite to Express Its Views.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Oct. 29.—Two pro-government papers, the Epoka and the Glos Prawdy, or Voice of Truth, ceased publication today. Tomorrow morning a new paper, the Gazeta Polska, will appear, which is to represent better and with more authority news of the political views of the present régime than the old ones did.

The Epoka has had a distinguished career, having been the continuation of a very old progressive paper, the Kurjer Polski, a paper of high standing and great interest in political and intellectual life. Unfortunately it lately has had to depend on government subsidies. The Glos Prawdy did not defend the government's policies but represented the diehards in Marshal Pilsudski's camp, and was also run at a loss.

COLOMBIA SETS INQUIRY ON PRESIDENT'S ACTION

Committee Will Report Whether His Declaration of Martial Law Violated the Constitution.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOGOTA, Oct. 29.—Despite the intervention of Archbishop Perdomo, Primate of Colombia, and his letter deploring attacks on the government, on the lower House, by the coalition of Vasquistas and Liberals, refused the administration spokesmen further debate and passed a resolution to appoint an investigating committee to inquire and report whether there are sufficient grounds for the House to charge President Abadia Mendez before the Senate for violation of constitutional authority by declaring martial law during the labor troubles in the banana zone.

The Vasquistas, a faction of Conservatives, say they voted for the investigation because the President had invited it by issuing a circular regarding an attempt to force his resignation. They explain the investigation is the only way in which the administration can be cleared of all suspicion of wrong-doing.

The local press today prints a cable fro mRome from ex-President Concha to the Presidential candidate, Guillermo Valencia, severely criticizing Señor Valencia's speech advocating closer relations with the United States. Señor Concha says the speech placed Colombia in a humiliating position.

Señor Valencia indicated that it would be wise to adjust Colombia's internal policies to accord with the foreign policy, enabling the country to march in step with the economic world of which it formed a dependent and subordinate part. He advocated more cordial relations with the United States in view of the close ties in trade and communications, especially since the opening of the Panama Canal and the development of radio and aviation.

The censure by Señor Concha, who is considered an oracle by the Conservative party, may seriously prejudice Señor Valencia's chance of election. The Concha protest is also surprising because the Valencia faction had chosen him for election to the vacant post of first vice president, which will be filled by Congress on Nov. 5.

Only six articles of the new petroleum bill now await approval by the Senate before the law goes to the Lower House. Fifty-six articles of the bill, as reported from the joint committee, have been approved with but few changes in the second reading before the Senate.

AT BERLIN IN 10 HOURS FROM CONSTANTINOPLE

Lufthansa Plane Delivers Mail Same Day on 1,250-Mile Flight Using American Motor.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—Fitted with an American Hornet motor of 525 horsepower, a special Lufthansa mail plane, Arado-5, today made a nonstop flight from Constantinople to Berlin, a distance of 1,250 miles, in 10 hours and 10 minutes.

The monoplane, which was manned by Joachim von Schroeder, Captain Albrecht and Mechanic Eichentopf, has previously twice flown from Berlin to Lisbon with mail for the liner Bremen.

Today the plane carried mail, newspapers and freight from Constantinople, delivering them this afternoon.

The flight was a continuance of tests for a regular international mail and freight service. One route is to lead via the Balkans to Asia Minor, including Turkey, Persia and Afghanistan. Another line is planned via Siberia to China and Japan, while the western route is intended to establish connection with Atlantic liners from Cherbourg and the seaplane service from Seville which Lufthansa plans for the coming Spring with its Rohrbach and Dornier seaplanes.

The Arado planes carry sufficient fuel for sixteen hours and can convey 660 pounds of freight and mail. Fitted with the best instruments, including the American gyroscopic direction finder, pilots are able to follow the route at night without seeing the ground and even in dense fogs.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Oct. 29.—The Byrd expedition's supporting party reported last night that it had reached 81 degrees South and had dropped the third depot load.

The sledgers now have only the load for their fourth and last depot, at 81 degrees 45 minutes, and are travelling comparatively light.

But between them and that depot is the crevassed region five miles wide which Captain Roald Amundsen had some difficulty in crossing.

They should be at the fourth depot ready to return in three or four days if the weather is good.

KAHN REFUSES POST IN SENATE CAMPAIGN

luctant to take the place when first approached and agreed to do so only upon being urged by both Senator Moses and Mr. Huston.

Among Mr. Kahn's friends in the Republican organization there was a disposition to criticize some of the speakers at the Milbank dinner for having placed Mr. Kahn in a false light. Mr. Kahn, it was said, is on very friendly terms with several of the progressive Senators, including Senators William E. Borah of Idaho and Hiram Johnson of California, and never has been concerned in any plan to make political war on any of the progressive Republican group.

PARLIAMENT OPENS, FACING VITAL ISSUES

Labor Ministers Questioned on Unemployment, Russia and Coal, but Delay Replies.

SNOWDEN OUTLINES POLICY

Baldwin Finds It Too Optimistic—Real Business Will Start After MacDonald's Return.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Parliament, which resumed its sessions today after the three-month recess, gave no sign in either the House of Lords or the House of Commons that the truce among the three parties had come to any sudden end. On the contrary, partisanship seemed so blurred for the time being that one Tory member addressed Philip Snowden, Labor Chancellor of the Exchequer, as "Leader of the Opposition."

More amusing still, Mr. Snowden himself referred to Stanley Baldwin as the Prime Minister. There was a howl of laughter from both sides of the House. Mr. Snowden put his hand to his head in a mock gesture of distress and said: "It will take a little time for us to recover from old habits."

The expected questions from the Opposition were fired at both J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal, and Arthur Henderson, Foreign Minister, concerning the plans to relieve unemployment and to resume diplomatic relations with Russia. Both Ministers said they would have statements to make on these subjects a little later, and the questions were dropped for the time being without any nagging.

Ben Turner, Minister of Mines, received the same lenient treatment when he asked for delay before answering questions as to the government's solution of the mining difficulties.

However, these inquiries clearly indicate the lines on which the opposition to the government will manifest itself when Parliament really settles down to business after Premier MacDonald's return next week.

Very soon after his arrival in London he is expected to make a statement in the Commons concerning his American visit and the five-power naval conference to be held in January. The Opposition has not yet decided whether they will debate the naval situation then, or not.

Mr. Snowden gave an outline of the government's legislative program up to the Christmas recess, and it was so bulky that Mr. Baldwin said it "indicated the optimism of a government still in its childhood."

Although Mr. Thomas escaped a grilling on his unemployment plans, he was reminded of his difficulties while on the way to the House of Commons. A man who bore a placard inscribed "unemployed," and who had placed chains about himself, accosted the Lord Privy Seal on the street and walked beside him to the gates of the yard.

According to a statement issued today by the Ministry of Labor, the present total of unemployed is 1,214,500. This is 130,000 less than a year ago.

LONDON, Oct. 29 (AP).—After an early morning rush to secure seats, in which Lady Astor succeeded in capturing her favorite corner position, the House of Commons was filled to overflowing at the actual opening of business in the afternoon.

All kinds of sartorial taste were represented, from the glossy top-hat and immaculate morning coat of Sir Austen Chamberlain to the negligent lounge suits of young Scottish Socialist members. Lady Astor wore her customary neat black and white suit and a hat. Margaret Bondfield, Minister of Labor and first British woman Cabinet Minister, appeared without a hat.

All the seats were filled with members and there was an overflow into the galleries. Cheers and counter-cheers broke out continually, giving the prospect of an exciting session though the members were in high, good humor today.

Chancellor Snowden, who was warmly applauded on entering the House, stated that he hoped the widows, orphans and old age pensions bill would be passed by the end of November.

William Graham, President of the Board of Trade, told the House he hoped to make a statement on the hours of the coal miners on Thursday.

Miss Bondfield had to meet many questions about unemployment from her own supporters. She refused to give any immediate information.

OGPU AGENT IN WARSAW.

Investigating Spying by Soviet Legation's Employes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Oct. 28.—The terror of all Soviet diplomatic missions abroad, the Ogpu agent Roeseman, arrived here this morning, according to the Express Poranny. He is believed to have come because of the Soviet Legation's recent difficulty owing to two of its employes having been careless enough to give the Polish police proof of their spying.

The name of one, Peter Bessonow, the Soviet Military Attaché's interpreter, was mentioned here in the trial of the foreman of a munition factory, who was sentenced to ten years at hard labor for selling to the Soviet military documents and factory plans.

M. Roeseman is also here in connection with the affair of the Tass correspondent, Bradin, friend of M. Bessedowski, the former acting Chargé d'Affaires at the Soviet's Paris embassy, who was forced to flee for his life from it after a dispute with Cheka agents. M. Bradin is said to have refused orders to leave for Moscow.

The Soviet Legation is denying all the rumors and has requested the Polish Foreign Office to stop newspapers from printing them, but the Express Poranny declares it will continue the sensational story.

Queen of Sweden Still Ill.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 29 (AP).—The latest bulletin regarding the health of Queen Victoria of Sweden, who has been staying on the Continent, informed the Swedish people today that the Queen was still compelled to keep to her bed by a persistent, painful cough causing difficulty in breathing and resulting in a loss of strength.

Col. Roosevelt Tells W. C. T. U. Laws Cannot Gain Temperance

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 29.—Having declined cocktails since he came here, Governor Roosevelt sent a message to the Porto Rican branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union today in which he strongly commended temperance, asserting, however, "that all of us must bear in mind that when we say temperance we mean temperance."

"There should be no fanaticism connected with it," the message said. "Laws can never take the place of character building. It is far easier to demand a law of a legislative body than laboriously to teach people how to act, but demanding the law is the lazy man's method. The future aim of the country must be to build up men and women who do right by their own volition."

BRANCATI'S BROTHER TO SEEK HIM HERE

Sails Today From Naples to Aid in Search for Banker, Missing Nearly a Year.

CONVINCED HE IS ALIVE

NAPLES, Oct. 29 (AP).—Thomas Brancati, retired captain of carabinieri, and brother of Dr. Charles Brancati, Italo-American banker of New York who disappeared last November, will sail aboard the steamship Roma for New York tomorrow to assist in the search for the missing man.

Thomas Brancati has been kept in touch with the search and has followed the work of the New York police in the matter closely. He said today that he had not heard a word of his brother since the disappearance but believed he was still alive.

The police received the first notice of the disappearance of Dr. Brancati on April 25 when his three brothers in New York City, Ernest, Oreste and Edward, told of their failure to locate him through a private search started shortly after Nov. 19, 1928, when he was supposed to have disappeared.

The police and representatives of the District Attorney's office found that he was a wealthy man and that a brokerage account of $234,000 had been transferred from his name to that of a friend, Luigi Romano, a few days either before or after his disappearance. This fund, except for a few hundred dollars, was found to have been withdrawn from the bank where it was deposited. Then Romano was found to be missing and he has not been seen since.

Dr. Brancati's name was mentioned in the City Trust failure and in connection with the investigation of the activities of the Rothmere Realty Company, of which Arnold Rothstein, murdered two weeks before Dr. Brancati's disappearance, was the head.

Meanwhile, the police were endeavoring to trace the origin of a large number of letters received by the doctor's brothers after his disappearance, signed with what were thought to be forgeries of his name.

The case apparently was dropped in August, although the three brothers in this country and the one en route here were believed to have set up an international private organization to continue the search.

ALBANIAN KING JAILS PROTESTING DEPUTIES

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TIRANA, Oct. 29.—King Zog has just demonstrated what a short way they have with politics and politicians in Albania. When a deputation of dissatisfied members of Parliament waited on him to present a memorandum of grievances the King heard the grievances and then ordered the Deputies locked up.

A newspaper which had openly attacked Minister of Justice Delvini because he had publicly declared the government did not need the confidence of Parliament has been suppressed. A like fate befell a newspaper which had defended the Minister of Justice.

The Cabinet crisis is being privately discussed, but King Zog has made it evident that the less the newspapers print about such matters the better it will be for them.

MR. JEFFERSON MISQUOTED.

Shipping Board Official's Statement at London Fuel Conference.

By Cable to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—I am advised that in the Oct. 26 issue THE NEW YORK TIMES stated that in my address to the British Fuel Institute the statement was made that "the West Alsek, on her eleventh voyage, used fuel costing one dollar per ton less than bunker price, run of mine."

This is evidently an error in transmission, as my statement was:

"The Mercer is now on her eleventh voyage, and is using fuel costing one dollar per ton less than bunker price, run of mine."

CARL J. JEFFERSON.

Mr. Jefferson, who is head of the fuel conservation section of the United States Shipping Board, participated in the conference of the British Institute of Fuel. In the cabled report to which he refers, the steamship West Alsek was mentioned as making use of pulverized coal.

HINTS SUPPRESSION OF 'REBEL' BUKHARIN

Stalin Henchman Threatens 'True Bolshevik Rigor' Against 'Right' Leader for Opposition.

TWELVE MORE EXECUTED

Total for Week Nears 100—State Reports 60 Per Cent of Grain Collections Realized.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Oct. 29.—The axe is sharp and ready for the head of Nikolai Bukharin, until recently one on the Bolshevik high priests. M. Bukharin grew pompous with power and claimed to be Lenin's interpreter and the chosen "guardian of the sacred fire," so he fell from grace.

Yesterday in Kharkof, M. Kossior, one of Joseph Stalin's chosen henchmen, flayed M. Bukharin with harsher words than M. Bukharin ever found to slash at Leon Trotsky. M. Kossior said the "right" heresy, sponsored by Bukharin, involved capitulation to the "kulak" recalcitrant peasants and blasphemy against the five years' socialization program.

He continued: "At the last plenary session of the Communist executives, Bukharin and his followers promised to abandon their factional struggle against the party. The facts show they have not kept their promise and the coming plenary session must decide the question with true Bolshevik rigor."

In short, M. Bukharin is regarded as a traitor on the class war front and as such must be executed—of course, not physically.

M. Kossior's outburst throws light on the freedom with which the Moscow press has been publishing reports of the executions—literal, physical executions in this case—of kulak enemies. Today's list is reported to total twelve—without counting seventeen persons condemned to death yesterday in the Astrakhan conspiracy between private fish traders and local officials to defraud the State. Yesterday fifteen were executed, making the total number executed nearly 100 in the past week. This is war with a vengeance and it is astonishing that the flagrancy of the class struggle has thus been advertised to the Soviet public and the outer world.

M. Kossior's statement provides the missing link in the logical chain. He makes it clear that the Kremlin regards M. Bukharin's heresy as the supreme expression—perhaps, in a sense, even the inspiration—of the kulak opposition, and that, having resolved to punish both implacably, it does not shrink from the public admission of the extent of the kulak onslaught or the severity of its repression. In another country this very severity might be a sign of weakness or fear, a terrorism bred from its own terror. But it is not so in Russia, with her Mongol history in which Tamerlaine marked his victories—victories, not defeats—with pyramids of skulls. The foreign colony here, and the foreign diplomats in particular, startled by the casualties from the class war front, walk around shaking their heads and predicting disaster. Their reports to their home governments doubtless reflect their pessimism, but it is possible that they have fallen into the old error of judging Russia by European standards. The fact is that this time, unlike the earlier period of militant communism in the years of 1918 to 1921, the Bolsheviki have been able to organize the peasant masses against the kulaks and have something to offer beside promises or violence to make socialization attractive.

That it is a critical period, none can deny. But unless the next harvest fails, or M. Stalin dies, or some other catastrophe occurs, the Bolsheviki, providing their spirit does not weaken, are set to win.

MOSCOW, Oct. 29 (AP).—The government announced tonight that it had already realized 60 per cent of its program for grain collection this year. It predicted that by December it would have gathered in 95 per cent of the total, thus fulfilling its plan one month before the date fixed.

Despite this statement of success the government has encountered substantial opposition in its campaign to have the peasants part with their grain. A considerable proportion of the recent executions was on charges of murder and assault growing out of peasant opposition to the grain collection.

UDRZAL LIKELY TO HEAD NEW CZECH CABINET

But Socialist-Peasant Coalition Is Expected to Win Power Soon —Benes Seen as Minister.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRAGUE, Oct. 29.—The results of the elections for the Czechoslovakian Senate, held simultaneously with those for the Chamber, present a similar picture to the latter. The only outstanding feature was the failure of the German Nationalist party to secure the return of a single candidate. They recorded 167,000 votes as compared with 214,000 the preceding year. Their votes will be divided among the other German parties.

Although Premier Udrzal will probably be entrusted to form a new cabinet of the bourgeois parties, it is probable that there will ultimately be a purely Socialist-Peasant cabinet. It is possible that Dr. Benes of the National Socialist party, will enter a bourgeois cabinet under M. Udrzal, probably with the idea of reconciling the Slovak Peoples party which is proposing to drop Professor Tuka, who was recently sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment for high treason, as leader. Dr. Tuka would have been automatically elected when the so-called remainder votes were counted on the second scrutiny, but the party proposes to comply with an essential condition for their readmission to the government by dropping the professor.

Fire Razes Ontario Mine Plant.

SOUTH PORCUPINE, Ont., Oct. 29 (AP).—The mill at the Dome Gold Mine, one of the first to be constructed in the Porcupine Field, was destroyed by fire last night with a loss estimated at $1,500,000. After a desperate battle of two hours, the machine shops and other equipment, representing another $500,000 in value, were saved. Until a new mill is built, the mine will have to be shut down.

NORRIS, IN DEFIANCE, SAYS HE WILL RUN

Accepts Old Guard "Challenge" and Says He Would Rather Be "Right Than Regular."

CITES RECORD IN SENATE

Nebraskan Declares Foes Are Trying to Punish Him for His Independence.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, a leader of the progressive group in the Senate, today announced his decision to seek another Senatorial term, declaring that the would do so to break down the plans of the Old Guard to control the Senate and its avowed purpose to drive him out of public life by the election of a subservient Senator from Nebraska."

He said he had intended to retire from public life, but that the "plans of the Old Guard" were a direct challenge not so much against him personally, but against fundamental principles of government which he had espoused for many years.

Text of Senator's Announcement.

The statement by Senator Norris was as follows:

"It has been my desire and my intention, at the end of my present term, to retire to private life and spend the remainder of my days in Nebraska as a private citizen. Recent events in the political world have destroyed those hopes and make it imperative that I enter the coming Republican primary in Nebraska as a candidate for renomination and re-election to the Senate.

"It is now quite clear that Nebraska is to be singled out in the coming senatorial primary campaign as one of the chief battlegrounds for the control of the United States Senate. For that purpose a virtual alliance has been formed between the Old Guard, stand-pat machine inside the State and those who control that machine from the outside.

"The avowed purpose of this combination is to weaken and discredit progressive principles of government by driving me out of public life, and securing the nomination and election of a Senator from Nebraska who would be subservient to the political machine and its bosses both inside and outside the State and who at all times can be trusted to be 'regular.'

"My opponent in this contest has already been selected in the person of Mr. McKelvie.

"This has been apparent ever since he was named by the President on the new Farm Board, and recent developments, including statements made by Mr. McKelvie himself, make it plain that he is to be the candidate representing the administration, or if for any reason it is later decided he is not the most available man, some other candidate will be substituted for him.

Will Take Up Challenge.

"The announcement of this scheme constitutes a direct challenge, not so much against me personally as against the fundamental principles of government for which I have stood and fought ever since I have had the honor to represent the State of Nebraska in the United States Senate.

"And if I failed to accept this challenge it seems to me I could be charged with political cowardice and with a failure to do my full duty at a time when the principles of a free and democratic government are at stake.

"Regardless of my wish and contrary to my desire, therefore, I have decided that I have no choice but to accept this challenge, and I will in due time file as a candidate for the Republican nomination in the coming primary. In taking this step I am under no misgivings as to the powerful political influences that will be exerted to accomplish my defeat. All the power of machine politics, formidably supported by the control of patronage and official favors, will be marshaled and organized against me.

"Combinations of wealth and greedy monopolies from all over the United States will join with the machine politicians of Nebraska in the attempt to retire me to private life. However, I am inspired by the hope that the liberty-loving people of our great Commonwealth will stand firm in their faith in the principles of government for which I have stood, and that they will not be misled or intimidated by the powerful influences which aim at the overthrow of those principles and the defeat of those like myself who have espoused and defended them.

"For a quarter of a century, in the House of Representatives and the Senate at Washington, I have put into practice the conviction that only by independent, non-partisan and outspoken conduct can a legislator accomplish anything of enduring value in the public interest. Whatever I have achieved of benefit to the nation and our State during this period has been due to the fact that I have always maintained that a public official in every official act that he performs should be moved by his conscientious convictions as to what is right, and under no circumstances should he ever be controlled by the dictates of party machines, political bosses or patronage-distributing officials.

"All the charges made against me by the so-called leaders of the Republican party can be reduced to one sentence—that I am not a regular, and therefore not a good Republican, and that I do not always support the President. I do not concede that self-appointed, self-anointed, partisan politicians, representing monopolies and privilege-seeking interests, have any right to decide what constitutes a good Republican or to be judges of his good faith and regularity.

"If absolute subservience to political bosses is necessary in order for a member of the United States Senate to remain in good standing in his party, I must plead guilty to the charge of irregularity.

"I would rather be right than regular.

"If compliance to the wishes of these bosses is the test of regularity I prefer to be irregular.

Mentions Tariff Amendment.

"In revising the tariff I have insisted that the indefensible and unconscionable rates fixed for the benefit of manufacturers should be so reduced that the consumers of the country, and especially the farmers of the great Middle West, would not be compelled to pay a daily tribute to monopoly and entrenched greed. In the bill now under consideration the Senate has adopted an amendment proposed by me which will go far toward putting future tariff legislation on a scientific non-partisan basis.

"It will render impossible the log-rolling, trading and secret manoeuvring which have so often and so recently disgraced the consideration of tariff bills by our National Congress. Of course, this constitutes an additional reason in the minds of political bosses and the interests which they represent for regarding me as a poor Republican."

After reviewing his record and the legislation he has helped to write, Mr. Norris said:

"For all these reasons I am denounced by the standpat element of the Republican party and by the patronage chasers of the Republican machine.

"No charge of wrongdoing is made against me. No claim is advanced that I have failed in the duty I owe to my country or to my State. The sole accusation against me is that of party irregularity."

Denies Politics in Appointment.

Mr. McKelvie, in reply to the statement of Senator Norris that the former Governor of Nebraska was appointed by the President to the Federal Farm Board to put him in line to run for Senator, said:

"I am not a particle interested in what Mr. Norris does. I accepted a place on the Farm Board at the urgent request of the President, and there was no politics in the appointment.

"As long as I am a member of the Farm Board I shall devote myself exclusively to this task, without any political activity whatever. Whenever Mr. Norris or any of his followers undertake to interfere with my work here I will resent it.

Aldermen Back Police Pay Rise.

The Board of Aldermen unanimously adopted yesterday a resolution, sponsored by the Committee on Rules, placing that body on record as approving the proposed increase in pay for first grade policemen and firemen. The proposed increases will be submitted to the city electorate in the form of a referendum at the municipal election next Tuesday.

that there should be some industrial changes also. We should get both sides to sit down and try to pass the bill along protective tariff lines.

"If they [the Democrats and insurgents] are unwilling to sit down and reach an agreement, it is very doubtful, in my mind, whether any bill will be passed because of a sheer inability to get together, or if not inability, a manifest unwillingness.

"This all may be worked out in a proper spirit, as every real protectionist hopes that it will be. It would be for the benefit of business and the country for both sides, those in favor of industrial changes and those favoring agricultural adjustment, to get together, and if they don't, there will be no tariff bill.

"It is manifestly necessary that an agreement be reached, and both sides should realize that, with the stock market conditions and the probable slowing down of business as a result of the market's collapse, this economic subject of the tariff should be speedily settled to help business."

Would Leave Step to Republicans.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, asserted that if any move was made to adjourn, the initiative must come from the Republicans. Mr. Robinson seemed not unwilling to agree to an adjournment, but said he certainly would not permit the Democrats to be forced into the position of demanding it.

Senator Simmons, ranking Democrat of the finance committee and minority tariff leader, insisted that the bill should proceed whether the Old Guard liked it or not. He asserted that it was absolutely necessary that the bill be completely rewritten to raise farm rates and reduce industrial duties, and that this was a "herculean" task, not to be completed in a short time.

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee demanded that the bill be pressed and promised to use his best efforts in that direction. He again urged that debate be confined to the bill, and expressed a qualified hope that a final Senate vote might be had before Dec. 2.

Of all the leaders Senator Reed seemed the most gloomy. He said that if all the fifteen schedules were temporarily laid aside and the Senate started on the sundries schedule, it would be impossible to finish the finance committee amendments on this schedule by Dec. 2.

"The bill is dead as a dodo," he dryly commented, adding that the deadlock with the House would be clearly demonstrated by Nov. 16.

"To continue the debate is a mockery," he added. "The best thing to do would be to adopt a motion of adjournment. I may offer it myself."

The death of the bill, according to Mr. Reed, would come in conference, because the House would never agree to such a measure as the present Senate would approve.

Simmons for Passing Bill.

Senator Simmons shared this view to the extent of saying that if the bill did die, it would be in conference and not in the Senate. He insisted that it could be put through the Senate, if not at the special session, then in the regular session. In making this declaration, Mr. Simmons counted on the strength of the coalition to pass the measure in the face of the most strenuous Old Guard opposition.

Announcement that Senator Robinson is also leaving Washington this week gave strength to reports that the bill was being abandoned. It was explained, however, that, as Mr. Robinson has a general pair with Mr. Watson, the Democrat would be protected on all tariff votes during his two weeks' trip to Arkansas.

The death of such an important measure in conference would be unprecedented. Senator Robinson stated. Some leading Republicans admitted this, and also conceded that to sacrifice a tariff bill would be a hard blow to their party. Others said it would be better to have no bill than one rewritten by the coalition into a measure lacking the basic Republican principle of full protection.

Senator Connally, a Democratic member of the Finance Committee, considered that the bill was dead, but Senators La Follette and Norbeck, Progressive Republicans, argued that it would be better to go ahead and try to reframe the measure. Both, like other coalitionists, stoutly denied that there had been any undue delay or attempt to filibuster the measure.

With the Senate in recess today out of respect to the late Senator Burton, attention became fixed on the possible course of the House toward a tariff bill, with the debenture and the Simmons-Norris flexible provisions included. It has always been taken for granted that the House would oppose both of these. But it was learned that a large bloc of administration Republicans in the House are not enthusiastic about retaining the existing flexible provisions and might be willing to allow retention of the Simmons-Norris amendment if the debenture plan is thrown overboard.

The chance of such a course being followed was also held out by Representative Garner of Texas, minority House leader. Mr. Garner said that if President Hoover would accept a tariff measure without the Executive flexible provision, which he had urged and which the Senate threw out, he believed other differences, such as the debenture plan, would be adjusted in conference.

Statement by Simmons.

Responsibility for failure of the tariff bill will rest entirely upon the Republican-controlled House and the President, Senator Simmons said in a statement issued through the Democratic National Committee.

"There will be a vote on the tariff bill either during this extra session or the next regular session of Congress, and if it is killed in conference, the responsibility will rest upon the House and the administration," he said.

"The Senate now is dealing with a tariff bill that the majority of Senators will not approve and this majority is trying to rewrite the bill to conform to its views. This coalition has demonstrated that it has the votes to rewrite the bill, but it is a stupendous task to accomplish it in a form where debate is unlimited.

"How long it will take cannot be safely predicted, but it can be said that there is not likely to be a vote on the question of the passage of the bill by the Senate during this extraordinary session. Whether the Senate will adopt the bill depends upon whipping it into such shape as the group of Senators now in control will approve.

"The final attitude of the President toward the bill which the majority of Senators will approve seems not to be known even by his intimates in the Senate, but obviously it would be very difficult for him to veto it, they say, for the reason that it contains a debenture feature.

"In the Presidential campaign he stressed the urgency of agricultural relief and in his call convening this Congress in extraordinary session the President made it clear that he desired a revision of the existing tariff act with benefits to agriculture as a primary goal.

"The Senate adopted the Norris debenture amendment for the reason that it provides the only machinery for making effective the agricultural rates in the tariff bill, and the President may not veto the bill because of the inclusion of this plan without discountenancing his campaign promises to the farmer and retreating from one of his major objectives in convening Congress in extra session."

Rate on Olive Oil Assailed.

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts said the Senate's recent increase of the rate on olive oil from 7½ to 9½ cents a pound would mean an annual tax of $9.15 instead of $7.85 upon the average Italian-American family and a total annual cost of $2,000,000 to olive oil consumers.

"If that vote is indicative of similar increases to come on food products, the American people will have their cost of living advanced in alarming proportions," he asserted.

Senator Goldsborough, Republican, of Maryland demanded the elimination of the proposed 10 per cent duty on hides, and favored an increase in the duty on sole or belting leather from the Finance Committee rate of 15 cents to 20 cents.

In announcing his preference to vote against a tariff bill remade by the coalition instead of trying to smother the measure in conference, Senator Moses quoted the following lines from Oscar Wilde's "Ballad of Reading Gaol":

"For each man kills the thing he loves—
By all let this be heard—
The coward does it with a kiss,
The brave man with a sword."

BINGHAM MOTION HELD UP.

Norris Will Press Tomorrow for Censure of Connecticut Senator.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP).—The proposed resolution of censure of Senator Bingham of Connecticut was withheld today as the Senate adjourned as a mark of respect for the late Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio.

Senator Burton's death brought about a two-day truce in the quarrel over Senator Bingham's use of Charles Eyanson, a salaried representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association, in work on the tariff bill. Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, will offer his resolution Thursday.

The resolution had not been drawn finally, but it was understood that Mr. Norris who, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, appointed the Lobby Committee, would propose that the Senate officially censure Senator Bingham for his relations with the manufacturers.

There also were rumors that an amendment would be offered to the Norris resolution proposing that Mr. Bingham be discharged from the Senate Finance Committee, as a member of which he helped to frame the tariff bill.

There is no indication of the attitude of the Senate on the proposed censure of Mr. Bingham. So far, no one has raised a voice to defend the Connecticut Senator. Mr. Bingham in his own defense yesterday charged that the Lobby Committee which examined him was "framed" against any friend of the administration and was unfair to him.

The formation of a permanent women's interracial committee will also be considered by the conference, which is sponsored by the church women's committee of the commission on the church and race relations of the Federal Council of Churches.

M'FEELY INDICTED ON PERJURY CHARGE

Brother of Hoboken Democratic Leader Held in $2,500 Bail in Hudson County.

ACCUSED IN GARBAGE DEAL

False Testimony Alleged to Have Been Given Before Legislative Investigating Committee.

James J. McFeely, brother of Commissioner Bernard N. McFeely, Democratic leader and Director of Safety of Hoboken, was indicted for perjury by the Hudson County Grand Jury yestrday within an hour after that body was organized and sternly charged as to its duties by Supreme Court Justice Kalisch.

The grand jury that returned the indictment replaces the September grand jury, which was dismissed last Friday in midterm by Justice Kalisch for its failure to return indictments.

Several minutes after it acted on the McFeely case the grand jury presented its indictment to County Judge Thomas H. Brown. Friends of McFeely had meanwhile reached him in Hoboken, and before a warrant was issued he surrendered to Judge Brown. Bail was fixed at $2,500, which was furnished by Commissioner McFeely.

The indictment was based on McFeely's testimony before the Case and McAllister legislative investigating committee concerning the manner of payments of $25,000 deposit for renewal of the Hoboken garbage collection contract, which McFeely has held for several years. He is alleged to have told the committee the money was paid in cash and later, it is alleged, he declared the deposit had been made in the form of a certified check.

John Drewen, Republican prosecutor of Hudson County, submitted the record of McFeely's alleged perjury to three successive grand juries without result. The case was placed before the recently dismissed grand jury three times following a specific charge by Justice Kalisch to indict, but the body refused to do so.

SEEKS TAX FROM REED.

Government Takes His Pennsylvania Fee Case to Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP).—The government would have the Supreme Court rule that Senator David A. Reed was taxable on $2,500 which he had received from Pennsylvania as counsel for the State in the settlement of inheritance taxes due the State from the Henry Frick estate and from the Edith Ann Oliver estate.

In December, 1920, Senator Reed was appointed special counsel for the State by the Attorney General of Pennsylvania and presented his bill for $2,500 in 1921 for professional services in the cases. The government took the position that the money should be added to the other income which the Senator had received as a lawyer and assessed an additional tax of $1,215. Senator Reed contested before the Board of Tax Appeals and lost, but was successful in his appeal to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals, which last July held that the income which he had received from the State was exempt from Federal taxation.

The government takes the position that Senator Reed was not an independent contractor or any employe of the State in such a capacity as to relieve him from exemption on the fee he had received.

Light Standard Devised by Wensel.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The final development of a reproducible standard of light in terms of which all methods of artificial illumination can be rated was announced today by Dr. H. F. Wensel of the Bureau of Standards. The light standard is that emitted from a hollow enclosure in a bath of molton platinum during the solidification of the metal. It is said to have the advantage of being based upon a natural constant which will not change with time.

TOBACCO MAN FALLS TO DEATH AT HOTEL

ACCIDENT, POLICE REPORT

$12,500,000 Company's Stock, Which Had Sold as High as 113¾, Went to 4 in Market Crash.

Anthony Schneider, 60 years old, president of Webster Eisenlohr, Inc., of 511 Fifth Avenue, one of the largest cigar manufacturing concerns in the United States, was instantly killed yesterday morning when he fell six stories from a window in his three-room suite on the eleventh floor of the Beverly, an apartment hotel at 125 East Fiftieth Street.

The body fell to the roof of Loew's Lexington Theatre, a five-story building which adjoins the Beverly. The fall was witnessed by Louis Morell, a waiter, who took breakfast to Mr. Schneider's apartment and seized the tobacco man's foot as he slipped from the window ledge. Morell held on for a moment, but the shoe gave way and Mr. Schneider plunged to his death.

The police said the death was accidental. It was said he was attempting to fix a radio aerial outside his window, lost his balance and fell.

Mr. Schneider was president of Webster Eisenlohr, Inc., for more than a year. The company is a $12,500,000 concern, and its stock, which sold during the year as high as 113¾, closed yesterday at 4.

At the offices of Webster Eisenlohr the following statement was issued after Mr. Schneider's death:

"Mr. Schneider was connected with the company in an executive capacity, beginning in April, 1928, and during the past year under his management the company has made very substantial progress. The 1929 business of the company, including that of the recently acquired companies, has shown a 44 per cent increase over 1928. The company is now oversold many million cigars and is making rapid strides in the development of new markets.

"Mr. John J. Rogers, vice president, who has been with the company since 1923, and who is familiar with all phases of the business, will direct the management of the company until formal action is taken by the board of directors."

Patrolman Thomas J. Haverty of the East Fifty-first Street police station, who was summoned to the Beverly, in turning in his report of Mr. Schneider's death, made this statement: "Either fell or jumped from window of his apartment, 11-L, on the eleventh floor of the Beverly Hotel, to roof of Lexington Theatre, a distance of about four or five floors." Detective Irving Frey of the same station, who investigated, reported the death was accidental.

Mr. Schneider, although he lived with his family at Whippany, N. J., also made his home about three days a week at the Beverly. He engaged the three-room apartment last February.

Town's 'Speechless Campaign' Is Fought Out at Party Teas

Special to The New York Times.

THORNWOOD, N. Y., Oct. 29.—This city's speechless campaign went on at a great rate tonight, with the muted tones of the high school orchestra taking the place of a political band and with pimento cheese sandwiches instead of oratory. For the Republican women's organization gave a tea for prospective voters.

It is seldom that there is a speechless campaign, especially with fourteen offices in jeopardy. Yet this year the Republicans decided they would hold more teas and suppers, would speak to voters man to man, and would talk to crowds not at all. And so far there have been no meetings.

The Democrats, however, are speaking.

MISTRIAL FOR CATTS WHEN JURY DEADLOCKS

Two Accused in Counterfeiting Ring With Florida's Ex-Governor Plead Guilty.

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 29 (AP).—A mistrial, ordered by Judge Alexander Akerman when the Federal court jury was unable to break a twenty-four-hour deadlock, brought an end to the trial of former Governor Sidney J. Catts today.

Catts was named on nine charges in two indictments with financing the operations of a counterfeiting ring. He departed immediately for his home in Defuniak Springs under $17,500 bond to await second trial on the charges in February.

Two principals of the counterfeiting ring in which the government sought to implicate Catts entered pleas of guilty today. Julian Diaz, who testified that Catts had voluntarily loaned $5,000 to him to buy $25,000 in counterfeit bills, was sentenced to serve four years concurrently with a five-year term he is serving in Atlanta Penitentiary on another charge.

An hour after the former Governor left the court room Mateo Mir of Tampa entered a plea of guilty. Mir was sentenced to serve one year and a day in Federal Penitentiary. Later in the afternoon he entered another plea of guilty, this time to charges of alien smuggling. He received a suspended sentence of five years in Federal Penitentiary, Judge Akerman ordering that he be deported when his counterfeiting sentence had been served.

Other defendants in the case are Leah Burwell, who, with Diaz, was a government witness against Catts, and Armando Dominguez.

Catts refused through the eight days of the trial to make any statement.

LABOR OPENS WAY TO ORGANIZE SOUTH

UNIONISM HELD AT STAKE

Federation Leaders Will Meet in a Southern City Before Nov. 18 to Plan "Titanic Struggle."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Because of the crisis precipitated by the industrial situation in the Southern States and a concentrated effort to be made by the American Federation of Labor to deal with a situation which it believes threatens the existence of the labor movement, William Green, president of the federation and of the executive committee of the Pan-American Federation of Labor, today announced the "temporary postponement" of the Sixth Pan-American Labor Congress, scheduled to convene in Havana Jan. 6.

Another reason for deferring the session was difficulty in arranging for the attendance of full delegations from Latin America. The decision was made by the executive committee, including, besides Mr. Green, Luis W. Morones, vice president; Matthew Woll, treasurer, and Santiago Iglesias, secretary.

"The principal reason which prompted this decision of the executive committee," Mr. Green said, "is based upon the fact that a special organization campaign has been launched and is being carried on among working people in the South and elsewhere by the American Federation of Labor where over a million members are employed in the different industries of the Southern States and elsewhere.

"Because of the heavy demands which will be made upon the officers of the American Federation of Labor it will be impossible for the American Federation of Labor to send its delegation to the Havana congress of the Pan-American Federation of Labor if it is held next January, 1930.

"The labor movement in the South finds itself confronted with one of the most gigantic campaigns ever launched by the employers to prevent organized labor doing their duty.

"Thus it will be seen that with over a million members to be called upon the American Federation of Labor finds it necessary to concentrate all of its energies and resources on this titanic struggle, in which the very existence of the organized labor movement is at stake."

Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation, said today the heads of all national and international unions would be called into conference before Nov. 18 to discuss methods of organizing the workers of the South. It was said that the labor leaders would meet in some Southern city.

MOTTS SUE FOR DIVORCE.

Motor Executive and Third Wife Separate in Michigan.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 29.—Charles S. Mott, vice president of General Motors, and his bride of eight months, the former Mrs. Dee Furey, are suing for divorce in the Genesee County court, attorneys for both revealed today.

A public statement, issued today and signed by Brownell & Gault, attorneys for Mr. Mott, and Milburn & Semmes, attorneys for Mrs. Mott, reads:

"Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Mott have separated. Both parties agree that a reconciliation is impossible. A bill for divorce was filed in the Genesee County Circuit Court on September 30, and proofs will be taken about Dec. 2. A mutually satisfactory property settlement has been agreed upon."

Little is known of the differences that wrecked the romance between the 54-year-old executive and the 29-year-old divorced wife of Dr. Ned Furey of Detroit.

BRINGS SAFETY PLANE.

Professor Hans Hecke Arrives to Enter Guggenheim Competition.

Professor Hans Hecke, trial flight director of the Czechoslovak Military Academy at Prague, arrived yesterday on the Cosulich liner Vulcania to enter a safety device in the Guggenheim Fund competition. When told the competititon ended on Nov. 1, Professor Hecke said he had been in communication with the Guggenheim fund officials and believed he would have an opportunity to demonstrate his invention.

As he explained it, the device consists of two flap wings, attached to each end of the plane's wings. He claims that the stabilizer so adjusts itself to air currents that there is no chance of a nose-dive, side-slip or tail-spin, even when the plane is piloted by a novice.

The inventor had a paper duplicate of his plane to demonstrate how it would come out on an even keel, no matter what position it was put into by the pilot. He flung the paper plane into the air and it settled evenly and almost vertically.

WINDOW CLEANERS TO FIGHT

Union Announces That Strike Will Be Continued Indefinitely.

The strike of window cleaners, which began Oct. 16, will continue indefinitely, it was announced yesterday by the Window Cleaners' Protective Union, Local 8, following the refusal of the Manhattan Window Cleaners' Protective Association to grant the union's demands.

At a meeting in the Broadway Central Hotel Harry Fink, president of the employers' association, offered a $2 increase in the minimum weekly rate of $45, but no decrease in the working hours. This offer was rejected unanimously at a mass meeting of workers in the Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East Fourth Street. It was announced that forty-three independent firms have met the union demands and the men have gone back to work for them.

Union representatives asserted that about 2,000 men were still on strike, while Mr. Fink maintained that the business of window cleaning was 70 per cent normal.

DRESS UNION VOTES $750,000 FOR STRIKE

BOND ISSUE AUTHORIZED

$325,000 to Be Raised by Sale of Securities and $325,000 by Levies —45,000 Affected Here.

The establishment of a "war chest" of $750,000 to finance a general strike of 45,000 dressmakers here and about 35,000 workers in other cities in this country and in Canada was voted yesterday by the general executive board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. The action was taken by the board at the first session of its four-day conference at the Hotel Governor Clinton, Seventh Avenue and Thirty-first Street.

The board voted to raise one-third of the $750,000 fund by floating a bond issue and the rest through membership taxation still to be approved by the union convention in Cleveland Dec. 2.

The union has threatened to call the strike on Dec. 31, when its contracts with manufacturers' associations expire.

The demands of the union are: Elimination of sweatshops, an effective five-day week rule, and an impartial governing commission to control the dress industry similar to that recently established in the cloak and suit field.

A gain of 15,000 members following the cloak strike of last Summer was reported by union officials. The board also voted to recommend to the joint board here to restore the sanitary "Prosanis" label, so that union-made clothes might easily be identified by purchasers.

The New York dress strike is expected to come almost simultaneously with a series of dress and cloak strikes in other cities.

At its meeting today the board is expected to consider in detail the problems connected with the projected general strike.

Other Departments Send Men to Roosevelt Field Lectures.

Special to The New York Times.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I., Oct. 29.—Augmenting the actual flying instruction being given to members of the New York Police Department at the Roosevelt Flying School, Department of Commerce officials stationed at this field announced today that they would instruct more than 300 members of other police departments in the rules and regulations of proper and safe flying. By lecturing to the policemen on the ground as planes perform overhead, each manoeuvre will be classified and the right and wrong ways of executing turns will be explained so that they may be able to report on instances of dangerous flying. They will be taught also how to identify planes in flight. The loud-speaker method used in announcing during contests at the field will be used in the lectures, it was announced.

12 PERISH IN WRECK ON LAKE MICHIGAN

CAPTAIN DROWNS AT POST

Coast Guardsmen and Fishing Tug Crew Battle Gale to Get Survivors Ashore.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—The death toll from shipwrecks on Lake Michigan within a week reached sixty-four when the steamship Wisconsin sank this morning six and a half miles off Kenosha, Wis., nine of her crew drowning in one of the worst autumnal storms in the history of the Great Lakes region. Three missing sailors have been given up for dead.

The loss of the Wisconsin, pride of the Goodrich Transit Company's fleet, came seven days after the sinking of the car ferry Milwaukee with its crew of fifty-two. Captain Dougal Morrison and Julius Bushman, chief engineer of the Wisconsin, perished. Sixty souls, including four passengers, were saved by coast guardsmen.

Hours of pumping against an overrising flood in the rocking, plunging hold of the leaking ship, until the fires were quenched, the engines stilled, the pumps choked with ashes and the ship sank, this was the story of the battle of the crew.

Hours of struggling against a furious sea, and rescues of men in lifeboats, on rafts, clinging to wreckage and swimming feebly and a final battle to bring the dead and the rescued into Kenosha was the epic spun by the Coast Guardsmen of Kenosha and Racine.

Ran Into Gale at Start.

In addition to Captain Morrison of Chicago and Chief Engineer Bushman of Hanitowoc, Wis., the known dead are Victor Estes, Tom Richards and Joseph Metz, deckhands; I. B. H. De Cassagua of Muskegon, Mich., and another negro cook; Walter Rein, a watchman, and an unidentified deckhand.

The Wisconsin, an iron ship built in 1881, left Chicago at 8 o'clock Monday night with a cargo of automobiles, iron castings and boxed merchandise. Soon afterward the rising wind became a gale, blowing fifty miles an hour. The ship lurched heavily. A great wave struck her and the cargo shifted, it is suspected, straining the plates.

Kenneth Carlson, wireless operator of the Wisconsin, related how he called the Goodrich station at Chicago, and notified them the vessel was in distress.

"I asked them to notify the Kenosha and Racine Coast Guards to come out," he said. "I guess it was about 1:30 this morning when the captain told me to send out an S O S. I stayed at the radio, sounding S O S's until the order came to abandon the ship."

With the ship anchored and sinking at the rate of about a foot an hour, the crew stood about waiting for rescue or death. Bill Placeway told how he stood at the rail with his mates.

Fred Treuber, a lookout, told of Captain Morrison's calmness.

"About 3 o'clock it was plain we couldn't last much longer," said Treuber. "A little after 4 the Coast Guard boat arrived, but the lake was so rough it couldn't come near us and our starboard side was high in the air. We threw them a line but it caught in their propeller.

Captain Inspired Crew.

"Then the captain ordered the lifeboats lowered on the port side. He was calm and inspired all of us with his courage. Without him on the bridge there, singing out orders, we probably would all have been lost.

"Fifteen of us got into a boat. We all thought we were gone sure, but the Coast Guard vessel pulled all us aboard."

John Dentes, a deckhand, told of the death of Captain Morrison. The ship was sinking rapidly, but a dozen men were still aboard. When the last boat had been lowered, the captain ordered the lifecrafts on the upper decks cut loose. The remaining men, at his command, climbed on the rafts and prepared to hold fast when the end came.

Captain Morrison shouted orders and directions to the men and the rescuers until the lower decks were submerged. Then he started for a raft. But he was too late.

"Just as he groped toward us the ship took a sudden lurch," Donter said. "In a second, it seemed, the prow came up and then dove for the bottom. Two of the rafts floated all right and some of those on the other raft swam to us.

Save Survivors on Rafts.

KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. 29 (AP).—Two Coast Guard cutters, one from Racine and the other from Kenosha, responded shortly before 8 A. M. today to the call for help from the sinking Wisconsin. The first lifeboat was lowered and in a few minutes a Coast Guard cutter took its human cargo aboard. This manner of rescue continued until five boatloads had been taken aboard the two cutters. The cutters were unable to get alongside the vessel because of the high seas.

With their burden of shivering humanity, the cutters docked at the Coast Guard station here and immediately returned to stand by. In the meantime a Chambers Brothers' fishing tug went to the scene, arriving soon after the Wisconsin went down at 7:10 A. M.

The Chambers picked up fifteen survivors, eight on one life raft, four on another and three from a lifeboat, that as it capsized. A fourth occupant of the lifeboat perished when the boat rolled over, the crew of the Chambers being unable to reach him.

A life raft bearing eight men turned over completely three times just before the men were rescued. On one of the turnovers Chief Engineer Bushman, crazed by his experience, lost his hold as he fought off attempts of his mates to pull him back on the raft. His body was recovered.

On the second incoming trip the Racine Coast Guard cutter brought a cargo of six dead (including Captain Morrison and Bushman). All six were picked up floating in the water. Several were still alive when picked up, but died from exposure on the way to the dock. On its second trip the Kenosha cutter brought in six survivors, all alive.

The Wisconsin had been owned by the Goodrich Company for the last six years and was 48 years old. In 1916 she was rebuilt and was registered as a steel vessel, 250 feet long, and of 1,921 gross tonnage. She was considered one of the most seaworthy on the Great Lakes and was the only boat of her kind to outweather last Tuesday's gale. She was a combination passenger and freight carrier on the Chicago-Milwaukee run. In the World War she was an army hospital ship. Many of her crew were making their first voyage on her.

SECOND HIGHEST PEAK BALKS SIX GERMANS

One in Calcutta Hospital After Long Hardships in Effort to Climb Kinchin-Jinga in Himalayas.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CALCUTTA, Oct. 29.—Heroic feats of endurance were performed by a party of six German explorers who have just returned to Darjeeling after an unsuccessful attempt to scale Kinchin-Jinga, in the Himalayas, the second highest mountain in the world. They reached a height of 24,440 feet before abandoning their attempt.

Starting on Aug. 28 from their advanced base camp on the upper Zemu glacier at 17,000 feet, the explorers attacked the spur at the head of the glacier. But a blizzard destroyed all their work and fear of avalanches caused them to retreat to their base camp. On Sept. 20 they formed a camp at 20,000 feet and spent eight bitter days cutting ice steps up the side of the glacier. They climbed slowly and painfully and on Sept. 30 camped at 23,400 feet, where they prepared for the final attack.

The cold became intense, the maximum being 2 degrees above zero. After three days of climbing in intense cold, the bitter winds forced them to give up. During the descent the explorers were overtaken by a small avalanche which buried their kit, so they had to spend the night at 20,000 feet without blankets or sleeping bags.

All suffered from frostbite and Dr. Seipel had to be dragged part of the way by his weary companions. He is now in Calcutta Hospital, but his companions have completely recovered.

Woman Accused of Smuggling Aliens—Man Also Held.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Oct. 29.—Ella Freedman, an American, and Dix Poppas, a Greek, are on the way to Havana from Isabella de Sagua for deportation as undesirables.

The woman owned a cabaret at Isabella de Sagua noted for scenes of disorder. She is said to have been able to cope with the most unruly of the sailors who patronized the place and is described as a "two-gun fighter." One of her activities is alleged to have been the smuggling of aliens into the United States.

Dix Poppas, until recently a bootblack in Havana, is said to have been her aide in smuggling aliens. He has had a checkered career, his occupations having included being a student in a commercial institute at Calamares and a stock broker's agent in Athens. His father is said to be an orthodox clergyman and professor in the Institute of Saloniki.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 29 (AP).—Two workmen, Charles Francis, 53, and Antone Souza, 28, this city, were plunged 150 feet to instant death here today at the power plant of the New Bedford Gas & Edison Company when a corner of a staging gave way.

MISSING AIRLINER BROUGHT IN SAFELY

looked safe, so I got down there as snappily as possible. I thought the weather would clear later in the afternoon.

"During the afternoon a woman, who had seen us land, called and said we could find a house a mile or so away. The weather was not clearing as we expected, so we decided to dig in and all moved over to the house.

"I built a big fire, and we tried to be as comfortable as possible, but we nearly froze. The storm meanwhile was increasing. We had nothing to eat or drink. The light lunches all had been consumed and the water bottles emptied.

"About 1:30 this afternoon I saw a chance to get away and we took it. It started to snow just as we took off, landing at Albuquerque an hour later."

Doles said the motor trouble did not figure in the forced landing at all, but the weather was impassable.

Foot of Snow in Morning.

Dr. Ward praised Doles's ability as pilot, and gave him the credit of bringing the ship through safely.

"The storm we encountered was impassable," Dr. Ward said. "It just smothered us all at once. Doles did the right thing; nothing could have passed through it.

"The snow was about a foot deep this morning, and my appetite was deeper than that."

Mr. Merz, a veteran air-traveler, also expressed great confidence in Doles's flying technique.

"We had a good time last night sitting before that fire kidding each other about what might have been. It is a real experience," he said.

A trapper gave the marooned men their bearings. They were ten miles southeast of Treshado, the nearest postoffice, and sixty-seven miles from the nearest telephone. The nearest house was five miles away but there were two deserted cabins about a mile away. It was in one of these cabins that they spent the night.

The next morning some old dried beans and flour were found. Dr. Ward was elected cook, and after a noon dinner of stewed beans and biscuits, the air voyagers took off, their plane spiraling out of the valley and heading for Albuquerque.

Mr. Merz plans to continue by plane tomorrow to Kansas City. Dr. Ward, who was scheduled to speak at a meeting of dentists in Fort Worth today, decided to return to Los Angeles by plane.

MAIL FLIER BURNED IN OHIO PLANE CRASH

E. M. Kane, Pilot on Cleveland-St. Louis Route, Plunges Into Woods Near Mount Vernon.

MOUNT VERNON, Ohio, Oct. 29 (AP).—E. M. Kane, pilot of the southbound Cleveland-Louisville mail plane of the Universal Line, was burned to death early today when his plane crashed into a grove of trees on a farm eight miles southwest of Mount Vernon.

Kane, according to farmers living near by, apparently had lost his way in a dense fog. They first heard the ship, seemingly flying in circles, about 5:40 A. M. The drone of its motors suddenly ceased and a few minutes later they saw a blaze in a patch of woods on the farm of Elmer Higgins.

When they reached the scene they were unable to reach the pilot's body until the fire subsided. Most of the mail was destroyed.

PILOT WHO SAVED AIRSHIP.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 29 (AP).—Elmer Kane was one of the oldest pilots in point of service employed by the Universal. He had 7,000 hours of flying to his credit. His home was at Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Universal officials said rain and fog which forced Kane to attempt an emergency landing caused the fatal crash.

AIR MAIL TO BUENOS AIRES.

Postal Authorities Plan Extension From Paramaribo Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General, in charge of airmail, announced today the department was considering the extension at an early date of the Foreign Air Mail Service in South America south from Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, to Montevideo and Buenos Aires.

The announcement was made in commenting upon plans of the German Lufthansa Company to start an air mail service from Europe across the South Atlantic to connect with the South American lines of its subsidiary, the Kondor Syndikat.

Mr. Glover said that, although it has been erroneously reported that the department had awarded a contract for the extension of its South American service, two routes for the extension were being considered, a coast route via Belem, Recife, San Salvador, Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo and an interior route between Belen and Sao Paulo.

The Pan-American Airways and the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires Line, the latter backed by the Munson Steamship interests, are negotiating for the air mail service south of Paramaribo.

FIVE STATES TO HOLD ELECTIONS TUESDAY

Virginia Alone, However, Will Choose a Governor, With Various Issues Up in Others.

DEMOCRATS SPLIT THERE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP).—This year of truce in the national game of politics brings forth one State and two municipal elections in which enough color, bitterness and strategy are compounded to attract nation-wide attention.

Torn by a coalition revolt against the Democratic machine, Virginia is one of the many States in which voters will go to the polls next Tuesday. It alone, of all the States, elects a Governor.

Besides the city election in New York, that in Boston is attracting great interest. Ex-Mayor James M. Curley seeks another term against the opposition of Frederick W. Mansfield, Good Government Association candidate, and Daniel H. Coakley, an independent.

There is a single Congressional contest in the country, that in New York City to elect a successor to the late Representative Roy H. Weller.

There will be State-wide elections in Pennsylvania, Illinois, Kentucky and Ohio, with the first two States electing State judges. Kentucky will select 100 members of its House of Representatives, twenty members of its Senate and vote on several constitutional amendments, and Ohio will vote on constitutional amendments.

Municipal elections are to be held not only in New York and Massachusetts, but in Arizona, California, Indiana, Kansas, Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania, while in Minnesota, St. Paul voters will determine whether their city government shall continue under a commission or a city manager.

The situation in Virginia, where two college professors, John Garland Pollard, Democrat, and William Moseley Brown, candidate of the anti-Smith Democrats and the Republicans, are contesting for the Governorship, is without parallel in the State's history, in that there is an open coalition of Republicans and Democrats.

The coalition is an outgrowth of the revolt within the Democratic party against Alfred E. Smith in the last Presidential campaign, which resulted in Virginia going Republican for the first time since reconstruction days. A year ago, however, the Republican and anti-Smith Democratic organizations worked separately.

"Cannonism" and "Raskobism" are terms which have been often heard in the campaign, with some of the Democratic organization leaders opposing what they contend is the effort of Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to obtain control of the political machinery in the State.

The Democrats revolting against the regular party machine have raised what they term the issue of "Raskobism" in opposition to the chairman of the Democratic National Committee. They argue that a victory for Dr. Pollard is a victory for what they term the Tammany controlled national Democratic organization.

ASKS RECEIVER FOR HORSE.

Jeweler Seeks to Enforce $1,213 Judgment Against Harry Segal.

The Supreme Court will have a race horse in its custody if an application filed yesterday by L. Barton Brookov, a jeweler, for the appointment of a receiver for the thoroughbred My Son is granted.

The suit was brought against Harry Segal and his wife, Mollie Segal, on the ground that the jeweler got a judgment for $1,213 against Mr. Segal last January, which is unpaid, and that, after the suit was brought, Segal transferred the ownership of the horse to his wife for the alleged purpose of defrauding his creditors.

The papers were served on Mr. Segal at the Empire City Race Track.

BUILDING DEPRESSION DISCUSSED BY BANKER

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 29 (AP).—Ways and means for avoiding depression in the building field when there is activity in Wall Street were discussed before the opening session of the annual convention of the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America here today by E. E. Murrey of Nashville, Tenn., president of the association.

"Wall Street has been a magnet attracting funds from other activities for the past few months and the burden has fallen largely on real estate," he said. "We discovered almost overnight that mortgage securities were face to face with severe competition from other forms of securities. Call loans reached the astounding figure of $7,000,000,000 and during the first eight months of 1929, the building of residences fell off 26.3 per cent.

"Undoubtedly in some quarters real estate had been boomed too much in the post-war years and the present credit stringency is having a healthful effect. But looking at the situation from a long-pull economic viewpoint, is it desirable for the country as a whole that such fundamental industries as farming and building construction should be financed in those periods when the stock market is slow?"

HOOVER WILL ATTEND FUNERAL OF BURTON

President Calls Ohio Senator's Death a National Loss and Praises His Record.

BODY WILL LIE IN SENATE

Committee of Twenty Colleagues Are Appointed to Be Present at Rites in Cleveland.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—President and Mrs. Hoover will attend the funeral services for Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, one of the President's close friends, in the Senate Chamber tomorrow.

In a statement issued today Mr. Hoover said:

"The death of a great leader is a national loss. Senator Burton gave practically all his long adult manhood to public service, in turn to his city, his State and to the nation.

"His was always constructive action and from his leadership has sprung much of our national advancement. He was a true servant of the people, profoundly versed in the history and tradition of our institutions, jealous to preserve their integrity.

"When the origins of great and successful policies are examined in the retrospect of history, the Senator's name will rank among the first leaders of his time. He has ever been held in a respect which many years ago became veneration.

"His death is a grievous personal loss to me. He was a lovable character and an affectionate friend."

Senate Committee Named.

Three minutes after the Senate met today it adjourned out of respect after adopting a resolution eulogizing Mr. Burton, and directing the vice-president to name a committee of twenty Senators to accompany the body to Cleveland, Ohio, for burial. The committee follows:

REPUBLICANS.

Fess, Ohio.
Watson, Indiana, the majority leader.
Jones, Washington.
Smoot, Utah.
Borah, Idaho.
Moses, New Hampshire.
Gillett, Massachusetts.
Phipps, Colorado.
Deneen, Illinois.
Capper, Kansas.
Warren, Wyoming.
Sackett, Kentucky.

DEMOCRATS.

Robinson, Arkansas, the minority leader.
Simmons, North Carolina.
Harrison, Mississippi.
Harris, Georgia.
Hawes, Missouri.
Sheppard, Texas.
Walsh, Montana.
Bratton, New Mexico.

Body to Lie in Senate.

Mr. Burton's body will be taken to the Senate Chamber after a brief prayer at his apartment, where Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, will officiate. Four Ohio newspaper men, Robert Norton, Mr. Burton's secretary, and William Burton, his nephew, will be the active pallbearers.

The body will be placed before the rostrum of the Senate Chamber. Addresses will be made by Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, representing the Senate, and Congressman Willis C. Haugen of Oregon, representing the House of Representatives.

At 7:20 o'clock tomorrow night the body will be taken on its last journey from Washington to Cleveland aboard a Pennsylvania Railroad train, which arrives at the Union Station in Cleveland at 8:10 o'clock Thursday morning.

Said He Wanted Public Funeral.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 29 (AP).—The body of Senator Burton will lie in state at the Public Hall here Thursday morning in accordance with wishes he expressed when he realized death was upon him.

Three years ago when his seventy-fifth birthday was being celebrated with a dinner here, the Senator, half in jest and half in earnest, said he had two ambitions, to die in office and have a public funeral. Five weeks ago he realized this was to come true and summoned City Manager William R. Hopkins to take charge of funeral arrangements. Hopkins made three hurried airplane trips to the capital to discuss the plans, but did not disclose their purpose until the Senator's death last night.

At noon Thursday the funeral procession will form at the Public Hall and with a military escort go to the Euclid Avenue Congregational Church, where the services will be conducted by the Rev. Ferdinand Q. Blanchard, pastor of the church. Burial will be in Lakeview Cemetery.

Eight Proposed for Burton's Place.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 29 (AP).—Names of eight Ohioans were submitted by their friends today to Governor Myers Y. Cooper as candidates for the Governor's appointment of a successor to the late Senator Burton. The Governor announced, however, that he would give no consideration to the selection until several days after the funeral to be held Thursday in Cleveland.

Those mentioned for the appointment were: Edward W. Edwards of Cincinnati, Carmi A. Thompson of Cleveland, former Representative James T. Begg of Sandusky, James R. Garfield of Cleveland, son of former President Garfield; Grove C. Patterson, the Toledo publisher; Roscoe C. McCullough of Canton, L. J. Taber, National Grange Master, and Arthur L. Garford of Elyria.

Mr. Edwards, a close personal and political friend of Governor Cooper, is a millionaire manufacturer. Many political leaders here said Edwards probably would be the Governor's choice.

However, inasmuch as Senator Burton was from the northern half of the State, it was suggested to the Governor that the successor should come from that section also. If the Governor heeds these suggestions, political leaders said the choice probably would be between Tompson, Garfield and Patterson.

Whoever Governor Cooper appoints to succeed Mr. Burton will serve until Dec. 15, 1930.

SYRACUSE JURY INDICTS TOBIN IN HART CASE

Attorney General Ward Arrives to Take Part in Brokerage House Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Two indictments were voted by the grand jury today against John J. Tobin, 55, of Brooklyn, a clerk and investigator in the New York Securities Bureau of the Attorney General's office, in the investigation of the activities of the L. M. Hart & Co. brokerage concern, whose representatives abandoned their offices here Oct. 17 and disappeared when the status of the concern was under official scrutiny.

Both indictments were for misdemeanors. Tobin was charged in one indictment with willful neglect of duty as a public officer. The second bill accused him of conspiracy with other persons to commit a crime in Syracuse Sept. 27.

Tobin, who was arrested at his home, 317 Seventy-ninth Street, Brooklyn, came to Syracuse with Assistant District Attorney Martin. He was released tonight in $10,000 bail.

Attorney General Ward came to Syracuse today to take part in the inquiry. He was accompanied here by Watson Washburn, head of the New York Securities Bureau; Frank H. Ensign, chief investigator of the bureau, and L. J. Warner of the bureau's investigating staff.

GRUNDY FOR CURBING BACKWARD STATES

matters affecting the material welfare of the country.

"I think it was a great mistake that each State was given two Senators," Mr. Grundy said.

He expressed the view that the smaller should accept guidance from the industrial States in drafting tariff bills.

"You would be satisfied with the present system if you could control Senators," Mr. Blaine remarked.

"You have have no objections to the system if the people sent men here of the type of William S. Vare."

Mr. Grundy replied that he did not care to go into personalities.

"Well, then, of the type of C. L. Eyanson of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association," Senator Blaine persisted.

The witness's non-commital reply angered the Senator, who at this point commanded him "to look me squarely in the eye and answer."

Mr. Blaine asked the witness if he was not dissatisfied because he could not control the Senate as it is now constituted.

"I am not talking about controlling the Senate," Mr. Grundy said.

"You object to the Senate," Mr. Blaine pressed, "because you cannot get the special favors and privileges you are seeking. You would like to press a button and have the Senate respond."

"I am not seeking special favors and privileges," Mr. Grundy replied.

"No Chips in the Game."

Questioned by Senators Walsh and Caraway as to the importance of the "backward" States in comparison with such States as Pennsylvania, the witness said that when one studied the former "it is found that they have no chips in the game."

"They found that out long ago," Senator Caraway remarked.

The witness declared, referring to Senators identified with the coalition who are fighting the tariff bill, that "these people are, in effect, trying to destroy the great reservoirs of income," and added:

"It is a tragedy, to my mind, that these small States should destroy the protective tariff system."

"It's your view, then, that wealth and not States, ought to elect Senators?" asked Mr. Caraway.

"No," replied the witness. "I wouldn't go that far. When it comes to the tariff and other subjects of importance to the great States like Pennsylvania, I think that the smaller States should depend on these large State Senators for their views."

"When it comes to the interests of Pennsylvania, the people of Idaho ought not to say anything," Senator Caraway remarked.

"They ought to talk darned small," the witness responded.

"Will you please make out a list of the Senators who should be heard?" asked Senator Caraway.

"I'll make a list of those who should not be heard," Grundy responded, amid laughter.

Told to name them, he nevertheless demurred at first, but when pressed for an answer, named Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi and the two Dakotas as States whose Senators should accept the guidance of Pennsylvania for "the determination of tariff matters."

"All right," exclaimed Mr. Caraway. "This is Grundy's list of preferred Senators and common Senators."

Borah Appraises Effect.

After the hearing, Senator Borah expressed the opinion that Mr. Grundy's references to the "backward" States of the West would make a bad impression among the people in that region, and possibly stimulate demands for upward revision of farm rates and a scaling down of industrial rates. The Idaho Senator was inclined to believe the testimony would indicate t othe West that the protected interests of the East take a cynical view of the farm question, and are entirely out of sympathy so far as the tariff is concerned.

At one point in the examination, Senator Walsh broke in to ask Mr. Grundy if he would reform the system of representation. The witness was not sure, but insisted that he would have it made more difficult for Senators from the "backwoods commonwealths" to influence such legislation as the tariff.

"How would you silence Borah and myself?" Mr. Walsh demanded, as the committee room roared with laughter.

"I should think," Mr. Grundy quietly replied, "that your intelligence would suggest silence on such matters."

As to the very great misfortune that each State should have two Senators, the witness supposed the framers of the Constitution had done the best they could "with what they had."

As to Agriculture Problem.

The veteran Pennsylvanian tariff worker's activities at the Kansas City convention and his views on the tariff in general were developed by Senator Borah, who examined him at length. Seeking the witness's views on how the tariff bill should satisfy the party's campaign pledges, the Senator asked him to state in detail how he would equalize agriculture and industry under the rates.

"I want you to state it with care," said Senator Borah, "because I want to make use of it. It is a matter of controversy on the Senate floor and," he added sarcastically, "we would like to have your aid."

Mr. Grundy let the sarcasm go by, and answered that he would equalize agriculture and industry in two ways: by reducing the consumption of agricultural products in this country that are not now selling at the foreign price plus the tariff and by increasing the home market by excluding foreign manufactures.

"In the meantime," Senator Borah said, "you'd leave it to the farmer to control his production and save himself, and you'd help the industrialists out by looking after the manufacturers."

Mr. Grundy said he had named the two means he would employ. Mr. Borah then asked if the witness regarded agriculture as the most important question in the campaign or if he regarded industry as more important. The witness answered by saying he was in favor of carrying out the Kansas City platform.

Both Helped on Tariff Plank.

Senator Borah and Mr. Grundy were in attendance at the Kansas City convention which nominated Mr. Hoover for President, and each had a share in shaping the tariff plank of the platform.

Mr. Grundy charged last week that Mr. Borah spoke for protection last Fall, but that in the debates on the subject in the chamber he had repudiated his campaign promises.

"What were your intentions when you opened headquarters here in connection with the tariff?" the Senator asked.

"I was interested in seeing that all the pledges contained in the Republican platform adopted at Kansas City were carried out," was the reply.

Mr. Borah asked if the witness was interested in the enforcement plank. Mr. Grundy replied that he was, "in a general way."

The Senator then tried to pin the witness down to individual items in the tariff bill in which he was interested. He was interested, Mr. Grundy explained, in increased duties on wool, pig iron, cottons, laces, upholstery and other manufactures of concern to Pennsylvania and New Jersey. As to farm products, he favored a tariff that would equalize the cost of production at home and abroad.

Senator Borah questioned the witness on a proposed tariff plank which the latter presented to the Pennsylvania delegation at the Kansas City convention, particularly with reference to whether that plank promised any relief to the farmer.

Mr. Grundy read the plank, insisting that its language in upholding the Republican protective system was drafted as much in the interests of the farmer as of other classes.

"Did you show this to ex-Senator Vare?" asked Mr. Borah.

"I wouldn't go that far—I would say Senator-elect Vare," was the response.

The witness was asked to name any Senator with whom he had discussed the farm schedule.

"I discussed it with your colleague from Idaho, Senator Thomas, and with the Senators from Oregon," Mr. Grundy said.

Opposes Farm Debenture Plan.

Mr. Borah asked him if he favored "placing the farmer on an economic equality with other forms of industry."

When the witness replied that he favored any action that was in compliance with the Republican platform, Senators Borah and Caraway demanded a direct answer.

Mr. Grundy then said that he favored equality for the farmer, "if it can be done in harmony with the Republican platform." This, he thought, could be done without reducing the industrial rates.

"Are you in favor of the debenture?" Senator Borah asked.

"No," was the reply.

Mr. Borah asked if he agreed with President Hoover that farm relief was the immediate question to be considered by Congress.

"I don't care to discuss the opinions of the President of the United States," the witness answered, "but I think agriculture should have immediate attention and that there are many other industries that need aid."

It was his understanding, the witness stated at this point, that Mr. Borah, who is one of the sponsors of the farm debenture plan in the Senate, opposed the proposition at Kansas City.

"I here and now deny the truth of that assertion," said Senator Borah. "You never heard me discuss the subject at Kansas City. I opposed the equalization fee."

Mr. Grundy admitted that he was in error as to Mr. Borah's position on debenture at Kansas City, and apologized to the Senator for the mistake.

Collected No Funds From Farmers.

None of the money he had raised in political campaigns had come from agriculture, Mr. Grundy explained.

"Was any of it used for agriculture?" Mr. Borah asked.

"I don't know how it was used by the national committee in every case," the witness replied, adding that the national committee sent $25,000 to Idaho in 1924. Mr. Borah was a candidate for re-election that year.

"None of it was expended in my interest," Mr. Borah remarked.

"But you were on the ticket," returned the witness.

"The national committee sent me $2,500 in 1924, and I returned the money," Mr. Borah stated.

Senator Walsh wanted to know how much the Republican National Committee had sent to Montana. Mr. Grundy said he did not know.

"You only brought with you information about Idaho, didn't you?" said Senator Walsh.

The committee laughed as Mr. Grundy replied in the affirmative.

Senators Walsh, Blaine and Borah subjected the witness to a vigorous cross-examination on items in the tariff bill affecting Pennsylvania. They also took up provisions of the measure dealing with farm products. Mr. Grundy insisted that the farmer had been well treated in the making of the tariff; that practically everything he bought was on the free list, notably agricultural machinery.

Defends Farm Rates in the Bill.

The witness's attention was directed to several articles bought by farmers which, his examiners said, carried high tariff rates. Regardless of the fact, Mr. Grundy contended, the farmer "was not disadvantaged by the tariff, as it stood." He reiterated that agriculture could be placed on an equality with industry through the tariff.

Concerning the operations of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, the witness said the organization maintained about a dozen field agents in the State. Asked by Senator Walsh if the field agents did "political work on the side," the witness thought they did. Sometimes Pennsylvania manufacturers supported Democratic candidates who were in sympathy with them.

"When you find a Democrat that you think you can control, do you help him?" asked Senator Caraway.

"Oh, no; that is not the case at all," Mr. Grundy replied.

Commenting on a statement by Mr. Grundy that South Carolina, with a population of more than 1,000,000, polled about 33,000 votes in a recent election, and contrasting that figure with the heavy vote cast in Pennsylvania, Senator Borah remarked:

"Well, maybe they don't vote dead men in South Carolina."

Campaign Expenses "Run High."

Reference again was made today to the collection of about $1,000,000 by the Republicans of Pennsylvania in the Hoover campaign last year. Mr. Grundy explained that in a State with as dense a population as Pennsylvania, campaign expenses ran high.

"It costs $35,000 to mail a single letter in Philadelphia," he said.

"You collected $1,000,000 in Pennsylvania in 1928; how much did you spend?" asked Senator Caraway.

"That is a matter of record," Mr. Grundy responded.

Senator Walsh said that at last week's meeting the committee asked Mr. Grundy to submit a list of the Pennsylvania contributors to the 1928 campaign. Mr. Grundy replied that the information would be furnished.

Asked about Bethlehem Steel, United States Steel, and other corporations in the iron and steel trade, Mr. Grundy said that few if any of the big concerns were affiliated with the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association. United States Steel held aloof from all organizations, he added.

The association had spent no money in connection with the present tariff fight, he declared.

Suggests Grundy Work for Farmers.

Asked what he knew about the action of the Senate Finance Committee in transferring manganese ore from the free to the dutiable list, the witness said he knew nothing about it, and was not prepared to say whether or not the committee's action was wise. As a general proposition, he thought, manganese should be made dutiable.

He said, however, it had been stated that the country's output of manganese was less than 5 per cent of the quantity consumed, and that under those conditions the admission of the product duty free probably could be justified.

Senator Blaine urged Mr. Grundy to confer with Chairman Smoot, Senator Reed and other members of the Finance Committee in an effort to give agriculture equality with industry in the pending tariff bill.

"You are the wet nurse of the Republican Party, and you have more influence with those gentlemen than I have," Mr. Blaine remarked.

As the hearing was about to end, Senator Walsh asked Mr. Grundy if he did not want to offer an apology for his assertions that the people of some of the Western States should be denied a voice in the drafting of tariff bills. The witness said he did not have apologies to make.

"You think that the people of Idaho, Arizona and South Dakota did not choose wisely in the men they sent to the Senate?" Mr. Borah asked.

"I think the Senate representation of those States should take counsel from others," was the reply.

Says Bryce Fought Fish Tariff.

Wetmore Hodges of Boston, chairman of the board of directors of the General Seafood Corporation of Boston, a subsidiary of the General Food Company of New York, was the first witness today, testifying as to his conversations regarding tariff rates on fish with Edward A. Cooley of the Massachusetts Fisheries' Association and Frank W. Bryce, president of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries Corporation. Mr. Cooley told Mr. Hodges that Mr. Bryce wanted the duties on fish reduced, and he, the witness, had ascertained that the information was correct, according to his testimony.

Mr. Hodges said he called up Mr. Bryce, who declared that he favored lower duties on fish, and that if New England interests opposed him he would resort to the use of the "big stick" to attain his end. The fish controversy was originally brought to the attention of the lobby committee by Mr. Cooley, who stated that the Atlantic Coast corporation was a member of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. Grundy will resume his testimony tomorrow. Senator Blaine wants to examine him further concerning articles used by the farmer, which, the Wisconsin Senator contends, are too heavily taxed by the pending tariff bill. Arthur L. Faubel of the American Tariff League and J. A. Arnold of the Southern Tariff Association are other witnesses to be heard this week. C. A. Buck of the Bethlehem Steel Company, who is to be questioned concerning the manganese provision of the Senate measure, has been excused until next week.

PRAISES GRUNDY'S WORK.

Pennsylvania State Treasurer Lauds Tariff Lobby Activities.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 29.—The work of lobbyists, and the activities of Joseph R. Grundy as "the American best informed on the tariff question," were commended by General Edward Martin, State Treasurer, this evening in an address here before the Northampton County Council of Republican Women.

"Early in the Presidential campaign I sought his help," said General Martin, speaking of Mr. Grundy. "He was reluctant to enter the fight, believing younger men should assume the responsibility. But when he realized that the minds of younger men do not reach the free trade days he agreed to help, and was of inestimable service.

"Pennsylvania gave Hoover a million majority and elected thirty-five out of thirty-six Congressmen, and then it was that Mr. Grundy went to Washington at his own expense to aid in carrying our promises into effect.

"Pennsylvania is proud of the work he has done. He is wise, honest, energetic and prudent. No finer or truer soldier ever donned armor for Pennsylvania, its people and its prosperity."

WALKER REPROVES CRITICS OF SCHOOLS

Tells Board Members to View Work With Satisfaction and Ignore Charges.

SPEAKS AT DEDICATIONS

Mayor Points to De Witt Clinton High School and Bronx Hospital as City Investments.

Dedicating the new De Witt Clinton High School at Mosholu Parkway and Navy Avenue, the Bronx, yesterday, Mayor Walker took cognizance of the campaign criticism of the Board of Education and school building operations by advising the board members to ignore it all.

"In certain open seasons," he said to the audience of 5,000 teachers, students and parents, "the members of the Board of Education are subjected to charges. After they read them in their morning newspaper, they need just rush up here or to any of the other new schools and take a deep breath of satisfaction at what they have accomplished."

"I have no feeling that the ceiling will fall in," the Mayor added as he looked around the new auditorium.

George J. Ryan, president of the Board of Education, told the Mayor that he need not be solicitous for the feelings of the board. "We have no worries, no regrets," he said.

Continuing the ceremony of presenting the key of the school to its principal, Mortimer C. Clark, Mayor Walker said: "The $135,000,000 spent in the last few years on schools is the most splendid investment by the city in all time. In this city, where competition is the heaviest in all activities, we have determined that our children shall be prepared to match their intellect and training with those who come from any other place. The repayment of these expenditures will be made by the values which the generations for years to come will reap from them."

The Mayor promised that never would there be made in the schools a "scintilla of discrimination" on account of race or creed, and Mr. Clark pledged that De Witt Clinton would have its doors "always open to a wide tolerance, humanity of spirit and an intense and earnest desire on the part of the faculty to advance its boys in character, mental and spiritual growth and bodily well-being."

Among the other speakers were William J. Weber, member of the Board of Education; Rabbi Irving F. Reichert of Tremont Temple and Dr. J. Broadman, president of the Parents' Association.

The new school, said to be the largest secondary school for boys in the world, will seat 6,124 pupils. With its athletic fields it covers twenty-one acres.

Mayor Walker earlier yesterday also attended the formal opening of the new $3,500,000 Morrisania Hospital at 167th Street and Walton Avenue, the Bronx, which will care for about 600 patients in addition to those served by the dispensary department. In his speech he served notice upon all city hospitals that the utmost in service and courtesy to the public was expected of them.

"I have had this thought in mind for a long time, even before this hospital was planned," he said, "and I am talking through these walls so that my words may penetrate into hospitals far removed. I want this hospital system to be the best in the world. We have the finest doctors and surgeons, giving their best. Their records must not be blurred by any civil employe. It is of little use to have the surgeon give his best only to have his service marred by an insult from a civil employe as the patient goes out the door. That won't be done."

Doctors and nurses, the Mayor said, were sometimes subjected to undue annoyances, but their burden of criticism was nothing like that which the Chief Magistrate had to shoulder cheerfully.

Other speakers were William Schroeder Jr., Commissioner of Hospitals; Robert Moran, Bronx County Clerk, and the Rev. William J. Duane of Fordham University.

YALE REHEARSES AERIAL OFFENSIVE

Also on Defensive Against Dartmouth Type of Passes—Only Real Football of Week Today.

WILSON BACK IN UNIFORM

Indications Are That Looser and Hickok Will Start Against Dartmouth on Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 29.—No formal scrimmaging was ordered for the Yale eleven today, and the plans of the coaches now clearly point to only a short practice game tomorrow as the actual football which will be ordered during the week between the Army and the Dartmouth games.

More than two hours' drill today comprised a rigid rudimentary rehearsal, signal practice, the running off of forward passes for the backs and ends and supervised scrimmage.

It became evident that Head Coach Stevens plans to gridiron against Dartmouth about the same eleven which faced the Army at the kickoff. Jim Stewart, who remained in only two or three plays at left guard, will be replaced by the veteran Fred Looser.

Wilson in Passing Plays.

Bob Wilson, who could not play against the Army because of a slight back strain, will probably be unable to get into the Dartmouth game, although the veteran back reported in uniform today and ran through some of the forward passing plays.

The veteran Dan Hickok has recovered from his recent slight injury and will be started against Dartmouth ahead of Johnny Godman. Don Ferris will be retained at left tackle. Herster Barres is now established, apparently, at right end, with the veteran Jimmy Walker as his first reserve.

The appearance today of Charley Snead at left halfback indicated the decision of the coaches to give him another chance. Tommy Taylor, whose back field all-around play against the Army was excelled only by the spectacular exhibition of Albie Booth, was used today as Herb Miller's understudy at right halfback. He has heretofore replaced Ken Dunn, fullback.

Varsity on Defensive.

In the supervised scrimmage, the varsity was kept on the defensive two-thirds of the time and the scrub eleven used exclusively Dartmouth formations, as taught by Coaches Bill Webster and Larry Noble, the Yale scouts at the Dartmouth-Harvard contest.

The characteristic short diagonal Dartmouth forward passes gained consistently, baffling the Yale defensive backs, but yielding no long gains. Noble himself appeared in the rôle of Al Marsters, Dartmouth's high-scoring halfback. Three or four times he crowded his way through the varsity line.

EXECUTIVES OF YALE DINE WITH ATHLETES

President Angell Among Group Which Meets With the 17 Captains in Sports.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 29.—Yale University executives tonight met the seventeen athletic captains of the university in the first gathering of its kind, it is believed, ever held in American educational institutions.

The meeting was called at the suggestion of President James Rowland Angell to allow the executives to come in friendly contact with the athletic heads of the university teams. The executives included Dr. Angell, Professor George H. Nettleton, chairman of the Athletic Board of Control; Harold F. Woodcock, manager of athletics; Professor Clarence W. Mendell, Dean of the academic department or College; Professor Charles H. Warren, Dean of the Sheffield Scientific School, and John M. Cates, director of athletics, who presided as toastmaster.

The meeting, which was held as a dinner at the Hotel Taft, was entirely informal. There were short talks by several executives and athletic captains. The captains present were:

DARTMOUTH DRIVE FOR YALE STARTS

REGULARS IN SIGNAL DRILL

Reserves Review Offensive Tactics —Crehan, Still Out With Injury, Replaced by Nims.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 29.—Practice for the Dartmouth team got under way in full force today. This week's work is directed toward handing Yale its first defeat in the Blue-Green series. All regulars were present except Paul Crehan, guard, who injured his hip in the game with Harvard.

Practice opened with a long chalk talk for the regulars, followed by light signal drill, lasting about a half hour, after which they were dismissed. This marks a change in the policy of the coaching staff. While the first team was covering its assignment the reserve teams were reviewing all Green plays used to date.

Coach Cannell, in his chalk talk, covered Yale formations and plays and also some new plays for Dartmouth. In a light signal drill following the chalk talk the regulars ran through some new formations and plays never before seen on the Dartmouth field.

Nims, one of two men on the second team who earned letters in the Harvard game, filled Crehan's place today. Nims is almost Crehan's equal in the line position, but Dartmouth supporters are anxiously watching Crehan's improvement and expect to see him in action again tomorrow. Cannell announced today that the men probably would not see any actual scrimmage as a group this week.

STAR TACKLE RETURNS TO W. AND J. SQUAD

Capt. Douds's Injured Knee Better, He Works With Mates for Game With Lafayette.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 29.—Washington and Jefferson hopes for the Lafayette game next Saturday received a boost today when Captain Jap Douds, stellar tackle hurt in the Temple game, appeared on the field in uniform. The husky Red and Black leader did not participate in the hard scrimmage, but his knee had so far mended as to enable him to go through most everything else on the program. Douds says he will be fit by Saturday.

The practice against the freshmen today was one of the hardest since early season and was designed chiefly to build up the team's offense. Gates were barred for the second time this year.

LAFAYETTE RESUMES WORK.

Squad Holds First Practice for W. and J. Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 29.—The first workout in preparation for the Washington and Jefferson game Saturday was held by the Lafayette squad today. Not a man was injured in the Penn State game and the physical condition of the squad is better now than it has been at any time during the season.

BASS IN BOSTON U. DRILL.

Back, Hurt at Start of Season, Likely to Get Varsity Berth.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTON, Mass., Oct. 29.—Two shifts in the Boston University lineup appeared certain to become permanent before the Tufts game Saturday on the basis of an hour's scrimmage today.

Al Bass, who has been out since the first week of the season with an injured knee, returned as quarterback with the second team and put up such an exhibition that it is more than probable he will land on the varsity before the week is up, while Happy Carn was promoted to centre, and the former incumbent, Barrett, was shifted to guard to make way for him.

STANGLE LOST TO TEAM.

Conn. Aggies Guard Out With Torn Ligaments in Ankle.

Special to The New York Times.

STORRS, Conn., Oct. 29.—It was announced today that the Conn. Aggies football squad will lose the services of Stangle, regular left guard, for at least two weeks and perhaps for the rest of the season because of torn ligaments in his left ankle. He received the injury in the game with the Coast Guard Academy last Saturday.

After a day of rest the squad came out for practice today and drilled on kicking, forward passing and signals in preparation for the game with the University of Vermont next Saturday.

HARVARD REGULARS LIGHTEN WORKOUT

Coaches Keep Men Likely to Start Against Florida Out of Thick of Scrimmage.

TICKNOR EXPECTS TO PLAY

Gildea and O'Connell Also Will Be Ready for Saturday's Contest, Mentors Are Informed.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 29.—The Harvard coaches today kept the players who probably will start Saturday's game with Florida out of the thick of practice. Burns, end, and Talbot, guard, played against the scrubs for a time and Putnam, first-string quarterback, was used as a halfback.

Dick O'Connell, the regular right end, did not practice, and while it is said he will be able to play Saturday, he will go into the Florida game without much work. Burns is O'Connell's substitute, and the fact that he played today may be significant. He is one of Harvard's heaviest ends. If it is decided to keep Barry Wood in the back field, Putnam still could run the outfit and call the signals.

Harvard's two centres, Ben Ticknor and Gildea, were not on the field nor was O'Connell. The coaches have been informed that these men may be used Saturday.

Wetmore worked with the scrubs at quarterback throughout today's session. Myerson, a promising guard early in the year, is now ready for hard work again.

FLORIDA ELEVEN CRIPPLED.

Goodbread, 192-Pound Back, Is Still in Hospital With Injuries.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 29.—Florida, basking in the sunlight of a great 18-to-6 victory over the University of Georgia last Saturday, today found itself in a crippled condition as the second day's practice was concluded and preparations were made for departure for Cambridge, Mass., at 3:05 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Royce Goodbread, 192-pound back, whose work this Fall has drawn the attention of the whole Southland, is still in the infirmary with injuries sustained in the game Saturday when he crashed into a fence surrounding the playing field after being driven out of bounds on a sweeping end run. Mills Smith is being groomed at right halfback.

Four, Unbeaten in Conference Starts, Clash This Week—Tulane Holds Spotlight

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 29 (AP).—With upsetting October skirmishes out of the way, Southern Conference coaches today were polishing rusty spots for the strenuous November campaign.

Four of the six undefeated in conference starts have crucial struggles slated. Clemson and Kentucky, both unconquered within the circle, will meet at Lexington.

Alabama, still smarting under the defeat handed out by Tennessee two weeks ago, intends to let loose against another Tennessee team—Vanderbilt—Saturday. The Crimson Tide will be strengthened by the return of Campbell and Suther, fleet halfback, both recently handicapped by injuries.

Tulane, holding the spotlight as a result of its victory over Georgia Tech, meets Georgia at Columbus Friday. Mehre's men, stopped by Florida after having beaten Yale and North Carolina, are pointing for the Green Wave.

Louisiana State University and Tennessee are the other undefeated elevens. The former will step out of conference ranks for a crack at Arkansas, while the Volunteers expect little trouble from Auburn.

Hamilton Points for Hobart.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 29.—An intensive preparation for the Hobart game began today for the Hamilton College varsity, when Coach Winters sent the team through a hicking, passing and tackling practice.

Major Gen. Smith Takes Up Army-Navy Game With Good; No Contest Likely Before 1931

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Major Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of the United States Military Academy, conferred with Secretary of War Good today preparatory to meeting Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the United States Naval Academy, tomorrow in an effort to reach a basis of understanding for the resumption of football relations between the two institutions. Relations are severed over the issue of the three-year eligibility rule.

No announcement was made after the conference with Secretary Good today, but intimations were given that no regular game could be expected between the two schools before 1931, unless a post-season game is arranged for next year.

The schedules for both academies have already been made up for next year, so no vacancy exists.

NEW BACK FIELD FORMING AT NAVY

Spring, Castree, Kohlhas and Joe Bauer Used by Ingram in Practice.

CLIFTON'S ARM IMPROVES

Injured Fullback Engages in Drill and May Play Part of Game With Penn.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 29.—Though the condition of Joe Clifton, stalwart fullback of the Naval Academy football team, improved greatly over last night, Head Coach Bill Ingram started today to break in a new back field which he may start against the University of Pennsylvania Saturday.

It appears, however, as if Clifton will be able to play a part of the game at least. His arm was in much better shape today and he took part in the workout, although avoiding the rougher portions.

The back field used this afternoon had Spring at quarterback, Castree and Kohlhas at the halves and Joe Bauer at fullback. This was the best combination of runners used this season, with Williams, Binns and Toth still in reserve.

Attention was paid today to the drilling of these backs in receiving kicks. The punting was done chiefly by Whitey Lloyd, last year's back, now ineligible for the varsity. The regular backs showed decided improvement in this work.

With strong possibilities of Clifton being able to get in the game if necessary, the only regulars that Ingram cannot count upon are Gannon, back, and Crane, end. However, he has been getting along without them during most of the season. Bowstrom, punting tackle, who stayed out of the work yesterday, was in the session this afternoon, apparently in excellent shape.

WELLS OF WESLEYAN BACK.

Drills With the Squad and May Play Against Trinity.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 29.—The Wesleyan varsity eleven got back to work today after its lay-off yesterday. Wells, who was injured in the Bowdoin game, was out in togs and probably will play against Trinity. There was a dummy scrimmage for the regulars and work on fundamentals. An entire sophomore back field, Blakeslee, Hodgman, Tirell and Strebinger, was used in the varsity line-up.

Wells was in for Steege at left end, Seet for Lum at tackle, and Means for Eldridge at guard. Coffin, the other varsity guard, is not in good condition and Coach Wood may send Joice in for the Trinity game.

WEST VIRGINIA BACK HURT.

Haddock Fractures Collarbone in Scrimmage With Reserves.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, Va., Oct. 29.—Tonight's scrimmage of the West Virginia University varsity squad claimed as its victim George Haddock, promising sophomore back. Playing with the regulars against the second team, Haddock suffered a fractured collarbone and will be out for the remainder of the season.

Injury to this husky youngster, whose specialty was defensive play, coupled with the continued absence of Eddie Bartrug, who has been out ten days with a shoulder injury also, leaves the backfield in a weakended condition as the Mountaineers prepare for the Fordham game in New York City a week from today.

PENN STARS BACK FOR NAVY CONTEST

Gervin, Out Since California Game, Returns to Post at End During Practice.

GENTLE ENGAGES IN DRILL

Halfback's Bruised Leg Is Much Improved—Saturday's Meeting Fourteenth of Series.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—Pennsylvania expects to be at its full strength when Navy invades Franklin Field next Saturday for its fourteenth game in the series that started in 1888.

Dr. Arthur Light, team physician, reported all of the varsity regulars in fairly good shape, and with no more scrimmage scheduled before the game they should be on edge.

Even Sydney Gervin, the veteran end from Johnson City, Tenn., who received a bad elbow injury in the California game, was on the field today and went through a long forward pass-receiving drill. Halfback Dick Gentle's bruised leg was also much improved and he snapped through the work with plenty of energy.

Bill Raffel, substitute end, who suffered a knee injury in the Lehigh game last Saturday, limped today, but with Gervin back in the ranks the coaches feel well satisfied with the wing prospects. Gervin and Riblett probably will start.

CITY COLLEGE SQUAD IN LIGHT SCRIMMAGE

Heistein, Veteran Lineman, Hurt Three Weeks Ago, Rejoins Team —Plays at Tackle.

Coach Parker did not allow any eleven men to remain in play very long, working them lightly in order to drive them hard next week before the Lavender meets St. John's of Brooklyn in what promises to be the severest contest on the schedule.

There was no so-called regular eleven in action throughout yesterday's practice, though Parker started the team which he has been using all season as his opening line-up. The return to practice of Sam Heistein, veteran guard and tackle, has bolstered up a weak line considerably. Heistein, who was injured in the St. Lawrence game three weeks ago, got into the scrimmage for a short time, displacing Willie Rubin at tackle.

LONG DRILL FOR BUCKNELL.

Ross and Kozlik Continue Good Work in the Back Field.

Special to The New York Times.

LEWISBURG, Pa., Oct. 29.—Having reached the halfway point satisfactorily, Coach Carl Snavely today started Bucknell's preparations for the Temple, Villanova, Penn State and Fordham games.

The day's workout consisted of a long scrimmage, with Norman Ross and Kozlik continuing their impressive work in the back field.

BOY KILLED IN SCRIMMAGE.

Frank Murphy, 16, Fatally Hurt in High School Drill at Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 29 (AP).—Frank Murphy, 16, was killed in a football scrimmage at St. Rolla High School today.

According to a Deputy Coroner, the boy was picked up unconscious after the scrimmage and pronounced dead when carried to a doctor's office.

SPEED IS KEYNOTE IN ARMY SCRIMMAGE

Offensive and Defensive Plays Used in Rehearsal Arranged by Coach Jones.

IMPROVEMENT IN AIR GAME

Protection of Passers by Defense Men Also Stressed in Drill for South Dakota Game.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Full speed scrimmage was the program for part of the Army football squad's practice session today. Offensive and defensive formations were used, Captain Biff Jones, head coach, arranging a general rehearsal of plays.

With the scrubs on the defense the first team gained ground consistently by Murrel's short rushes, also by a pass from Cagle to Carlmark, which netted 20 yards. Murrel, with his steady, dependable ground coverage, is closely following Cagle in making gains.

Pass receiving by the Army was much improved, also the protection of pass throwers by the defense men.

The first teams alternated in battling the scrubs. With the scrubs on the offensive Army's varsity did not show up so well. The scrubs made steady gains by means of passing plays that are believed to be planned by South Dakota. Word has reached West Point that South Dakota intends throwing caution to the winds, intent on scoring heavily.

In all, three scrub teams were used, one at a time, the players of the first, second and third teams alternating frequently.

RAIN HAMPERS S. DAKOTA.

Team Stresses Defensive Play Against Army's Running Attack.

Special to The New York Times.

VERMILLION, S. D., Oct. 29.—Heavy rain today spoiled the only real practice session planned by the Coyotes before entraining for West Point. Coach V. E. Montgomery put his squad through a scrimmage with the freshmen, but the wet field prevented effective work in drilling new aerial plays for use against the Army.

The emphasis in today's session was upon defensive play against the Army's running attack. The squad will have another light signal drill tomorrow noon before starting their trip, which will bring them to West Point Friday morning.

VILLANOVA WELL FORTIFIED.

Three Sets of Backs Available for Game With Oglethorpe.

Special to The New York Times.

VILLANOVA, Pa., Oct. 29.—At least three sets of flashy backs will be ready when Villanova's undefeated team meets Oglethorpe here Saturday.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher is not content to depend upon the veteran combination of Tom Morgan, Johnny Gillespie, Jack McAndrews of the Bronx and Captain Ed Melanson.

The former Notre Dame quarterback had at least eight more ball carriers practicing today with the idea of using them for at least part of the game against the Southerners.

MANHATTAN HOLDS DRILL.

Second Team Uses Plays of Catholic U. Against Varsity.

Manhattan College's varsity football team engaged in a 30-minute signal drill and an hour dummy scrimmage against the second team at Jasper Field yesterday. The seconds used plays of Catholic University, the team that will be encountered by Manhattan at Washington, D. C., Saturday.

Johnny Del Negro will again call the signals from his right and position in the Catholic University contest. Coach Joe Schwarzer was highly pleased with Del Negro's work in the St. John's game last Saturday.

SWARTHMORE MEN BUSY.

Squad Holds Long Practice in Preparing for Delaware Game.

Special to The New York Times.

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Oct. 29.—Head Coach E. Leroy Mercer put the Swarthmore College football squad through a long practice today in preparation for the Delaware game at Newark Saturday.

Due to the injury of Frank Brown, centre in the F. and M. game, Mercer is faced with the problem of finding a man to alternate with Paul Crowl. The other Garnet pivot man, Howard Siplen, a freshman halfback, is being groomed as a possible candidate for this position.

Backs Take Footballs to Meals And to Bed to Cure Fumbling

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 29 (AP).—South Carolina University football players are literally living with footballs this week. Each halfback on the team is sleeping with a football, taking a football to class with him and carrying one to his meals.

ROCKNE'S CONDITION PRONOUNCED WORSE

LEG INJURY AGGRAVATED

His Journey to Carnegie Tech Game in Defiance of Physicians' Orders Causes Relapse.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 29 (AP).—The condition of Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's celebrated football coach, has taken such a serious turn that his physician has ordered him to forego all gridiron activities for a week and perhaps the remainder of the 1929 season.

Rockne, suffering from a blood clot in his right leg, defied his physicians last week by accompanying his team to Pittsburgh for the Carnegie Tech game and aggravated his leg. Upon his arrival home, he was ordered to bed and resigned himself to medical orders.

It was explained that the outlook for his recovery now was excellent, but that if Rockne insisted on drilling and following his team on its long journeys, the infection might prove fatal. It is definite that he will not accompany Notre Dame to Atlanta for the Georgia Tech game Saturday.

Other contests on the Notre Dame schedule this season are Drake at Chicago, Nov. 9; University of Southern California at Chicago, Nov. 15; Northwestern at Evanston, Ill., Nov. 23, and the Army at New York, Nov. 30.

Tom Lieb, Rockne's assistant, who directed the Ramblers successfully against the Navy and Wisconsin, will take the coaching reins.

The problem of keeping Rockne's mind off football is a difficult one for his physician. During the Navy and Wisconsin games he showed extreme excitement while listening to the game's progress over the radio and by reading telegraphic reports—more excitement than conducive to rapid recovery.

FOGARTY AND HARRIS BACK ON BROWN TEAM

Have First Practice in Several Days—Signal Drill Held, With Edwards Missing.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 29.—Brown's back field squad was materially strengthened today by the return of Lincoln Fogarty, triple nal drill. Coach McLaughary is planthreat halfback, and H. R. Harris, quarterback. Both participated in their first practice in several days.

The varsity squad had only a signing to scrimmage the regulars against the scrubs tomorrow. Captain Edwards, whose ankle was injured in the Syracuse game, was not in uniform. The varsity back field today was composed of Fogarty and Edes, halfbacks, Marshall, fullback, and Gurll, quarterback.

Sawyer was promoted today to varsity end, replacing Johnson. While the varsity was rehearsing plays the second team scored two touchdowns against the scrubs, Hemingway running thirty-five yards for the first score and Caulkins tallying at the end of a forty-yard jaunt.

HOLY CROSS IN BRISK DRILL.

Himmelberg, Guard, Resumes Place in Preparation for Brown Game.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 29.—Holy Cross held another long drill on offensive work today, the session lasting for more than two hours. The backs and ends came in for special attention for the overhead attack.

Several new plays were also tried. Himmelberg, veteran right guard, worked today and will be ready for the Brown game.

HARD WORK FOR WILLIAMS.

Long Session in Fundamentals Held for Contest With Union.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Oct. 29.—Preparations for the Union game Saturday got under way today when Coach Caldwell gave the Williams eleven a long drill in fundamentals. Scrimmage was eliminated, as a number of regulars still require a rest from the hard game with Columbia last week.

Senn, freshman quarterback a year ago, has rejoined the squad after being out with an injury since early in the season.

LEHIGH SPEEDS WORKOUT.

Squad Well Fortified to Meet Invasion of Muhlenberg Team.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 29.—Lehigh's football forces, after a comparatively easy session yesterday, speeded up today in driving for the Muhlenberg game on Saturday.

Not one regular was missing in the practice today. In fact, with Motion, tackle; Pinkney, quarterback, and Gadd, a guard, who had been injured, back in harness, Lehigh is more strongly fortified than at any other time this season.

PRINCETON DRILLS WITH MOORE ABSENT

All Other Regulars, However, Are in Action—No More Scrimmages This Season.

SQUAD WORKS ON SIGNALS

Bennett and Wittmer Alternate in Back Field—Barfield Shows Place-Kicking Skill.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 29.—Princeton's varsity ran through practice today with all regulars back in action with the exception of Bill Moore, who will be out for another week at least. No scrimmage was held, as will be the case for the remainder of the season, according to Coach Bill Roper.

Coach Roper said that the Tigers were through with scrimmages for the balance of the season in view of the fact that the Orange and Black had spent hard work at this type of practice for the first few weeks of the season. Hard scrimmaging, previous to the Brown and Cornell games, has served its purpose.

An hour and a half of drill took up the afternoon, with signal drill and dummy scrimmage being emphasized. Trix Bennett was in the first back field today in place of Ed Wittmer at the opening of the session, while Wittmer was sent in later. Lowry, Zundel, and Scarlett, who opened the game with Navy in the Tiger back field, completed the Nassau quartet.

Bill Barfield, Tiger mainstay in the line, was put through an extensive drill in place kicking from the 15-yard line and sent nineteen out of twenty attempts sailing over the goal posts as Scarlett and Reinmund alternated at holding the ball. Barfield has solved the Tiger weakness at kicking the point after touchdown and is also the only member of the Princeton squad who has engaged in every minute of play in the four games contested this Fall.

CHICAGO MEN IMPROVE.

Three of Four Injured Players Respond to Treatment.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Trainer Si Benson of the University of Chicago is being hailed as something of a miracle man. Two days ago it looked as if the Maroons would play Princeton Saturday without three of its most able ball carriers and Captain Kelly, a reliable end. Benson, however, got busy, and tonight only one player was out definitely. Burgess, the only letter man in the back field, has responded to treatment unusually well. He may play against the Easterners, although his knee may cause him trouble.

Temple and Knudsen, the two best plungers available, were said to have been out, but both will be in shape. Captain Kelly's ankle will permit his playing, though it still is weak.

RUTGERS SQUAD BUSY IN A SECRET SESSION

Coursen, Wearing Mask to Guard Broken Nose, Takes Part in the Workout.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 29.—The Rutgers varsity practiced for the first time behind locked gates today in the initial intensive preparatory session for the contest with Lafayette at Easton a week from Saturday.

Fischer and Smoyer alternated at right tackle. Coursen, wearing a mask to protect his nose, which was broken in the St. John's of Annapolis game, was at left end, and Julien was on the right wing, Krafchik and Digney being given a rest.

Drake was tried at quarterback and Teby Roberts at half. Stager, Horton, Latimer, Krafchick and Digney were used for a short while in the line-up.

Today's session was devoted almost entirely to an offensive session.

SHAW LOST TO ST. JOHN'S.

Right Guard Will Be Unable to Play Against Loyola Eleven.

Joe Shaw, right guard, was missing from practice as the St. John's College football team continued preparation at Dexter Park yesterday afternoon for its clash with the Loyola University eleven at Baltimore Saturday. Shaw, who started against Manhattan last week, broke one of his toes, which will keep him out of the game for at least ten days or more.

In yesterday's practice, which consisted mainly of a long scrimmage, the varsity players had a good workout with the junior varsity, which used Loyola plays. Mike Simeone was at right guard in place of Shaw yesterday.

AMHERST IN SHORT SESSION

Drills on Fundamentals Instead of Holding Usual Scrimmage.

Special to The New York Times.

AMHERST, Mass., Oct. 29.—A short workout with a drill on the fundamentals instead of the usual Tuesday scrimmage was held at Amherst today.

Homer and Phillips, who were injured in the game with Wesleyan Saturday, were not in uniform today, although they will probably be able to play this week in the contest with the Massachusetts Aggies, as well as Howdy Groskloss, who did not play against Wesleyan because of injuries received in the Hamilton game.

McKENNEY CHANGES PLANS.

He Puts Boston College Players Through First Scrimmage.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 29.—For the first time this year Coach Joe McKenney scrimmaged the Boston College varsity football squad, and the first three teams ran up a total of 85 points, while holding the fresh man outfit scoreless. Departure from his usual custom of refraining from scrimmage sessions was prompted by a desire to see how his new back field candidates behaved under pressure, McKenney said.

BLEECKER MISSING AT COLUMBIA DRILL

Coach Crowley Concerned as to Whether Captain Will Be Able to Face Cornell.

INJURED HIP IN PRACTICE

Squad Engages in Lengthy Scrimmage With Manhattan Freshmen—Joyce Is Star.

The final drive of Columbia in preparation for the annual game with Cornell reached its high point yesterday when Coach Crowley sent the squad through a 90-minute scrimmage against the Manhattan freshmen, the second of the year. The only cloud of pessimism to darken the Blue and White session was the absence of Captain Bleecker, veteran tackle, who is receiving treatment for an injured hip.

Bleecker injured his right hip in practice Monday and Crowley and Trainer Barrett are concerned as to whether the Lion leader will be able to play against Cornell at Ithaca on Saturday.

Bleecker's mishap, at first, was believed to be of a slight nature, but further treatment was necessary Monday night when the injury bothered him.

Linemen Practice Blocking.

With the exception of Bleecker, every man on the squad took part in the workout that preceded the scrimmage. The linemen, under the direction of Ed Walker and Bliss Price, practiced blocking, charging and interfering. The ends, all of whom have developed remarkably fast the past week, were drilled at covering punts and tackling. The backs came in for a drill at passing, catching passes and interfering.

Columbia's varsity met determined opposition from Neil Conahan's Manhattan freshman eleven. The Lions, with Charley Joyce calling signals, used three reserve backs in the place of Hewitt, Stanczyk and Scott, the regulars.

Coaches Correct Mistakes.

No scoring was permitted and the coaches frequently halted the progress of the ball to correct mistakes and to speed up the action on certain plays.

Columbia received the ball on the 30-yard line and started a march down the field with an assortment of off-tackle slants, forward passes and reverse formations that resulted in many sizable gains. Joyce displayed great ability at shaking off the Jasper tacklers in the reverse plays and was always a threat with aerials.

Manhattan, when it received the ball at the opposite end of the gridiron, displayed a powerful attack and strong interference. The freshmen, however, met determined opposition at the Columbia line and made the length of the field only once, while the Lions made the distance twice. Bill O'Connor, halfback, excelled for the Jaspers.

CORNELL IS TESTED BY COLUMBIA PLAYS

Varsity on Defensive Against Second and Third Teams in Long Workout.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 29.—The defensive phase of the game was emphasized in today's long drill by the Cornell football squad in preparation for the Columbia game here Saturday.

The second and third teams, using Columbia plays, were sent against the varsity. Particular stress was laid on aerial defense.

The first-string back field was reassembled and on the line Alexander went back to his old place at right end in place of Rousseau, his understudy. Stevens, Handleman and Scott were the men replaced in their old positions in the back field.

COLGATE MEN POINT FOR COLUMBIA GAME

Coach Kerr Aims to Develop New Offense for the Coming Contest Here.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Coach Andy Kerr devoted the greater part of Colgate's two-hour practice today to the development of a new offense for use against Columbia in New York ten days hence. He drilled the first and second elevens as units in a formation drill for about an hour and then pitted a combination of varsity and second team material against a team of Scrubs in a one-hour scrimmage.

Facing Hampden-Sydney in the final home game of the season Saturday, the Colgate squad today had the stiffest work-out of the week. During the contact play George Stollwerck, veteran halfback, suffered a painful muscle bruise that may keep him on the sidelines for several days.

Gilson, Doyle, Haines and Huntington were the linemen who played during most of drill while the varsity backs saw little action. The Colgate coach made his first shift in the line-up since early in the training program when he used Frank Abruzzino, veteran end, at quarterback.

COLUMBIA REGATTA TODAY.

Freshman and Varsity Races on the Harlem Will End Fall Rowing.

Fall rowing practice at Columbia ends today with the annual Fall regatta on the Harlem River at 3:30 o'clock. The first race will be among three freshman crews and will be held over the one-mile course.

Then three varsity eights will paddle to the starting line to compete over the one and a half mile course for the Bunge Cup. The varsity crews are named the Saratoga, Poughkeepsie and the Henley.

New Englanders Fly South To Recruit a Football Team

BOSTON, Oct. 29 (AP).—The South will face New England on the gridiron Dec. 14 if the flight, begun today, of James Fay and T. R. Tobey of the American Legion is successful. Fay and Tobey took off from the Boston airport for Washington and points south in the hope of recruiting a football team representative of the Southern Conference, to meet a team representative of the New England States.

N. Y. U. BACKS WORK ON AERIAL DEFENSE

DRILL LASTS THREE HOURS

Myers, Quarterback, and Marshall, Punter, Show Improvement—Backs Do Well on Attack.

Coach Chick Meehan sent the New York University varsity football team, through a three-hour drill again yesterday at Ohio Field in preparation for Saturday's game with Georgetown University. A dummy scrimmage between the varsity and freshman teams, in which the yearlings employed Georgetown formations, featured.

A signal, passing and kicking drill preceded the varsity-cub dummy scrimmage, with Meehan devoting much attention to Dave Myers's work at the quarterback post and Charlie Marshall's punting. Both of these players continue to show marked improvement in their most recent responsibilities.

In the scrimmage, which lasted for an hour, the freshman team, known as "Georgetown," had possession of the ball most of the time and Meehan made special efforts to groom the Violet backs in checking the Blue-and-Grays' air attack as well as its running plays.

The few times that the varsity did take the ball the Violet ball-carriers seemed to function perfectly, but the line appeared a bit uncertain. Meehan's latest backfield quartet, composed of Myers, O'Herin, Follet and La Mark, received the major share of his coaching yesterday.

The rest of the team consisted of Nemecek and Marshall, ends; Captain Grant and Concannon, tackles; Chalmers and Sargisson, guards, and Schneider, centre. Bells, Jones, Connor and Gaudet were backfield substitutions, and Murphy and Ross Grant were used on the line at various times.

LITTLE NAMES SCALZI PILOT AT GEORGETOWN

Stamford Youth to Call Signals Against N. Y. U.—Provincial, Liston and Walsh in Line.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Johnny Scalzi, stockily built Stamford (Conn.) youth, has been assigned to the quarterback post of the Georgetown varsity for its game with New York University at the Yankee Stadium Saturday, following a mild revamping of the first-string line-up today by Coach Lou Little.

With Ken Provincial, regular end, back in the line, Little moved to insert two more regular forwards of last year who have been displaced by reserves in recent games. Paul Liston and Charley Walsh, guards, who were among the heroes in Georgetown's sensational defeat of the Violets last November, again have been assigned places in the varsity line-up.

Scalzi has beaten out Gardner and Leary for the quarterback post, and a hint that Georgetown will use the air game frequently Saturday is seen in his appointment as field general.

MULE HAAS HONORED AT MONTCLAIR DINNER

Haas, a resident of Montclair, was the recipient of a diamond stickpin. Among the speakers were Jimmy Dykes, Athletics' third baseman; Mayor Charles C. Phillips of Montclair, and William L. Dill, New Jersey Motor Vehicle Commissioner. Haas also spoke briefly. Letters of regret at their inability to attend were received from Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, and Eddie Collins.

SYRACUSE LINE-UP TO REMAIN INTACT

Coach Andreas Plans No Changes for Game With Penn State on Saturday.

TO USE FIVE SOPHOMORES

Ellert, Stoneberg, Newton, Frank and Borton Will Retain Posts on Starting Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 29.—The Syracuse University football squad was sent through a light scrimmage this afternoon at Hendrick's Field. The men are in great shape to entertain the powerful Penn State eleven here Saturday afternoon.

The Orange and the Nittany Lions are about evenly balanced and Coach Lew Andreas does not expect to make any changes in the Syracuse line-up. He will continue to use five sophomores on the starting team, namely, Ellert and Stoneberg, ends; Newton, tackle; Frank, quarterback, and Borton, halfback.

The remainder of the Orange line-up probably will be Hovac, tackle; Van Ness and Obst, guards; Berner, centre; Stevens, halfback, and Sebo, fullback.

Last year Syracuse held Penn State to a tie, and in seven meetings the Lions have only scored twice against Syracuse and have gained but one victory.

PENN STATE BEGINS DRIVE.

Starts Hard Work for Syracuse Game, Holding Scrimmage.

Special to The New York Times.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 29.—The Penn State football team began intensive preparations today for the Syracuse game Saturday. Coach Bezdek gave several of his linemen a rest, as no substitutions were made during the Lafayette game. The ends, Edwards and Kaplan, and the guards, Ricker and Zorella, did not participate in the scrimmage.

Coach Hermann's freshman team is drilling for their first game, that with the Syracuse freshmen a week from Saturday. For the first time this year the freshmen scrimmaged today against the varsity squad.

ALL ON ILLINI TEAM ARE FOUND ELIGIBLE

Zuppke's Men Weather a Strict New Rule as They Prepare for Northwestern.

CHICAGO Oct. 29 (AP).—Coach Bob Zuppke breathed easier today as the council of administration of the University of Illinois failed to include a single one of his regulars in its long list of scholastic ineligibles.

Under a new Illinois rule, one of the strictest known, any athlete may be declared ineligible by the council if his grades for the first six weeks are low. Today's initial list included thirty-five candidates for the freshman squad and four varsity men, none of whom have competed in a game this season.

Today the varsity scrimmaged with the reserves, and the showing pleased the happy Zuppke. The forward pass attack was polished up for the Northwestern game on Saturday.

Northwestern continued to practice secretly. A snow-covered field drove Minnesota's Gophers into the field house for most of tonight's practice. Indiana plays were diagnosed.

Coach Pat Page sent his Indiana team through its first hard drill since last Thursday. Wisconsin, which faces the task of stopping Purdue, learned some new offensive plays.

VAIL EASY VICTOR AT PINEHURST NET

Glen Cove Player Beats Sherrerd by 6-0, 6-0 in Mid-South Tennis Tourney.

PINEHURST, N. C., Oct. 29.—Due to rain, only a few matches were completed in the Mid-South tennis championships at the Pinehurst Country Club today.

In the singles, Herbert D. Vail of Glen Cove, L. I., made short work of S. D. Sherrerd of Philadelphia in the last remaining first round match, gaining a double love-set victory. In a third round match, Andrew Bickett of New York, former Cornell player, vanquished Ralph W. Green of Raleigh, N. C., by the same margin.

Robert Crosland of Charlotte, defending singles champion, and Vail, the runner-up, who are teamed in the men's doubles, were hard pressed in a first round match by Jack Meyers and Gene Phillips, two New York boys at Duke University, but won by 6-3, 6-4.

Grady Frank of New York and Bickett defeated Harvey Harris and Green, 6-4, 6-3.

JOHNSON HOLD-OUT ON RANGER SEXTET

Defensive Star Has No Intention of Quitting Game, Declares Colonel Hammond.

NEGOTIATIONS UNDER WAY

Head of Blue-Shirted Team Says Club Will Not Increase Pay—Only Player Outside Fold.

By GROVER THEIS.

Ching Johnson, star defense player of the New York Rangers, is a holdout, it was learned yesterday, but Colonel John S. Hammond, head of the blue-shirted sextet of Madison Square Garden, while admitting that the affable and popular regular has not signed and demands a substantial increase in salary, expressed confidence that he can induce Johnson to rejoin the team.

Ching is the only Ranger who has not fallen in line. There have been numerous reports from Canada and rumors hereabouts that Johnson would not play with the Rangers this year. One dispatch from Winnipeg quoted Ching as saying that he would not play at all this season.

Failed to Report.

When he failed to show up for training at Springfield and neither Colonel Hammond nor Manager Lee Patrick heard from him, these reports appeared to have some foundation.

"The reason that we did not hear from Johnson," said Hammond, "was that he did not get the contract we mailed him in accordance with the time rules of the league. We sent it to his Yonkers address first, but Johnson was moving about last Summer and a succession of forwardings always missed him, so that our letter did not reach him until Oct. 26.

Not Quitting Hockey.

"I now have a reply from him from Minneapolis, which he sent by special delivery air mail, showing that Johnson has no intention of quitting hockey, and is, in fact, negotiating with us.

"He wants more money, but I want to say that hockey cannot pay him more than he is now being paid. I say hockey advisedly, and not our club, because the issue is one that involves the whole circuit. Hockey is paying its players as much as it can afford right now, and in justice to the other clubs of the league the Rangers cannot increase salaries any more, though we pay the top now, which is fair in view of higher expenses to the players."

Americans in Gym Workout.

Playing Manager Lionel Conacher reported to the American hockey team headquarters here yesterday that the squad in training at New Haven had spent two hours in gym work there yesterday morning and spent three hours on the links in the afternoon.

The only two absentees by today will be Punch Broadbent and George Patterson. Broadbent may desert the ice for the air. Conacher declared. Punch studied to become an aviator during the Summer and is awaiting word whether he has qualified as a pilot. Patterson, a newcomer, has been delayed by dental work.

FOLEY OF FORDHAM RETURNS TO LINE

Tackle, Who Had Been Hurt, Takes Part in Workout Without Any Ill Effects.

WEST VA. PLAYS ARE TESTED

Cavanaugh, However, Bars Scrimmage to Avoid Danger of Injuries to Key Men of Squad.

The Fordham varsity eleven held its second day of practice yesterday in preparation for the game with West Virginia on election day by going through a dummy scrimmage, with the Maroon freshmen constituting the opposition.

Coach Cavanaugh refused to hold any actual scrimmage work because of his limited squad and the danger of injuries to key men in the Fordham attack. The session was spent in perfecting a defense for the West Virginia plays and the same type of work is scheduled for today and tomorrow.

Major Cavanaugh will be able to present a stronger line against Coach Ira Rodgers's team than he did in the game with the Davis and Elkins eleven since Frank Foley, tackle, who has been out with an injured foot, reported for practice and went through the session at his old position without suffering any ill effects. Previous to the workout against the West Virginia plays, the Maroon mentor had his squad run through signals.

Johnny Fisher, star signal-caller, who was allowed to rest on Monday, took an active part in the practice and later drilled with Bertas, Tracey and Conway in the kicking session, which concluded the day's practice.

AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 29 (AP).—Dr. Bardford Knapp, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, announced today that he had "relieved" George Bohler as head football coach at the institution. Bohler will be succeeded by John (Red) Floyd, line coach.

RAINBOW CLAIMING CAPTURED BY MILD

HAND TO HAND TRIUMPHS

By BRYAN FIELD.

W. H. Fizer's Mild put up a rousing finish in the Rainbow Claiming Stakes and won the purse of $2,530, although her chances looked very slight coming into the stretch, yesterday at Empire City. She was well back of the Canyon Stable's Greyola, the even-money favorite, leading the procession with plenty of speed in reserve. Mild's chances looked about as good as those of a high school eleven against Notre Dame.

But horse racing isn't football and Mild won the race because she kept close along the fence, while the jockey aboard Greyola permitted that daughter of Grey Lag to run wide and lose ground. P. Keiser, the rider, is a promising apprentice, but his lack of skill cost the race as the distance Greyola lost on the turn could not be made up and Fizer's horse won by a head. Greyola ran a game race through the stretch in an effort to again overtake Mild, but it was not to be.

The winner paid 4 to 1 and changed hands by the claiming route immediately after the finish. A. W. Wentzel got the filly, which is by King Gorin out of Parley, for $6,400. She carried the feather of 106 pounds, which compared favorably with Greyola's light weight of 107.

Although seven ran, the contest was entirely between these two and the Bird horse, Barn Dance, beaten by six lengths by Greyola. The time was 1:09 for the six furlongs.

Cochran Entry Takes First.

Gifford A. Cochran has shown some speedy 2-year-olds this season in The Beasel, Flying Heels and Polygamous, and he won with another in the first race on the program. This was a filly, Hand to Hand, which in four previous races had been second three times and out of the money once.

The chances against her getting out of the maiden class were 5 to 1, but she made the grade with the aid of a good ride from Bill Kelsay, who got her home with half a length to spare.

Kelsay is one of the best jockeys now riding in getting a horse away from the barrier, and his skill showed to fine advantage with the Cochran 2-year-old. After that Kelsay kept her in the lead and saved ground all the way. The race was by no means a walk-in, because a filly, Mismot, making her début, rushed down to the line with such a show of speed that she nearly overtook the winner. Johnny Maiben rode Sara Burdon to get show; Escutcheon, the 18-to-5 favorite, was a poor sixth, despite the fact that Pony McAtee was in the pilot house.

Negopoli Closes Strongly.

In the second race the favorite won by a nose when J. C. Bussey's Negopoli got up in the last stride to win from Necromancer, which had run a waiting race until the stretch, where he took a lead to draw off and looked like a sure winner.

Negopoli is noted for his great burst of speed in the last few furlongs, and this ability stood him in good stead, for he got up in the last stride to beat Necromancer. James Butler's Vacation was third. He had been the early leader and was on top for seven furlongs of the mile and an eighth route, but could not stay there when Necromancer and Negopoli challenged.

There was a big plunge on G. E. Phillips's Let Alone, the winner of the third race, for he was played from 10 to 1 down to 5 to 1 and got up in the last few strides to win by a head. The field was a large one and crowding made for a good deal of interference, in which Let Alone was one of the sufferers.

Mrs. George Carroll's 4-to-1 favorite Crash was off winging at the start and was running freely all the time that Let Alone was in trouble, but in the last furlong Let Alone ran down Crash and captured the purse. The Dipper landed the short end.

FIELD REDUCED TO 36 IN CAMBRIDGESHIRE

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press Cable)—The field for the renewal of the Cambridgeshire Handicap over the mile and an eighth course here tomorrow afternoon was reduced to thirty-six tonight, with the scratching of Moon Toy, Pondicherry, Guard's Parade, Voltero and Arbeletrier, who had all been included in the probable starting list.

Palais Royal, to be ridden by Steve Donoghue, is at the top of the list of weight allotments. Mike Hall, United States contender who finished eighth in the Cesarewitch a few days ago, will be ridden by Joe Childs, who rides the King's horses.

The final betting odds published tonight show Athford is the favorite in the wagering with 3 to 1 being quoted against his chances of victory. Palais Royal is quoted at 18 to 1 against and Mike Hall 35 to 1.

Odds against the balance of the field are as follows: 1,000 to 30 against Yosemite; 100 to 9 against Ghost Train; 15 to 1 against Macnab Songe; 17 to 1 against Engarde and Masked Bandit; 22 to 1 against Double Life; 28 to 1 against Bachelor's Date; 30 to 1 against Triton; 35 to 1 against Kean and Lackytor; 40 to 1 against Cheerful Abbott, Gangwarily, Caballero and Six Wheeler; 50 to 1 against Insight, Cardinal Spring, Welcome Gift, Slipper, Romany Queen and Vatout; 66 to 1 against Gayday, Shyrame and Eclath; 100 to 1 against Niantic, Lion Hearted, O'Curry, Glossin, Heremon, High Tide, Molly, The Marchioness and Roi Grey.

Joe McGinnity Unchanged.

The condition of Joe McGinnity, iron man of baseball, remains about the same, his physician, Dr. R. S. Robinson, reported last night. McGinnity is critically ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Lappen, in Brooklyn.

WILLIAM T. PASSES BEWITHUS TO WIN

Makes Up Two Lengths in Last Furlong of Frederick Handicap at Laurel.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 29 (AP).—William T., which races for the Kentucky sportsman, W. E. Caskey Jr., beat E. R. Bradley's Bewithus a length in the running of the Frederick Handicap, at a mile and seventy yards, today.

Bewithus, showing brilliant speed, went to the front and set a dazzling pace, opening up a lead of three lengths in the first quarter. Bewithus was taken in hand and rated along in front. He went the first half mile in 0:47 2-5 and the six furlongs in 1:12 3-5.

Bewithus still had a lead of two lengths at the furlong pole in the home stretch. Legere, evidently feeling Bewithus tiring under him, began looking back, which did not help his mount any. And in the last sixteenth, William T., which was closing stoutly, caught Bewithus and at the end won going away. Inception finished third, beaten a length for the place.

The mile was run in 0:37 2-5 and the mile and seventy yards in 1:42 2-5, just a fifth of a second slower than the track record.

Two horses changed hands, Passing By being claimed from the Audley Farm by R. E. Perry for $3,000 and in the fourth race Benny Creech, trainer for W. R. Coe, claimed Chestie Ann for $5,000.

WALKER OUTPOINTS HUDKINS ON COAST

MANY HARD BLOWS LANDED

Walker Outfights Rival in Almost Every Round—25,000 Attend—Receipts Are $110,000.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29 (AP).—Mickey Walker successfully defended his middleweight crown here tonight when he gave Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat, a terrific punching in ten rounds.

Fighting in all his old time form, the champion not only outfought Hudkins in nearly every round but had the Nebraska slugger groggy on several occasions. It was the second meeting of the pair, Walker having defeated Hudkins in ten rounds in Chicago last year.

A crowd of 25,000 persons accounting for a gate of around $110,000 saw the contest.

Walker was the first to enter the ring and received an ovation, but it was mild compared to the tremendous cheer that went up when Ace climbed through the ropes. Walker's weight was announced as 159½ and Hudkin's 156.

Lieutenant Jack Kennedy gave the men their final instructions in the centre of the ring while the crowd subsided into silence.

Hudkins Is Aggressive.

To start the bout Hudkins danced out. Then they clinched and belted each other at short range. Hudkins forced the champion around the ring, mauling at him and beating a tattoo to the body. Walker unleashed a two-handed attack to the body and clipped Hudkins with a hard left to the chin.

Coming out of a clinch, Walker drove in two more lefts to the body. As Hudkins rushed in and connected with another pair of jolting lefts, Walker landed four punches to the body.

Hudkins rushed across the ring at the start of the second round but Walker hit him with a left to the body. Walker was boxing in nice style and clipped the Wild Cat with a sharp left to the chin. They locked arms, Hudkins pounding to the body. Walker slashed over a right and left to the chin as Hudkins drove in, but took several stinging punches to the midsection.

Hudkins never stopped coming in and threw rights and lefts to the body, meanwhile shaking off half a dozen rights and lefts to the chin.

The challenger rushed across the ring as the third round opened and forced Mickey to the ropes, mauling him in the mid-section. Walker speared Hudkins with a long left to the face and drove in a hard right to the body. Hudkins had pushed Walker around the ring, landing three feeble lefts. Walker battered the wildcat in a terrific body attack. Walker was forcing the fighting and landing with both hands to the face and the body as he tried desperately for a knockout.

Challenger Stages Rally.

After being warned by the referee for blows that seemed low, Hudkins rallied in the fourth round and belted Walker to the body. They exchanged punches at a very fast exchange. Walker playing for the head and Hudkins trying for the body. At short range Hudkins slipped over a long left to thebody and a right to the jaw. Walker landed a sharp right that cut Hudkins's left eye and he battered the Wildcat with both rights and lefts.

Hudkins charged across the ring, got his head down and threw punches from every angle in the fifth. They exchanged punches, with Walker having the better of the milling. Hudkins stuck three lefts into Walker's face, but took two hard right hands in the body as he rushed in again.

Walker stood back and pasted his opponent with a right and left to the jaw which brought blood from Hudkins's nose and eyes. Hudkins then rushed Walker into the ropes without damage and forced Walker back to the ropes and belted him with both hands to the body.

Walker evaded Hudkins's bull-like rush at the start of the sixth round and speared him with a left and right at close range. Hudkins tried to rush Walker into the ropes but failed. They exchanged rights and lefts. Walker hooked to the face with a left and right and dropped both punches to the body in another exchange.

Walker Hits Hard.

Hudkins came in again and received two more lefts and rights to the chin that half spun him around. They clinched at the start of the next round but broke away quickly to exchange light punches. Hudkins jumped in to receive a right to the jaw, but started a furious rally that had Walker on the run.

The Nebraskan whipped over half a dozen lefts and rights then Walker rallied, throwing terrific left and right-hand punches to the jaw that slowed up Hudkins. They exchanged rights and lefts to the body, but both slowed up.

Walker livened up to take the play away from his opponent and belted the Ace with a hard body attack in the eighth round. Hudkins kept coming in, flailing away with both hands, and scored with a looping left to the jaw. They mauled around the ring without damage. Walker connected with a hard right to the body but took several lefts and rights to the mid-section. Hudkins rallied and chased the champion back around the ring with a two-handed body attack.

The Nebraskan landed a left to the body to start the ninth round. He rushed in again, shot over a straight left to the face, but took a left to the chin. They exchanged rights and lefts to the body. Walker scored a short right uppercut and a left to the body. Hudkins landed two rights to the kidney but dropped back from two hard rights to the chin.

They shook hands and then exchanged lefts to the face. Walker brought Hudkins's chin up with a bruising right uppercut. A right opened the cut over Hudkins's eye. He also bled profusely from a split lip.

Walker whipped over rights and lefts to the jaw as Hudkins rushed in. Hudkins drove over a low left and was cautioned by the referee. They exchanged lefts to the body. Each connected with rights and lefts, and they slugged toe to toe in the centre of the ring. Walker jolted Hudkins with two more lefts and a right to the jaw as the gong ended the fight.

Mack and McCarthy Honored At Dinner Held in Germantown

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29 (AP).—Veteran athletes of Germantown played host tonight to two of its citizens, Joe McCarthy, manager of the Cubs, and Connie Mack, manager and part owner of the Athletics. Mack lives in Germantown and McCarthy's family home is still there and occupied by his mother.

"Four years ago I was a guest in this same hall," McCarthy said, "as I was about to enter into major league baseball. Connie Mack was one of those who tendered congratulations at that time and he expressed the hope that I would come back some day at the head of the Cubs and play his team for the world series."

TITLE RATING ASKED FOR SCOTT FIGHT

But English Boxer and Sharkey Have Not Been Matched, as Cable Implied.

BOUT IS DEEMED UNLIKELY

No Action Taken on Request From British Body—Ban on Blanket Contracts Upheld.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

A premature attempt to acquire heavyweight championship recognition for a bout between Jack Sharkey, established outstanding contender for Gene Tunney's discarded crown, and Phil Scott, English pretender, met with little official response at yesterday's meeting of the State Athletic Commission. A cabled request to this effect was received from the British Board of Boxing Control, Executive Secretary Bert Stand announced, but because promoters have failed to match Sharkey and Scott the commission decided to take no action until the principals actually are signed to fight.

That Sharkey and Scott will be signed in the immediate future is extremely doubtful. Efforts have been made to force this match, but the Madison Square Garden Corporation, while recognizing Sharkey as a logical title contender, refuses to concede that Scott qualifies for championship consideration on a record which reveals that he conquered Victorio Campolo but that he was knocked out by Knute Hansen and beaten by Johnny Risko in major battles.

Schmeling Prominent Rival.

Max Schmeling stands pre-eminent among Sharkey's rivals, but, because he is in disfavor here, the official disposition is to give him scant consideration. Paulino, Tuffy Griffith and Otto von Porat are other eligibles qualified to meet Scott before the English heavyweight can hope to command attention. If it is proposed to seek a Sharkey-Scott match for England, an effective barrier would be the contract the Garden corporation holds on Sharkey's services.

The commission withheld the money due Billy Wallace and Patsy Ruffalo for their bout last Monday night at the St. Nicholas Arena, which was declared no contest. Secretary Stand said the club could have a return match between the pair gratis.

Ruling on Blanket Contracts.

That blanket contracts have no standing in the eyes of the commission was reiterated when Frankie Schoell, Buffalo boxer, sought the commission's decision on whether he was bound by contracts for a series of five bouts signed ten months ago by the Crescent A. C., Buffalo. The commission ruled he was not.

The possibility of an unexpected change in the flyweight tournament of four ten-round bouts at the Garden next Monday night caused concern at the Garden yesterday. Speedy Dado, training here to fight Ernie Peters, Chippewa Indian, suffered an injury to his right shoulder. Whether the injury is serious will be known today.

BROWN KNOCKS OUT ZINNA.

Feature Bout at 27th Division Train Armory Ends in 5th.

Harry (Kid) Brown of the 111th Infantry of Philadelphia knocked out Nick Zinna of the 156th Field Artillery of Kingston, N. In the eight-round semi-final Matty Guida of the home outfit, 137½, received the decision over Barry Hendricks of the Naval Militia, 125. The first of the eight-rounders was won by Herman Bernstein of the Fourteenth Infantry, 147, who outpointed Joe Caiucci of the Twenty-seventh Division Train, 145.

Carl Schlieper of the home outfit, 154, defeated Lester Kelly, U. S. Navy, 152, in a six-rounder, while in the six-round opening bout Al Weaver of the U. S. Navy, 135, outpointed Joe Fadetta, Fourteenth Infantry, 136.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

JAMES BUTLER, who owns the Empire track, was standing on the clubhouse porch in the pleasant Autumn sunshine recently and somebody said to him:

"Very pretty plant you have here, Mr. Butler."

To which Mr. Butler replied:

"Yes, but you ought to see Laurel."

That isn't hard to do. You simply get on a train, go to Laurel, Md., get off the train and the huge grand stand looms up directly ahead. Mr. Butler owns that track, too. He had a peculiar experience with it. After he had bought it he discovered than an utter stranger held title to a narrow strip of territory that cut across the main track and into the infield. This was something of a shock because the holder of that property talked of putting up a fence that would have made every race a steeplechase provided jumpers could be found that could clear the proposed obstacle.

However, that difficulty was finally straightened out. Mr. Butler acquired title to the strip and with everything under control and no other strangers showing up with title deeds bulging from their pockets he built a $800,000 grand stand with one particular feature that will interest any visitor from metropolitan tracks where betting is illegal. That's the line of ticket selling windows for mutuel betting. It extends for the whole length of the understructure of the grand stand and there are times when all those windows are taxed to capacity to take care of the trade.

Ready Money.

With open betting banned in this area, it's impossible to give any exact figures on the wagers of a single day at Empire, Belmont or Saratoga, but down in Maryland the figures are a matter of public record. At Laurel, for instance, the "high" for the track was something like $987,000 in one day.

Mutuel tickets to this amount were bought and paid for in hard cash. That doesn't mean that the bettors at the track that afternoon had $987,000 in cash in their pockets, because there were seven races and much of the money went in and out the windows seven different times. But it is probable that a pool of all the cash at the track at any given moment on that day would have totaled at least $250,000. Perhaps that estimate is conservative, but at least it indicates that there was no lack of ready money, hard cash, current coin of the realm, in that truly rural corner of Maryland on that particular afternoon.

In behind the line of mutuel windows there is a clerking organization like that of a huge bank, men who are fast and accurate with figures, and to add to the banking appearance there is a huge steel vault in which the racing association stows away the bills and coins that come in through the windows.

A Slight Mistake.

Racing followers often talk of the "machines" or the "iron men" in referring to mutuel betting, but the chap who goes looking for "machines" or "iron men" at Laurel will be a long time finding them. The only machines at Laurel are the ham-slicing machines in the kitchen of the Stevens catering department.

It it mutuel betting, but the selling, calculating and paying off are all done by hand. There are machines in some other places, but the "iron men" at Laurel are men out of sight behind glazed windows with pencils dashing over huge sheets of paper covered with figures.

These men figure approximately five sets of odds on each race. Shortly after betting starts men go "along the line" and take readings of the tickets that have been sold on the different horses. These readings are turned over to the calculators and in a minute or two the approximate odds according to that reading are posted underneath the stand, in the clubhouse and on a big board just across the track from the judges' stand.

Later in the betting second and third readings are taken and odds posted in the same manner, and just before the windows are closed a final reading is taken and final approximate odds are posted.

Subject to Change Without Notice.

Even with all these readings, the pay-off may be made on a surprisingly different basis due to a last minute rush to certain horses when the odds seem attractive. Here it might be said that almost any odds in Maryland seem attractive to bettors from the metropolitan district, where the prices include a large factor of safety for the bookmakers, who are protecting themselves against fellows who write a beautiful hand on the paper slips but forget to pay when they lose.

Any one who knows anything about racing knows all about the mutuel system. The only percentage taken out of the betting is the 5 per cent and "breakage" taken by the track. Except for that percentage, what some bettors lost other bettors must win. They "break" to the dime at Laurel, and that nets the track something approximating 5½ per cent. On the biggest betting day at the track, consequently, the track share was a little more than $50,000, not counting the price of admission.

Higher Mathematics.

The finances of racing are astonishing. Just what the capital investment at Laurel is only the owner, James Butler, knows, but the new stands cost $600,000 and that's only part of the establishment. Yet this place stands absolutely idle 341 days in the year and turns in a profit on twenty-four days of racing. Is there any other line of business that could show a handsome profit on a similar basis?

Indeed, the profits at some tracks in Maryland are so big that they are turned back into improving and beautifying the track, since there is a Maryland law that puts a percentage limit on the profit that can be made in racing ventures.

New York gets no revenue from race track betting, but Maryland cuts in handsomely by charging each track $6,000 a day when the racing is on. At Pimlico there is also a city tax higher than that, but Pimlico shoulders the extra burden and carries on quite contentedly. There are 92 days of racing on Maryland's big tracks, so it can be seen that the State has a real stake in the racing industry in that area.

All these figures, however, should not be allowed to obscure the fact that Laurel is a beautiful racing plant. The visitor will find that it looks at its best on a sunshiny Autumn afternoon just after he has stepped away from the pay-off window.

HEREWITHEM J. P. WINS BEST IN SHOW

Maloney's Pointer Victor in Mid-Jersey Field Dog Club Event at Plainfield.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Oct. 29.—Robert F. Maloney's famous pointer Ch. Herewithem J. P. carried off the highest honors in the Mid-Jersey Field Dog Club show today.

J. P. went to this honor by a comfortable margin when put on the block with the best of winners, Denwoo Ada, a nice-looking bitch owned by P. H. Powel of Denton, N. C. The winner among the dogs, ch. Denwood Seth, is also owned by Powel.

An unusually fine assortment of beagles was judged by Joseph Baldwin of Wilmington, Del., but despite the even quality, he managed his awards in rapid order. Best of the breed went to that handsome specimen, Ch. Meadow Lark Watchman, owned by Louis Batjer of New Brunswick, N. J.

Herewithem J. P., which headed his breed and the sporting group at the last Westminster show, also scored easily in his breed today.

The best of the 13 to 15 inch winners, and the best of all winners was found in a very good female, Shadowland Proserpina, owned by John J. O'Donohue of Plainfield. The best of the 13-inch winners was another extremely nice bitch, Follies' Noisey, owned by Richard B. Turner of Elton, N. Y.

A quite sensational dog, Inglehurst Potter's Buddy, owned by N. H. Potter of Passaic, N. J., was found by McLaughlin among the Gordon setters. This dog won four blue ribbons with ease on his way to the winners class and then defeated the Fordyce Kennel's entry, Clonmellerslie Doc Lyte, to carry off that honor.

The cocker spaniels were judged by Mrs. A. R. Moffit of Poughkeepsie. She selected best of the breed in My Own Princess Marie, which is owned by Oscar L. Delano of Rhinebeck, N. Y. It was also best of the solid-color winners. It is a beautiful black. Best of the particolor winners was found in My Own Marcia, also owned by Mr. Delano.

THE STOCK MARKET.

The extraordinary convulsion on the Stock Exchange, which at yesterday's lowest prices had caused a fall, in half a dozen weeks, of more than one-third in average values of active shares, will undoubtedly be described hereafter as one of the celebrated Wall Street panics. The fact that it was not accompanied by an equally violent money-market crisis, by the bidding-up of call money on the Stock Exchange to 75 and 125 per cent, sets at least one contrast with the pre-war panic episodes and that of 1920. Yet, while acute money stringency would possibly have aggravated even this week's panic-stricken market, its absence leaves the collapse in stock-market values to stand out all the more dramatically by itself.

Immunity on the present occasion from exorbitant money rates—an immunity so remarkable that rates for demand loans have actually declined from 10 per cent to 5 in the course of October's fall of stocks, and rates for collateral time loans from 9 per cent to 6—has several explanations. The extremely large closing-out of speculative loans in the earlier Autumn break of prices is one. Absence of imminent insolvency on the part of banks and financial houses, such as provoked the desperate bid for credit in those older panics, is another. The Federal Reserve's highly judicious attitude toward the Autumn money market is a third. Possibly the lending of their funds by investment firms and companies which had sold out their stocks in time is still another. But a final and unquestionable cause, which did not exist in any previous stock-market panic of this one's magnitude, has been the fact that great sums of credit were not, as in 1920 and 1907, tied up in speculative inventories of merchandise—their contribution in those other days to an inflated "boom."

In this absence of a money-market crisis at the moment of complete demoralization on the Stock Exchange, there is ground for reassurance. The country's credit facilities have been frightfully mishandled by the reckless Wall Street speculators, but at least these visible signs at the crucial moment do not indicate such spread of spectacular reaction from the Stock Exchange into trade and industry, as almost invariably followed our old-time panics. What will be the sequel in trades which may have been stimulated through purchases by an army of speculators with paper profits, now scattered to the winds, it is useless to conjecture. But if present indications are fulfilled, sound and conservative industry will not be shaken as it used to be on such occasions.

On the stock market itself, there is little need for moralizing. It has told its own story and taught its own lesson, and the lesson has been learned, as it could have been learned in no other way, by the huge multitude of American citizens, in every class of society, who had come to believe that "easy money" won by gambling on a margin was a better order of things than patient industry and legitimate earnings. Of the extraordinary illusions concerning finance, economics and Prosperity, which for two years past have been defended and encouraged by men whose position gave small excuse for such an attitude, it is not necessary now to speak. These intellectual vagaries, too, have gone down in the Wall Street storm. Painful as the experience has been, even to many who were involved in it by no fault of their own, the longer result of it will be restoration of the community's mental health and vision.

WHO KILLED COCK ROBIN?

Having made sure and every day making surer that no tariff bill will be passed, the coalition Senators are solemnly resolved to put the blame where it belongs. Mr. ROBINSON, waving away all attempts to "lay this blanket on our doorstep," promises to "facilitate progress in every way possible." Who has been delaying progress? PAT HARRISON agrees with that other passionate admirer of Mr. HOOVER, HIRAM JOHNSON, that the President should give a lead, and thereby invite more thunder and small beer against Executive "usurpation." Mr. BORAH finds that President HOOVER'S position as to agricultural rates and limited revision of industrial rates is clear, but Republicans haven't followed.

Mr. SIMMONS calmly asserts that the Democrats are seeking to carry out that limited revision which the President recommended. Only the other day Mr. SIMMONS and his faithful ally, Mr. NORRIS, were proclaiming their heroic purpose to undertake general revision and amputate such industrial duties in the Fordney-McCumber tariff as they deem too high. How are these altruistic augurs of the Senate able to look one another in the face without a grin? Whatever their explanations and pretensions, their doubling on their tracks, their reversals and lightning changes and convenient lapses of memory, the one object that they have steadily pursued through a cloud of amendments is the construction of a tariff bill that the House of Representatives cannot accept. Already the Senate bill contains two deliberate defiances of Mr. HOOVER. They are purposely manufacturing an impossible measure. When it has failed, they will say to the unrelieved farmer and the always unrelieved consumer: "We tried to do our best for you. The wicked House of Representatives, the President and the hellish 'interests' blocked our righteous endeavors. Punish the guilty straight old Republican party next Fall."

It may be that the country is as simple as these Senators seem to be in their attempt at guile. In the meantime, almost every day they scatter plenty o'er a smiling land. For the benefit of the creameries they raise the duty on casein from 2½ to 5½ cents a pound. Every cow owner in the great milk-producing States weeps for joy. According to Professor COMMONS of the University of Wisconsin, an eight-cent duty might give each farmer, if he got the whole advantage of it, 50 cents a year. On the other hand, is there a salad-eater with soul so dead as not to welcome that continued duty on olive oil which gives happiness to HIRAM JOHNSON and his California?

In the process of killing Cock Robin and preparing their alibi, these friends of the people at Washington combine pleasure with duty.

A SETBACK FOR REACTIONARIES

Out of Central Europe comes heartening news for the forces of peace and good-will on the Continent. In Germany it is the sensational fiasco of the anti-reparations referendum movement headed by ALFRED HUGENBERG. In order to bring his proposed law against the further payment of reparations before the Reichstag and the German people it was necessary for him to rally 4,000,000 petitioners. A fortnight ago it was generally conceded that he would be successful in this initiative step, just as it was believed that he would fail in the final referendum to poll the necessary 20,000,000 votes for a majority. The two weeks allowed by law for registering the preliminary four millions elapsed last night, and the man who set himself the task of winning over a majority of the German people has apparently been unable to rally a majority of the Nationalist party in which he has been the most protuberant figure for some time.

Credit for the result belongs in part to the short and swift intervention of President HINDENBURG against the referendum agitators. But it is obvious that the head of the Reich only expressed a prevalent feeling of disgust coupled with alarm over the possible consequences of a victory for HUGENBERG. Unfortunately for the latter, the test of strength came altogether too soon after the death of STRESEMANN. As we see it now, the anti-reparationists never had a chance of success, but their utter rout must be due in some measure to the fresh memory of the nation's loss in her great statesman of peace and reconstruction. The outcome is all the more gratifying because of the momentary political situation in France. It is easy to imagine the effect of a Hugenberg victory on Nationalist susceptibilities at Paris. We should have been witnessing a revival of the bad times of half a dozen years ago when fear and suspicion of each other shaped the daily mood of the two peoples.

Across the mountains from Germany the cause of moderation has registered gains in the elections for the Czechoslovak Parliament. Three Socialist parties, among them the one headed by Dr. BENES, score a gain of 17 Deputies against a Communist loss of 10. The Socialists now outnumber the Communists three to one. The significance is not so much in the absolute numbers as in the trend. In Western Europe, since the war, the Socialists have been a consistent force for appeasement and reconstruction, and the Communists have been, of course, for the policy of crisis. There was a time soon after the war when Communists found it feasible to cooperate with Monarchists in the promotion of disorder. The present moment in Central Europe seems to be unfavorable to the reactionaries of the Left as well as of the Right.

EXIT MR. BURKE.

Conditions in the Republican party are generally such as to make it wise for JAMES FRANCIS BURKE to give up his desk in the Executive Offices at Washington and return to Pittsburgh. There will be a Congressional election next year at which the Administration will naturally try to elect a Republican Congress. But meanwhile the mind of the country is on other things—economic things, industrial things, engineering things. For Mr. BURKE to be popping in and out of the White House every day makes it appear that the President is primarily politically minded. The American people need his talent for something else.

Mr. BURKE is general counsel of the Republican National Committee, but with the election of Mr. HUSTON as Chairman the necessity of his function lapses. Dr. WORK, Mr. HUSTON'S predecessor, needed general counsel and a lot of other assistance. Mr. HUSTON has more aptitude and other ideas. He can get along very well with only an occasional visit from Mr. BURKE, and the President can do even better without housing a section of the National Committee in his private offices. The Progressive Senators, who have had every reason to believe that Mr. BURKE would gladly see them defeated in their primaries and regular Republicans substituted, will feel easier when he is back on the Monongahela. And if it is true that, after Chairman HUSTON had given his assent to the selection of Mr. KAHN as treasurer of the Senatorial Committee, Mr. BURKE helped to provide that "mixed reception" which last night persuaded Mr. KAHN to "abstain" from the service, Mr. HUSTON probably will not mourn this departure. Lest it be thought that cheers are being raised on all sides for the passing of an earnest, shrewd and agreeable man—and one who was of great service to the President in the past—it might be suggested that in politics there are such things as very temporary withdrawals. In the heat of the next campaign, desk room can readily be made for Mr. BURKE again. And if the time shall come when Senator BORAH'S present approval of the short-lived proffer to Mr. KAHN shall change to roars against "international bankers" in party offices, Mr. BURKE'S reputed position on that subject may be hailed as prescient.

Privately, in many places, he will be missed—by none perhaps so much as by the Washington correspondents. If they were to be asked to put a graving on his political bier they would write: "JIM was a good news source."

GRUNDY ON THE CONSTITUTION

It has long been known, of course, that Mr. GRUNDY of Pennsylvania is a high authority on the tariff and a great expert in Republican politics. Few suspected until his appearance before the Senate committee yesterday that he is also a profound student of the American Constitution. This came out when he was indulging in some rather contemptuous remarks about Senators who represent the smaller and poorer States. To his clear mind it seemed absurd that they should be given influence in making tariffs so long as they had "no chips in the game." Then he was asked if he thought it was a mistake for the framers of the Constitution to give to each State, no matter what its population or wealth, the right to have two United States Senators. His reply was: "I think it was unfortunate."

This equality in the Senate now appears to Mr. GRUNDY to be a vexatious obstacle to his plan of making a high tariff. If only the rich and powerful were allowed a hand in it, all would be well for the country. But he must be aware, having no doubt spent many days and nights in exploring the sources of our government, that it would have been impossible to have any Constitution at all, or to get it ratified, if the compromise had not been arranged whereby the States should be equal in the Senate, although the populous States would have their larger representation in the House. It is in the latter body that great Commonwealths like Pennsylvania and New York should make their numbers and influence count far more than they do. There has been an almost conscious and deliberate subordination of the House to the Senate. This has come about partly because it has been felt that the Senate, being more compact, could be more easily "handled" by expert manipulators of legislation. But if now the Senate is going to break up into unruly groups and render tariff-making more difficult for patriots like Mr. GRUNDY, it may result in restoring the House of Representatives to something like its old prestige and authority.

DEALING WITH GERMANY DIRECT.

It is not surprising that the report of a separate treaty between the United States and Germany to settle the method of payment of our costs of army occupation has caused cynical and bitter comment in Europe. Statesmen there have never understood America's brand of visible-invisible non-cooperative cooperation. Did not the United States play an important part in the framing of the Versailles Treaty and then sign a separate document with Germany? Was not the Dawes plan partly due to the initiative of the United States—for which that country took credit but no responsibility? To provide for payments apart from but not in conflict with the Young plan would therefore be consistent with our previous attitude. It would also make nervous Senators feel that the United States is still remaining aloof from sullying entanglement in the affairs of Europe.

The early coldness of Treasury Department officials to the Young plan may be the reason why the belief is held in certain European circles that the United States desires to "scuttle" it. But President HOOVER and Secretaries STIMSON and MELLON are too keenly aware of its importance in stabilizing world peace to wish it ill. It is a safe assumption that their motive in negotiating a separate treaty has to do with internal politics. The Young plan, since it includes modifications of Germany's obligations which imply a cut in the payments owed the United States, would probably be submitted to Congress. A separate treaty, without the whole Young plan, might seem simpler and might avoid introducing American partisanship into discussions of the Young plan.

It is perhaps significant that the Europeans who have jumped to the conclusion that the purpose of the United States is to sabotage the Young plan are men like HUGENBERG in Germany and "Pertinax" in France. They have been so insistent in attempting to belittle the settlement of the war liquidation that they may be expected to seize on anything to help their cause. But they may write it down in their books that the people of this nation wish the Young plan success if for no other reason than that it promises to assure a settled peace in Europe.

SUBWAYS NEW AND OLD.

Sunday was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening of New York's first subway. THE TIMES was fortunate in being able to present to its readers a review of transit progress in the intervening years from the pen of General WILLIAM BARCLAY PARSONS, who was the chief engineer of the original road. Looking back, he is glad of what was done. His very inexperience made him bold and daring in going at so unprecedented a project. In deciding in favor of the shallow subway instead of the deep tube London had just completed, he "selected the plan that appealed to the imagination regardless of its risks and uncertainties." There were risks and uncertainties aplenty in the entire undertaking, with a lot of forthright opposition. That they were successfully met is a tribute to the men who backed and built the subways, relying on the expert advice of General PARSONS, ROBERT RIDGWAY, now chief engineer of the Board of Transportation, and others of their staff.

Today travel underground is accepted as a matter of course. It is even more popular than travel on the surface, or on the stilts of the elevated. There is a growing demand for the demolition of these ancient structures, which breed noise and shadow and lowered property value. When the city is able to dispense with them General PARSONS thinks that those who benefit from the removal of the tracks should help to pay for the expense of putting them underground. When these railways were built, compensation was paid to the abutting property for the damage to light, air and access. It is only fair that this process should be reversed when that damage is removed. That is the present intention with regard to the Fulton Street line in Brooklyn. It is squarely in line with the official recommendations of Mr. UNTERMYER, who has expressed the hope that the "blunder" made when the Sixth Avenue extension was taken down, of permitting the benefit to be "reaped by a coterie of real estate speculators," would not be repeated.

THE GUGGENHEIM FOUNDATION'S WORK.

For nearly four years the Guggenheim Foundation has fostered and stabilized commercial aviation by munificent gifts and by experimental and laboratory work. While others have labored in the same field, the contribution of DANIEL and HARRY GUGGENHEIM will always be recognized as admirable for leadership and accomplishment. They are men of ideals, but their plans for the advancement of aviation have always been practical. DANIEL GUGGENHEIM said in the first year of the Foundation that he was constantly asked what career he would advise for young men, and his answer was "aeronautical engineering." "The people have not yet awakened," he once remarked, "to a realization of the possibilities of air transportation." Colonel LINDBERGH'S tour of the country to help make Americans air-minded was financed by the Foundation. HARRY GUGGENHEIM has been indefatigable in promoting commercial aviation. He gave all his time to the cause, wrote much on the subject, and made many addresses. No one saw more clearly into the future. In an article written for THE TIMES recently he said:

> In this century the illimitable air roads, which at last are available to man, offer the most potent instrument for the economic development, not of any particular empire, but of the entire world.

Several universities were equipped with aeronautical laboratories. Every flying expedition that could show any promise found patrons in the GUGGENHEIMS. The University of Michigan received aid when preparing to have a study made of the weather in Greenland, which is of so much importance to the use of the airplane over the Atlantic. Prizes amounting to $150,000 were offered for inventions to make flying safe. Blind flying by the instrument board has always been a concern of the Foundation. Any proposal to improve air transportation was always, if it had merit, taken up by the Foundation.

The GUGGENHEIMS would be the first to protest against undue laudation of their achievement, but it is a fact that no invention or expedient to develop flying of a useful character was ever neglected by them. A large share of the credit of making the United States first in the air belongs to their Foundation. It has done its work as a generous and intelligent patron of aviation, and now announces that, with the bestowal of a half-million more in practical gifts and a pledge to continue college endowments, it will wind up its work on Dec. 31. What the country owes the Guggenheim Foundation should then be acknowledged in a fitting manner.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Wallace and Whalen.

With a couple of plays on his hands and scores of detective stories to his credit, EDGAR WALLACE must have found much in common with the Police Commissioner when he called at headquarters yesterday.

Mr. WALLACE is an old hand at unraveling mysteries. The story is told that a friend who telephoned to Mr. WALLACE was told by his secretary: "Mr. WALLACE cannot speak to you just now. He is in the midst of his latest thriller."

"That's all right," said the friend. "I'll just hold the wire till he's finished." Any police chief should be eager to discover the secret of such rapid-fire methods.

Mr. WALLACE was generous in his admiration for the New York organization. "It can't be more efficient than Scotland Yard, for the simple reason that nothing can. But it has a snap about it that the Yard lacks." And there is an enthusiasm in its personnel that London might well emulate.

On the other hand, the veteran detectives at the Yard "know just about everything there is to know about crime and criminals." If the distinguished Britisher was magnanimous enough to impart some of his more abstruse data to Mr. WHALEN, we may expect soon to hear that various New York mysteries have been completely cleared up, each one of them in less than 300 pages.

The Heart of Bruce.

If boys nowadays thrill to the same tales which used to fascinate the boys of yesterday, no current news story will interest them so much as that from Edinburgh which tells of the missing heart of ROBERT the BRUCE. Generations which read HENTY and "Scottish Chiefs" were brought up on this tale. Of all the gallant figures of medieval times, the BRUCE of Bannockburn and the spider, the BRUCE who sent PEMBROKE and EDWARD LONGSHANKS back to England in defeat, and who avenged the foul betrayal of WILLIAM WALLACE by Sir JOHN MONTEITH, is to boys the most glamourous.

Through long evenings they have read the fascinating story of the Black DOUGLAS and how he bore the heart of BRUCE as far as Spain in an effort to deposit it, as the King required, in the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem. That perhaps it never was recovered from beneath the body of DOUGLAS, and never reposed in Melrose Abbey, are disillusioning thoughts, bitterly modern.

Romance can never permit the heart of BRUCE to disappear wholly from tales of the imagination or allow the thought to take hold among youth that it was never borne to Spain at all. If it shall not be found in Scotland now, the next few centuries will be full of old wives' tales of how it abides, guarded by Picts, in a cavern near Scone, where is the great coronation stone of the Scottish Kings. And south of the Tweed rural mothers of England will still croon to the babies at dusk:

> Hush ye, hush ye, do not fret ye,
> For the Black DOUGLAS shall not get ye.

Active if Sometimes Overlooked.

In a slashing article on the "new biography," in the November number of Current History, J. TRUSLOW ADAMS takes note of the waning popularity of psychology, psychoanalysis and other "scientific" substitutes for the old-style record of concrete fact. He makes the direct assertion that the sales of BEVERIDGE'S "Lincoln" are "simply astounding" and far outdistance any of the "new" biographies.

If the gossip of the contemporary literary columns is very little concerned with BEVERIDGE'S "Lincoln," the reason is the same as with the scant notice accorded in the same gossip groups to The Atlantic Monthly as compared with magazines of far smaller circulation and only a fraction of The Atlantic's inner worth. BEVERIDGE and The Atlantic would be not quite in the "current of the times," which means up to the latest taste of the moment, and therefore are not good subjects for conversation. But like a great many people not mentioned as among those seen at Broadway first nights, such publications lead an intelligent existence and exercise a certain importance in the life of the community.

Americans are perfect democrats in their complete acceptance of majority control. The party that gets a few more seats in Congress takes charge of all the committees. The minority cheerfully acquiesces and hopes for better times, so cheerfully that one often forgets a minority exists and makes itself felt. When the "current of the times" in the magazines is sex and "pep," one overlooks the counter-current of The Atlantic; and when biography is sex and complexes, one has to be reminded of the enormous sales of the BEVERIDGE "Lincoln."

Traffic Light Changes.

Commissioner WHALEN put into effect on Monday night two traffic reforms. He ordered the signal lights lit an hour earlier in the morning and kept alight an hour later at night. That was a step in the right direction. There is enough traffic on the streets between seven and eight in the morning and in the three hours after midnight to warrant this safety measure. Lately it has been dangerous to attempt to navigate the streets during these hours in the absence of the customary control.

The other change involved a shift in the "cycle" under which only twenty-five instead of fifty-five seconds are allowed for east-west traffic and only eighty-five instead of a hundred and fifteen seconds for north and south movement. This is in line with the experience of other cities, which have in many instances found the shorter cycle more effective. Incidentally, it tends to act as an automatic means of controlling pedestrians, who are given more frequent opportunities of crossing streets and more effectively prevented from crossing them in between times.

Observers noted confusion at occasional crossings Monday night, usually due to exasperated motorists who, determined to get across town without frequent stops, deliberately chose to ignore the red lights. Police officials who made the rounds, however, felt confident that such defects would be corrected and that the new system would work well.

Proposing Industrial War.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is one light in the darkness for the brave women who are protesting against the threatened tyranny of tight waists and long skirts. If one branch of the textile industry would force us again to become slaves to our clothes and lose all we have earned in personal freedom and renewed health these last years, another branch of the same industry should be our aid in revolt—the makers of stockings, silk or otherwise. The only thing that can be said in favor of the long skirt is that one can get along with one-third of the stockings now necessary. When a run may work its fatal course half-way down the leg and still not be visible, there will be much mending and much less buying of new hosiery.

The sensible new street-gown length is more decent and more comfortable that a revealing of knees seldom beautiful, but would still necessitate discarding of hose spoiled by runs. Therefore, why not force fashion to stop at that limit, by pitting one industry against the other? Just as women who prefer the freedom of short hair are sitting pretty and letting the barbers and the hairpin makers fight it out among themselves.

SONG OF THE SPECTRES.

> The bravest flee wherever we
> On Hallowe'en assemble.
> In cellars dank our chains we clank
> Till the boldest heart will tremble.
> From a bloodstained rift in a floor we drift,
> And where is the man so stolid
> Who will not quake as our way we make
> Through walls that are thick and solid?
>
> When bolts shoot back in their rusty track;
> When keys in their locks start turning;
> When hinges creak with a ghostly squeak,
> What use is the scholar's learning?
> For sense will fly when a wraith floats by,
> And courage will not tarry,
> For the keenest blade that was ever made
> A ghostly thrust can parry!
>
> When a spectre grim the lights will dim
> With the touch of a ghostly finger,
> Man's courage flees, and his shaking knees
> Beat a tattoo while we linger;
> And his tongue will parch as the spectres march,
> And his flesh will burn with fever—
> For a spectral wraith will shake the faith
> Of the boldest unbeliever.

THE STATE CENSUS.

It Should Be Expanded Beyond the Limits of Federal Enumeration.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES lately I have seen some editorial comment to the effect that the New York State census would be unnecessary if the United States Census Bureau would agree to gather hereafter the information about the number of citizens and aliens required by New York's Constitution.

But there are more reasons than that for having a State census. Six or eight States now take censuses midway between the Federal ones, the principal reason probably being that ten years is considered too long an interval between enumerations in rapidly growing States and cities.

However, the mere number of inhabitants in a given area is only a small part of the information that a census ought to give. If that were all, it could be approximated fairly well between censuses by means of current school enrolment figures, records of births, marriages, deaths, &c. The quality of the population is just as important as the quantity, and a census if tabulated in sufficient detail and properly interpreted affords valuable measures of quality, by means of the illiteracy count, sex ratio, proportion of adults, size of families, &c.

For a community with more women than men, which has long been the case in New York State and city, is likely to be more cultured than the opposite extreme, typified by mining camps, city slums, &c.; and a community with more adults than children, and therefore small families, is bound to be more prosperous than where there are enough children to be an economic burden. There are great variations in these respects between different States and cities, and even between different wards of New York and other cities, as any one can see for himself by consulting the reports of the last United States census.

There would not be much use trying to have civilization if we could not measure it at frequent intervals and see what progress we are making; but, unfortunately, there seems to be a large and growing Bolshevistic element in this country and elsewhere that is opposed to the idea of social inequality and any data that might be used to indicate it. Massachusetts in 1915 published a very detailed and valuable State census, but that of 1925 gave no information except the total population of each political division. Rhode Island used to have a pretty good State census, too, but in 1925 seems to have published nothing but a mimeographed press bulletin. In the preliminary report of the New York census of 1925 Mrs. Knapp expressed her gratification at having enough funds in sight to publish a real census; but her plans were soon afterward upset by circumstances familiar to all your readers who can remember a year or two back.

Let us hope therefore that instead of abolishing State censuses they will be expanded to give significant details not available in Federal censuses. At the present time a population census of a State the size of New York costs the taxpayers about a million dollars, and then much of the information gathered even by the Federal census is allowed to go to waste for lack of adequate tabulation and interpretation, which would increase the cost very little.

MEMORIAL TO ANNIE L. CARY

New Building Is Needed to House Library in Her Birthplace.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I transmit through THE TIMES a request for names and addresses of living friends or admirers of the late Annie Louise Cary?

There is a special reason for this request. For nearly thirty years the small town of Wayne, the birthplace of Miss Cary, which numbers about 500 inhabitants, has maintained a library, largely through volunteer services and gifts. The Library Association now owns a frame building, about 3,500 books, a collection of more than 1,500 rare book plates and certain interesting and valuable memorials bequeathed to the association by Miss Cary. The list of books is excellent, there is a juvenile department, a good selection of magazines and a branch at North Wayne. The annual turnover in books loaned averages about 3,500, not counting magazines. The library is open afternoon and evening three days of the week in Summer, two days in Winter, and seldom is an evening so stormy that people do not gather about the magazine table or seek an exchange of books.

All this, I submit, shows a splendid achievement. But the time has come when the old frame building is no longer adequate or safe. A new fireproof building is urgently needed, and already, through the efforts of a few of the village people and cottagers, a nest-egg has been "laid" and put in the savings bank. School children have formed a club whose purpose is to earn and give to the fund a dollar for each school term. A widow, 83 years old, braided a rug, sold it for $10 and brought the check to the treasurer of the fund. Local readings and informal concerts have augmented the sum a little, but the fund grows slowly.

Miss Cary's distinguished services to the noble art of music shed lustre not only on Wayne but on the State of Maine and the whole country. She herself was deeply interested in her native town and in the library, which contributes so much to the happiness and culture of the community. It is hoped that the former friends and admirers of Miss Cary will contribute to this memorial to one of our country's most gifted daughters.

RED CROSS PLANES TO AID WAR INJURED

Fifty Nations Have Promised Not to Fire on Air-Ambulances, Wadsworth Says Here.

HAILS NEW GENEVA TREATY

Countless Lives Will Be Saved by Its Provisions, Official Declares at Hospitality Luncheon.

The new Red Cross treaty signed at Geneva, giving protection to its airplanes in warfare, was one of the most important problems settled by the representatives of fifty nations at the Red Cross conference there, Eliot Wadsworth, chairman of the American delegation to the Red Cross conference, said here yesterday.

Mr. Wadsworth, secretary of the World War Debt Funding Commission and former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, explained important details of the new Red Cross treaty at the annual dinner of the International Hospitality Committee of World Acquaintance Travel, Inc., at the Cosmopolitan Club, 133 East Fortieth Street. Mrs. Henry P. Davison presided.

Describes Treaty Terms.

After asserting that the Red Cross conference had marked "an advance in civilization," Mr. Wadsworth said:

"Fifty nations have agreed to limit their military activities in the interest of wounded, sick and prisoners. Such a thing would have been impossible not many years ago, and encourages the universal hope that military activities can be further limited by international agreement in the interest of all mankind.

"Some of the special points under discussion at this conference may be of interest. The use of aircraft for medical purposes and their protection in war under the Red Cross treaty was one of the most important problems before us. Airplanes as ambulances would have been a godsend in the World War (or any war). A man wounded on the Western Front could be taken from field dressing station to base hospital in London, Berlin or Paris direct in two hours. The rough journey by ambulance, train or boat would be entirely avoided. A little morphia and the wounded man may wake up in the hospital where his permanent treatment begins.

"But to the military man an airplane near the fighting line means a far-seeing eye, accurate artillery fire and bombing expeditions. The American delegation insisted that airplanes for sanitary vehicles must be protected at all times, and this protection is now given by the new Red Cross treaty.

To Report Enemy Wounded.

"Lack of information as to wounded and dead in enemy hands causes endless and unnecessary suffering at home. Strong provision is now made for the prompt sending of full reports.

"There were many other changes in the effort to modernize the Red Cross convention, first written in 1864, revised in 1906 and already out of date from the experience of the World War.

"It is unnecessary to stress the importance of such an agreement between nations, yet it was looked upon as an impossible dream when first proposed. We all know how it has gathered strength in each succeeding year.

"Last Summer a new international agreement was drawn up giving rights to prisoners of war never before conceded."

Other speakers were:

Miss HARRIET TAYLOR, vice president of World Acquaintance Travel.
Dr. ARTHUR E. BESTOR, president of the Chautauqua Association.
Mrs. JOHN FERGUSON, president of the National Council of Church Women of the United States.
Mrs. JOHN PARIS of the New York Garden Club.
Miss LENA MADESIN PHILLIPS.
Miss LOUISE SEAMAN of Smith College.

Junior Red Cross service supported by New York's school children during 1928 was outlined in an annual report made public yesterday by Dr. William J. O'Shea, Superintendent of Schools, and James M. Eidsall, chairman of the city chapter of the organization.

The report showed that there were 963,386 members of the Junior Red Cross representing 676 city schools. Membership fees brought in $37,611.59 during the year. More than $10,214.30 was spent on eye glasses for poor children. Life saving and other awards brought the expenses of the chapter to $38,470.

WOMEN TO AID TAG DAY.

Enlisted for Forget-Me-Not Sale for Veterans' Fund Nov. 8 and 9.

Women from social, civic and denominational organizations throughout New York City are being enlisted for the ninth annual forget-me-not appeal for the disabled American veterans of the World War, which will be held Nov. 8 and 9. Supplementing these will be a number of business girls' delegations, several of whom will be delegated by large corporations who employ them.

While the appeal will be nationwide, the disabled veterans' organization in New York has set out to raise more than $50,000 here. It is the plan during these two days to have workers on all important street corners, pinning forget-me-nots on the coats and dresses of passers-by and receiving such contributions as each desires to make.

STRESSES CHRISTIAN UNITY.

Lord Bishop of Winchester Urges British-American Cooperation.

Unity between Christians of this country and Great Britain to exert an influence on the social life of both countries was urged by the Right Rev. F. Theodore Woods, Lord Bishop of Winchester, at a luncheon given in his honor yesterday at the Hotel Commodore by the department of research and education of the Federal Council of Churches.

Bishop Woods pointed to the arms reduction conferences as a conspicuous example of what Christian people can do to remedy the ills of the world. He expressed the hope that social distinctions might be changed so that brains, finance and labor could be fused into one great enterprise, abolishing the gulf between capital and labor.

Dr. William Adams Brown, chairman of the department of research and education, presided, and Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the council, also spoke.

JOHN ROACH STRATON DIES IN SANITARIUM

Calvary Baptist Pastor Ill for Month at Clifton Springs After a Breakdown.

FUNDAMENTALIST LEADER

Widely Known Preacher Active Foe of Darwinism—Many Send Messages of Condolence.

Special to The New York Times.

CLIFTON SPRINGS, N. Y., Oct. 29.—The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church of New York and fundamentalist leader of national fame, died of a heart attack this morning after being in a critical condition in a sanitarium here for the past month as the result of a nervous breakdown suffered as the result of overwork.

Dr. Straton, who was 54 years old, had not fully recovered at the time of his breakdown from a slight paralytic stroke he had in April.

An active foe of Darwinism and agnosticism, Dr. Straton attracted wide attention by his support of William Jennings Bryan when Mr. Bryan took part in the Scopes trial at Dayton, Tenn., in 1925.

Dr. Straton's wife, who accompanied him here, was with him when he died. The body is being taken to New York tonight. Burial will be in the family plot in Warwick, N. Y.

Son Continuing Services.

Many messages of condolence on Dr. Straton's death were received yesterday at the present headquarters of the Calvary Baptist Church, 135 West Seventieth Street, where services are being held in Pythian Temple during the construction of the new skyscraper combination church and apartment building on the church site in West Fifty-seventh Street. Some of the messages were from distant parts of the country.

The Rev. Hillyer H. Straton, assistant pastor, who had come from Clifton Springs to hold services at the church last Sunday, returned yesterday morning on receipt of word of his father's death.

The regular prayer meeting service will be held at the church this evening at 7:30 o'clock and will be broadcast. Plans for Dr. Straton's funeral will be announced in this way.

Expressions of tribute to Dr. Straton and his life work and sympathy for his family came from leading clergymen of the Baptist denomination and officials of Calvary Church.

Paschal A. Carter, chairman of the board of trustees of Calvary Baptist Church, said he had known Dr. Straton intimately for about ten years and had long been associated with him in church work.

Calls His Work Constructive.

"Dr. Straton's work was constructive," he said. "His life was founded on the Bible, which he followed all the days of his life, from the beginning to the end. With Dr. Straton it was the whole Bible and nothing but the Bible. He stuck to it religiously and never deviated from it. Whatever he did was patterned in his conscientious belief in the Bible and biblical teachings."

The Rev. Dr. I. N. Haldeman, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Broadway and West 79th Street, said:

"I believe Dr. Straton to have been a man of sterling integrity, with genuine Christian spirit, and having confidence in the Bible as the inspired and infallible word of God.

"He was a man of great courage and ready to do and to dare what he believed to be for the glory of God and the exaltation of Christ. His motives were absolutely sincere, and, I believe, absolutely unselfish. I deeply regret his going and feel profound sympathy for his family."

The Rev. Dr. W. W. Brown, pastor of the Metropolitan Baptist Church, 151 West 128th Street, spoke of how deeply the congregation and he felt the loss of Dr. Straton.

"We feel deeply the loss of one," said Dr. Brown, "who has contributed so much to the congregation over which I have been pastor for fifteen years by preaching the gospel to us from our pulpit. The Baptist denomination and the church at large will feel the loss of so great a minister of righteousness. His family and his church have our deepest sympathy."

The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Riverside Baptist Church, expressed "profound regret" over Dr. Straton's death, and extended sincere sympathy to his family.

DREW THRONGS AS PREACHER.

Dr. Straton Also Had a Large Following on the Radio.

Since 1918, when the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, Fundamentalist, came to Calvary Baptist Church in West Fifty-seventh Street to replace the beloved founder of the church, the Rev. Dr. Robert Stuart MacArthur, New York has been conscious of a new voice that at one time or another has denounced divorce, nude art, society balls, evolution, atheism, political leaders and modernism.

He drew great crowds to his church to fill every sermon it was filled to overflowing, and his eloquence was also heard by a vast radio audience.

He was sometimes described as "a bandwagon preacher," and several years after he became pastor the storm which threatened the unity of Calvary Church began with the condemnation by many of the members of the "sensational" topics for sermons chosen by Dr. Straton, for the purpose, they said, of attracting church attendance.

In fact, Dr. MacArthur, under whose pastorate the structure at 123 West Fifty-seventh Street was built, and pastor for forty-one years, withdrew his membership in 1922 because Dr. Straton's sermons were so sensational that he did not wish to remain longer, he said, as pastor emeritus. The withdrawal of the venerable clergyman and his family caused much comment, not only in Calvary Church, but throughout Baptist circles.

Dr. Straton, however, continued to expound his views in his own way, and started crusades in the world of Broadway and issued pronunciamentos that brought him into national notice. His popularity and influence extended from coast to coast. To the dry, Fundamentalist elements in the nation he became the most impressive figure since the death of Bryan.

Dr. Straton was born in Evansville, Ind., on April 6, 1875, the son of Henry Dundas Douglas Straton, a Baptist preacher. His mother was the former Miss Julia Rebecca Carter of the Carter family of Virginia. He entered Mercer University in Georgia at 19 and after three years became Professor of Oratory and Interpretation of Literature at the university. Virtually all his schooling was in the South.

DR. JOHN ROACH STRATON,
Pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, Who Died Yesterday.

Was Ordained in 1900.

He was ordained a Baptist minister in 1900 while he was attending the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky. Afterward he studied at the University of Chicago and the Boston School of Oratory and Expression, and received his degree of Doctor of Divinity at Shurtleff College in 1906.

For two years he was a member of the faculty of Baylor University and then became pastor of the Second Baptist Church in Chicago. From that pastorate he went to the Seventh Immanuel Church in Baltimore, where he remained for five years. From 1918 to 1917 he was pastor of the First Baptist Church in Norfolk, Va., coming to Calvary Church in New York in 1918.

The secret of Dr. Straton's oratory seemed to lie in the years of study that he gave to the art. In his college days he was the winner of the intercollegiate oratorical championship of Georgia and of the Southern interstate oratorical championship. He was also an author, lecturer and syndicate writer. Some years ago he wrote an article on "Portland and the Northwest" that won a $1,000 prize, and later he received a $500 prize from the Anti-Saloon League for the best essay on "The Mental, Moral, Physical and Economic Cost of the Liquor Traffic."

His books began to appear shortly after he began his pastorate at Calvary Church. "The Menace of Immorality in Church and State" was published in 1920, and a year later "Church vs. State" and "Our Lapse Into Paganism." In 1925 he published the famous New York Fundamentalist-Modernist debates and "The Fakes and Fancies of the Evolutionists."

When Dr. Straton first attracted attention, he was preaching on the dance called the shimmy, on cabaret orgies, the Elwell murder mystery and a variety of other subjects including the ouija board. In 1920 he made a tour of the tenderloin dancing haunts and created a sensation by telling in his Easter sermon of whisky drinking, soliciting and vicious dancing in various resorts. One of the places he named was afterward raided by the police.

As a fundamentalist he debated with the Rev. Charles Francis Potter, modernist, then pastor of West Side Unitarian Church. Then he became engaged in the issue whether in the Baptist Church the rite of baptism by immersion shall be regarded as optional or compulsory.

Two years later—in 1926—Dr. Straton's conception of a skyscraper church on the site of the old structure began to take shape. A controversy arose in the church over the financing plan. As a result four former trustees resigned after bringing charges against the pastor, but in the end Dr. Straton won complete vindication in and out of court when his congregation voted unanimously, in executive session, to expel the four men from membership.

He Started "Healing Services."

A year later Dr. Straton started Sunday night "Holy Ghost healing services" at the church, which caused the resignation of a group of his members because of the alleged Holy Roller and Pentecostal characteristics of the services. About this time Uldine Utley, the 16-year-old evangelist whom Dr. Straton had first introduced to New York, was holding revival campaigns.

Then came Dr. Straton's sermon against Governor Smith as the Democratic candidate for the Presidency, during the national campaign of 1928. Governor Smith challenged Dr. Straton's statements and demanded an opportunity to make a full reply in Dr. Straton's church. Dr. Straton from his Summer home at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., accepted, but suggested that the debate be held in Madison Square Garden. A few days later Dr. Straton refused to debate with the Governor in Calvary Church on the ground that it would "cause distress to many minds and hearts both in Catholic and Protestant fields."

Hostilities between Dr. Straton and Charles L. Smith, president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, were carried to court last year when the atheist was convicted on the charge of sending annoying literature to Dr. Straton. Meanwhile, Dr. Straton was starting a crusade against evolution, which he held responsible for the sins of the younger generation.

Son Is Made His Assistant.

In April Dr. Straton and his wife left for the Wesley Memorial Hospital in Atlanta for a complete rest cure. A short time before Dr. Straton had suffered a slight stroke. Before they left for the South, their eldest son, the Rev. Hillyer Hawthorne Straton, was elected assistant pastor of Calvary.

Dr. Straton was still in the hospital when the last services were held in the church in May, prior to demolition to make way for the new skyscraper church and apartment house. In the interim the congregation has been worshiping in Pythian Temple.

Dr. Straton is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Georgia Hillyer of Atlanta, whom he married on Nov. 2, 1903; and four sons, the Rev. Hillyer Hawthorne Straton, John Charles, Warren Badenock and George Douglas Straton.

PRISONERS MOURN WARDEN H. K. SCOTT

Special Funeral Services Held in Their Chapel in Connecticut State Penitentiary.

INMATES BUY FLOWERS

Six of Them Carry the Coffin—Body Lies in State in Chapel Built With Prison Labor.

WETHERSFIELD, Conn., Oct. 29 (AP).—The 500 inmates of the Connecticut State prison, who once said to Warden Henry K. W. Scott, "You've got the heart and hand to play the game and play it on the square," paid their last respects to him at an extra funeral service in the prison chapel today.

Six inmates who had won the warden's special trust and confidence in the ten years of his quiet and popular administration carried his coffin into the chapel, where at other times they have worshipped or sat absorbed in a motion-picture or other form of entertainment.

During his long illness, when their only source of information concerning his condition was the "grapevine telegraph system" that runs through all prisons, the prisoners sent the warden flowers purchased with the proceeds of labor in the prison shirt factory. Today their thoughtfulness was again in evidence, for a blanket of violets and greens, toward which they had contributed, lay on the coffin.

In the nave of the chapel, which the warden built with prison labor, his body will lie in state until tomorrow morning, when it will be accompanied by the family to Lebanon, N. H., where he was born 63 years ago.

The prison chapel services were preceded by private services in the warden's house on the prison grounds, at which only members of the family and the officiating clergyman, the Rev. George A. Tuttle of Wethersfield Congregational Church, were present.

WOMAN SAID TO ADMIT KILLING WITH PENKNIFE

Declared She Stabbed Man at West Belmar to Protect Her Husband, Police Assert.

Special to The New York Times.

BELMAR, N. J., Oct. 29.—Mrs. Margaret Kugler, 38 years old, the mother of two children, of 24 Woodland Avenue, West Belmar, confessed today, according to the police, to the fatal stabbing of William Studman, 40 years old, of 119 Curtis Avenue, West Belmar, last night, saying she had killed him with her son's penknife to protect her husband.

Last night, according to the police version of Mrs. Kugler's story, her husband, George Kugler, was in the yard of their home when Studman stepped out of the darkness and hit him over the head with an axe handle. Mrs. Kugler, according to the police, formerly had been friendly with Studman, but for some time past had sought to avoid him.

After the encounter with Studman last night, Kugler went to the police station and demanded a warrant for Studman's arrest on a charge of assault. The police say Mrs. Studman told them that while her husband was gone, Studman entered her house and struck her, saying he intended to kill her husband. Then, she said, according to the police, she took a penknife from her 10-year-old son, Robert, and stabbed Studman. He died in the Ann May Hospital in Spring Lake.

Mrs. Kugler was held without bail this morning in the county jail at Freehold. Her husband was held as a material witness.

GUGGENHEIM AIR FUND GETS $500,000 MORE

OTHER GRANTS ANNOUNCED

Aeronautical Clubs Abroad Get Aid and Part of New Fund Will Go to Airship School.

OVER $4,000,000 SPENT

Although Fund Itself Will End Soon as Having Attained Its Purpose, Its Projects Will Continue.

The establishment of the first aeronautical engineering school in the South, the organization of what is likely to be the most complete aeronautical library in the world as a part of the Library of Congress, the establishment of the Airship Institute at Akron and gifts of thousands of dollars to aeronautical societies abroad and other educational institutions here were announced yesterday by Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics.

The additional grants were made possible by the gift to the fund of $500,000 by its founder, Daniel Guggenheim, and the plans for the use of the funds were made public by Harry F. Guggenheim, together with the formal announcement that the work of the fund was drawing to a close and that its existence would probably end within a few months.

The new gift brings the amount Daniel Guggenheim has donated to the fund since its establishment three years ago to $3,000,000. This amount, however, does not include by any means all the funds he has provided for the advancement of aeronautics, among which are $500,000 to establish the aeronautical school at New York University and another $500,000 for the development of the science in Chile.

Progress Greater Than Expected.

"Since the incorporation of the fund more than three years ago, the aeronautical developments in this country have surpassed even our visionary expectations," the fund's president said. "In our first annual report it was announced that the fund has no other purpose than to assist in making air transportation safe, popular and regularly available. When that purpose is accomplished, the fund, by the expressed wish of its founder, will terminate its existence.

"Certainly air transportation is regularly available, and its popularity is definitely assured. Also under the right conditions transportation by air can be as safe as transportation by rail, steamship or motor vehicle."

Hitherto, Mr. Guggenheim said, there have been two fundamental drawbacks to universal flying, one the lack of an aerodynamically safe plane, and the other the inability to fly safely through fog.

"In its safe aircraft competition, the fund has pointed the way to the development of the aerodynamically safe plane and the results of the competition at Mitchel Field in the next month will offer to the public a new realization of the inherent safety possible in flying. In its full flight laboratory the fund has demonstrated the principle of safe flying and landing in fog. Private capital, which is now available in almost unlimited amounts for aviation enterprise, will and properly should carry on these fundamental developments to their commercial application."

The gift to the city of Akron and the California Institute of Technology for establishing the Airship Institute at Akron amounts to $250,000. Under the supervision of the California Institute, where much research in aeronautics is now going on in the school founded by money from the fund, the Akron Institute will conduct research in lighter than air development.

$140,000 to Establish Library.

The fund has appropriated $140,000 for a chair at the Library of Congress for the organization of a complete aeronautical library.

Resources for the study of aeronautics not only as an art but as a science should be available at the national capital, the fund's statement said.

"The collection of aeronautica consists of about 1,200 titles and is clearly inadequate as a reference library for so important a subject."

In addition to these volumes, the Langley Memorial Library at the Smithsonian Institution, which has about 1,600 volumes and 700 pamphlets, a small collection now owned by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, another in the possession of the National Advisory Committee and a library of some 4,500 books that the Air Corps has, will be brought into the central aeronautical library under the endowment and other collections will be added.

The first aeronautical engineering school in the South will be established at a Southern university which has not yet been selected. The fund has already aided in establishing engineering schools in aeronautics at M. I. T., Stanford, California Institute and the Universities of Michigan and Washington, giving $1,200,000 in appropriations for this purpose.

The fund also announced the gift of $30,000 to Syracuse University to provide supplementary equipment for the aerial photographic surveying and mapping centre there, to which it already had contributed $30,000.

An appropriation of $35,000 was authorized for the continuation of the fund's committee on elementary and secondary education for another year. This work, which has been going on for a year, includes the preparation of secondary school textbooks, a course on the teaching of aeronautics and assistance in introducing aeronautics in the secondary school curriculum.

Final Grants to Foreign Groups.

Final grants of $10,000 each were made to the following four aeronautical societies of Europe: Royal Aeronautical Society, Aero Club de France, Associazone Italiana di Aerotecnica and Aero Club von Deutschland. This continues the policy of the fund in the last three years in aiding these societies to collect and disseminate important technical information that finds little room in existing publications.

The fund also authorized an appropriation of not more than $10,000 to the National Aeronautical Association to aid in the flying club program in the United States.

"I feel that with the completion of the above projects the fund will have carried out both the letter and the spirit of its trusteeship," Mr. Guggenheim said.

Although the fund itself will cease to exist, the schools it has established and other work it has initiated will go on. The weather service, established more than a year ago on the Pacific Coast and taken over by the Federal Government last July, has been continued. It was suspended for a time, but at the urging of airline operators and fliers it was reestablished and plans are now being made for further expansion.

Other activities sponsored by the fund include the holding in New York several months ago of the first National Safety Conference for Aeronautics and the organization of a town identification campaign by roof marking.

No mention has been made in the fund's report of one of its continuous and most arduous services. Throughout its existence its offices have been open to every one with a plan for the advancement of aeronautics. The trustees of the fund have interviewed day after day inventors and designers, sometimes reputable and sound engineers, but often cranks, with ideas to be financed or upon which they have sought advice.

Mr. Guggenheim did not mention these persons, numbering thousands over the three years, yesterday, but he admitted on questioning that this had been no small part of the work. No one has ever gone away from the fund's offices without a hearing.

The fund's president will depart shortly for Havana as the American Ambassador to Cuba. His entrance into the diplomatic service, however, does not mean that he will give up flying or his interest in aviation. He is likely to buy an amphibian type plane for his own use in Cuba.

LAVARRE SURRENDERS STOCK ON JAIL THREAT

Faced Contempt Charge in Case of Three Southern Papers—Main Issue Appealed.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 29 (AP).—Less than an hour after he had heard a threat of jail sentence for failure to comply with a Federal court order, William A. Lavarre, associate of Harold Hall in the purchase of four Georgia and South Carolina newspapers, signed a proxy this afternoon surrendering stock in three of the papers to J. T. Webb, court commissioner.

The proxy abruptly terminated a two-day hearing here before Federal Judge Deaver, and followed closely the court's statement that refusal to deliver the stock would mean a jail sentence. Surrender of the certificates was effected before the Federal clerk and marshal on the advice of Lavarre's counsel, I. F. Belzer, of South Carolina.

During the noon recess of the hearing to decide a side issue of the complicated Hall-Lavarre litigation Judge Deaver granted an appeal in the main case, which was brought to a close here Sept. 30, after a twenty-day hearing. The appeal was sought by attorneys for Lavarre on nineteen assignments of error. The case now goes to the Federal District Court of Appeals.

Lavarre was ordered by Judge Deaver to surrender the stock of three of the newspapers, purchased with money advanced by the International Paper & Power Company, on a petition for direction brought by Mr. Webb. The commissioner already has in his custody the stock certificate of the fourth paper, The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle, which has been operated by Hall.

The hearing concerned Lavarre's refusal to comply with the orders of the court on Sept. 30. Counsel for Hall termed Lavarre's refusal to comply as "the most flagrant contempt of this court which has ever been perpetrated in any court."

The South Carolina newspapers are The Columbia Record, The Spartanburg Herald and The Spartanburg Journal.

MANY STATES ACTIVE IN MATERNITY WORK

Federal Bureau Chronicles Widespread Service Among Foreign Born.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The energy with which the States are attacking the problems of maternity and infancy is shown in a report on the administration of the Federal law during 1928 issued today by the Children's Bureau. Practically every State has begun work with racial groups forming part of its population. New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Michigan, the report shows, have given special attention to the regulation of the midwives who attend foreign-born women. Nurses in these States also visited the homes of foreign-born mothers and give instruction.

Practically all States with large negro populations have made efforts to improve the hygiene and care of negro mothers and babies.

Several States have done special work with the Indians through cooperation with the Federal Indian Service. Minnesota, Nebraska and Oklahoma have conducted classes in infant care among Indian girls.

Canadian Couple, 103 and 93, Hold 74th Wedding Anniversary

PETERBORO, Ont., Oct. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Anderson, 103 and 93 years old, respectively, today celebrated the seventy-fourth anniversary of their wedding at Anderson's Island, on the Trent River. Six of their seven children spent the day with their parents along with numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Three of their children were drowned early in their married life.

Mr. Anderson has used tobacco for the greater part of his life, but has never drunk intoxicating liquor. He expressed his intention of voting tomorrow in the Ontario election.

Recalling the days of the stage coach, he said he usually scorned this mode of travel and walked twenty-two miles from Stirling to Belleville.

FIND TRAFFIC SPEED 14 MILES AT HIGHEST

Day & Zimmermann Report a Minimum of 6 Prevailed in Manhattan in May.

SAY IT IS LOWER IN WINTER

Better Paving and the Removal of Obstructions Urged for Relief—High Harlem Bridge Favored.

The congestion of vehicular traffic on the streets, avenues and bridges in Manhattan is emphasized in a summary contained in the Day & Zimmermann survey report, showing that fourteen miles an hour was the maximum average speed attained in tests made during May. The minimum rate observed was six miles an hour and the report indicated that even slower speeds exist in Winter.

The summary, in the language of the report, follows:

"Traffic speeds on Manhattan avenues ranged from nine to fourteen miles per hour for entire trips and from seven to thirteen miles per hour through the midtown section.

"Crosstown traffic moved at speeds ranging from six to ten miles per hour, the lower speeds occurring in the midtown section.

"Traffic between the Battery and Canal Street moved at speeds ranging from seven to eight miles per hour via Broadway and Lafayette Street, and from twelve to fourteen miles per hour via West Street or Varick Street.

"East River bridge traffic moved over the bridges and along the approach streets at speeds ranging from eleven to fourteen miles per hour.

"In considering the above speeds in relation to traffic conditions it must be kept in mind that the tests were limited in number and made during a period of the year in which traffic volume and congestion are not at their peak. It is believed that tests made during the Winter months would in many instances show lower speeds."

Better Paving Urged.

The report suggests that cumulative relief for traffic congestion throughout the city and especially in Manhattan be afforded by the wider adoption of a general policy of better street paving and the removal of such obstructions as car tracks, elevated and subway entrance structures and other obstacles wherever possible. Comment is made that this policy has been followed in midtown Manhattan with excellent results.

"The condition of the roadway paving is an important consideration from the viewpoint of vehicular traffic," the report declares, "and it is general experience that traffic will avoid as far as possible streets in which the paving is in por condition and tend to concentrate on the better paved streets. The improvement of the paving in a particular street will usually be quickly followed by an increased utilization. Improvements of this nature make for a better distribution of traffic and offer material possibilities of relief in many situations.

"The systematic and extensive clearing of sidewalk areas of obstructions, widening of roadways and adjustment of curbs at intersections which has been carried on in the midtown section of Manhattan is an example of accomplishment in the general improvement of traffic conditions. This has been particularly effective in respect to the crosstown streets. Another illustration is afforded by the widening of the roadway spaces in Park Avenue by reducing the width of the central park strips, thereby adding materially to the capacity and convenience of this important street.

"The removal of obstructions such as unused car tracks, subway entrances and similar obstructions from the roadways is another type of relief measure with considerable potentiality. The relocation of elevated entrance stairways and colvated entrance stairways and columns at critical points, particularly where street widenings are being made, offers relief of the same nature."

Favors High Harlem Bridge.

Approving in principle the city's plan to construct a new high bridge across the Harlem River to link the Tremont Avenue section of the Bronx with Washington Heights, Manhattan, the report urges that a high-level bridge be substituted for the low-level structure now contemplated, and that a change in proposed terminal locations be made.

"We suggest that a thorough study of this project be made and that consideration be given," the report says, "to the possibility of building a high-level bridge from a point at about Sedgwick Avenue between Tremont and Burnside Avenues in the Bronx to Fort George and Amsterdam Avenues at the northern end of Washington Heights in Manhattan. Such a bridge would provide a direct highway connection between Tremont, Burnside and Sedgwick Avenues in the Bronx with Amsterdam, Fort George and St. Nicholas Avenues on Washington Heights in Manhattan, not subject to interference by river traffic as would be the case in a low-level bridge, and would fit in with other facilities to be provided in other projects."

STOLEN CARVING RETURNED.

Cleveland Museum Restores Ivory Panel to Yugoslavia Through Envoy.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 29 (AP).—A little 10 by 12 inch panel of ivory that some medieval artist had carved in rich relief to depict the life, suffering and death of Christ, started back to Jugoslavia today after an international investigation occupying several weeks. Frederic Allen Whiting, director of the Cleveland Museum of Art, handed it to Leonidas Pitamic, Yugoslavian Minister of the United States.

The ivory had been reported stolen from the Cathedral of Agram or Zagreb. It was purchased from De Motte, Inc., of New York, in good faith, July, 1928, at a reported price of $10,000, the museum putting it on display and publishing a description of it. De Motte had also bought it in good faith.

Last month the Jugoslavian Minister received advices from his government that the panel had been stolen from the cathedral, although the theft had not been reported until the past Summer. An imitation of the carving had been put in its place. An investigation disclosed the passage of the carving through the hands of four dealers, but no trace was found of the peasant who first sold it.

200 American Dialects Recorded at Columbia; Dr. Greet 'Plays' Collection on Phonograph

International House at Riverside Drive and 119th Street echoed with laughter last night as Dr. W. Cabell Greet, Professor of English at Barnard College reproduced on the phonograph some 200 snatches of conversation recorded on the campus of Columbia University. Two hundred distinct American dialects were heard in the collection, and these, the professor explained, are only a small proportion of the American dialects heard daily on Morningside Heights.

Dr. Greet's records were part of a program arranged by the foreign students at Columbia as their contribution to the institution's 175th anniversary celebration. It was heard by more than 1,200 alumni and guests of the university.

In his explanatory address Dr. Greet advocated use of phonographs in teaching English to foreigners. He said that present methods are haphazard and ineffective.

Dr. Greet and S. L. Quimby of the Physics Department are recording the voices of the Columbia faculty members for a collection that is to be kept in the university museum. These records will form the nucleus for a permanent exhibit, to which additions will frequently be made.

At the entertainment last night the foreign students also staged a skit satirizing the university's practice of granting degrees and professorships to notables. William B. Shearer, big-navy propagandist, received in the skit the title of Professor of Thermodynamics, or hot air.

SHOOTS SISTER DEAD IN ROW OVER WIFE

Queens Man Also Charged With Seriously Injuring Daughter and Cousin Who Opposed Him.

IS DISARMED BY POLICEMAN

Patrolman Grapples With Enraged Husband as He Runs From House Brandishing Shotgun.

Robert Phillipe, 40 years old, 116-30 135th Avenue, South Ozone Park, Queens, killed his sister, Mrs. Marie Angelino, 45 years old, at her home, 130-10 135th Avenue, with a shotgun yesterday afternoon in a quarrel over family affairs, and seriously wounded his 10-year-old daughter, Josephine, and Mrs. Machaelina Chelilli, a cousin.

Phillipe was captured as he ran from the home of Mrs. Chelilli, 17 130th Place, a block from where a few minutes before he had killed his sister. The screams of Mrs. Chelilli brought Traffic Policeman William J. Connelly to the scene.

He chased Phillipe several blocks and arrested him after a struggle, during which he wrested from Phillipe the weapon with which the two women and the girl were shot.

Detectives who questioned Phillipe at the Richmond Hill station said that the prisoner, who had been held for the action of the grand jury a week ago on a charge of felonious assault brought by his wife, was enraged at his sister for taking his wife's part. They declared Phillipe with the shot gun went to his sister's home, berated her for abetting Mrs. Phillipe and then fired. He fired two shots, the first killing Mrs. Angelino, the other seriously injuring his daughter, who was cowering in a corner of the room.

Phillipe, the police said, then ran to the home of Mrs. Chelilli and as he raced through the door shouted, "I have killed my sister and daughter and I am going to kill you." He fired another shot wounding the woman in the face and neck.

The screams of the wounded woman and the shots brought a crowd to the Chelilli home.

Mrs. Chelilli, who is 35 years old, and is the owner of a small candy shop at the address where she lives, was placed in a Jamaica Hospital ambulance. To the surgeon she gasped that Phillipe had shot his wife and daughter and the ambulance then raced over to the Angelino home.

Mrs. Angelino was found dead on the floor. Near her was the 10-year-old girl unconscious from the loss of blood. Inspector John J. Gallagher and other detectives questioned several of Phillipe's neighbors. The detectives were told that Phillipe had quarreled constantly with his wife and that she was forced to leave him. It was said that she was with relatives somewhere in New Jersey.

The detectives were also told Phillipe resented the fact that his sister had taken Josephine to live with her. He was also incensed, it was said, at Mrs. Chelilli for approving the attitude taken by Mrs. Phillipe and Mrs. Angelino.

MME. CURIE AT WHITE HOUSE

Hoover Will Speak When Radium Is Presented to Her Tonight.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—President and Mrs. Hoover have as their guests at the White House, Mme. Marie Curie, and Mrs. William Brown Meloney of New York, who accompanied her to Washington.

When Mme. Curie arrived in Washington at 5:10 o'clock this afternoon, Colonel Campbell Hodges, the President's military aide, met her at the Union Station and escorted her to the White House.

Tomorrow night, Mme. Curie will be presented with a gram of radium at exercises at the American Academy of Sciences, at which the President will speak briefly. The gift from her American admirers is to be utilized, it is understood, in prosecuting Mme. Curie's researches in radio activity.

Mme. Curie is to leave Washington late tomorrow night.

SAY MORROW PLANS TO RESIGN IN A YEAR

Mexicans Hear He Hopes to Settle Land Claims and Then Quit as Ambassador.

AGRARIAN PROGRAM SCORED

Mexican Authority on Question Sees Disastrous Consequences Unless Policy Is Changed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 29.—Ambassador Morrow expects to end his labors here and resign as Ambassador within a year, it is said in authoritative quarters. Before he goes he hopes to have reached a solution of the American claims for land expropriations, one of the most difficult problems remaining in Mexican international relations.

The Ambassador is known to be urging that land owned by foreigners, especially Americans, should not be expropriated for communal purposes in the agrarian program except on a basis if not of cash payment, at any rate of the issuance of such security as would be quoted on any exchange reasonably near par and not, as at present, at less than 30 per cent of par.

In this connection, the whole land policy and agrarian program of Mexico was vigorously attacked in an interview today by Eduardo Pallares, an authority on the agrarian question. He quotes figures regarding expropriations which are accepted as accurate, arguing from them that unless drastic changes are made Mexico will suffer grave economic damage.

Señor Pallares says that the value of lands expropriated up to the end of 1927 is 388,000,000 pesos (about $194,000,000), and that the total value of lands necessary to fulfill the agrarian program amounts to 1,227,000,000 pesos (nearly $618,500,000).

Figures Through 1927.

Up to the end of 1927, however, says Señor Pallares, land expropriated from Mexicans amounted to 2,250,000 hectares (about 5,600,000 acres), while those expropriated from foreigners amounted to 450,000 hectares (about 1,125,000 acres), while indemnities decreed to foreigners up to that date amounted to nearly 5,500,000 pesos ($2,250,000).

Señor Pallares asserts that the number of Mexican agricultural laborers entitled to land grants under the present agrarian laws is more than 1,600,000.

Señor Pallares ridicules the proposal to give every Mexican entitled to it legally an agrarian grant worth more than 700 pesos without taking into account such indispensable factors as agricultural implements, animals, seed and capital to work the land.

Señor Pallares contrasts Mexico with Spain and Argentina on their land expropriation policies. In Spain, he says, owners of lands expropriated are duly compensated and in Argentina, where colonization laws have resulted in heavy expropriations, the government has issued bonds at 5 per cent interest, taking particular care to cover both interest and amortization. In Argentina, Señor Pallares asserts, these bonds are quoted at little below par value and therefore that country's agrarian procedure has not brought about any such lack of economic equilibrium as has been experienced in Mexico.

Expects Evil Results.

Summarizing the Mexican agrarian policy Señor Pallares says:

"Has Mexico the capital to finance the development of the lands expropriated? No, and the following disastrous consequences may be expected: First, the elimination from national production of the capital represented by the expropriated lands, which will not be worked for lack of equipment; second, a charge on the nation of 1,200,000,000 pesos ($600,000,000); third, a diminution of agricultural production, obliging the importation of foreign articles of prime necessity, thus aggravating Mexico's already deplorable situation of inferiority and dependency; fourth, an increase in the number of those without work and of Mexican emigrants; fifth, stimulation among Mexican workers of a desire to make theirs what does not belong to them; sixth and last, a profound last of moral and economic equilibrium.

RULING A SETBACK TO WARDER DEFENSE

Court Holds Superintendent of Banks Is Responsible for Examinations.

EXAMINER QUERIED ALL DAY

Testifies His Report After 1928 Inspection of City Trust Was "Alarming."

The Superintendent of Banks is primarily responsible under the law for the conduct of the examinations of banks, Justice Arthur S. Tompkins ruled yesterday at the trial of Frank H. Warder, former Superintendent of Banks, for accepting a $10,000 bribe to withhold an examination of the City Trust Company. James I. Cuff, defense counsel, who is fighting to clear Warder by placing the responsibility for the City Trust failure on subordinates, opened the door for this setback to the defense by his eagerness to hammer his point home.

He was examining Samuel Rauch, bank examiner, who was in charge o fthe 1927 and 1928 examinations of the City Trust and its predecessor the Harlem Bank of Commerce.

"Who was responsible for the conduct of these examinations?" he asked.

"The examiner," replied the witness.

"Then the superintendent was not responsible?" Cuff quickly shot back. The judge ruled out the question and prevented an answer, saying:

"The Superintendent of Banks is primarily responsible under the law for the conduct of examinations and I shall read the law to the jury when the proper time comes."

Mr. Cuff objected and took exception to the ruling. Changing his line of questioning he delved again into the maze of technicalities of bank examination and then turned the witness over for cross-examination.

Examiner on Stand All Day.

Rauch, pale and ill—he left a sick bed to testify—with the exception of a short interval when Louis Granat, official stenographer of the Moreland commission, was called to verify transcript, spent the entire day on the stand. He will be recalled again this morning.

While he was being battered and hammered at first by the defense and then by the prosecution in cross-examination his wife sat in one of the spectator's benches twisting at the string of beads around her neck or clasping and unclasping her hands.

Most of the questions directed at Rauch concerned the technicalities of the records, as first the defense and then the prosecution sought to accent from the same set of figures and the same set of facts a favorable interpretation.

Both Mr. Cuff and Ferdinand Pecora, Assistant District Attorney, cross-examining for the State, used the data in the bank examinations and Mr. Rauch's report.

Was there a large list of violations of the banking laws? Was there a large list of illegal loans amounting to more than half the capital and surplus of the bank? Was the report telling of these addressed to the Hon. Frank H. Warder, and was it for his specific information? were some of Mr. Pecora's questions answered affirmatively.

Did you report the institution solvent in 1927, and again in 1928; that was your sworn belief at that time? When you classified these loans as you did you thought they were good and would be paid? You took your information from Di Paola (Anthony Di Paola, treasurer of the bank)? Did Mr. Egbert (the chief examiner) ever comment to you or your examination of that bank? Are not 'excess loans" found in examinations of many banks? were some of Mr. Cuff's questions, also answered affirmatively.

Rauch, showing more fatigue as the tiresome day drew on and the lights began to glow in the court room, answered the questions in a clear voice with no apparent bias in favor of either side.

In Charge of Liquidation.

Mr. Pecora brought out that after the bank closed Rauch was in charge of liquidation and at a night session in the banking department on Feb. 13 made up a list of $903,000 in notes which Paola said were not genuine. He added other figures to the list until there was a total of more than $2,000,000 in uncollectable assets.

Mr. Pecora asked him if the bank had paid a dividend of $56,750 in 1928 although it was operating at a loss. Rauch said it had.

Mr. Cuff on redirect examination wanted to know if the notes in the $903,000 list of non-genuine assets had been in the bank at the time of the examination and were classified as "special mention" loans. He replied that some of them were. These are loans which the examiner advised be followed up at the next examination.

"You did report a solvent institution in 1928?" Mr. Cuff reiterated.

"Yes."

"That was your sworn belief at that time?"

"Yes."

"That report was made for the guidance of the superintendent?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever know the superintendent to examine a bank himself?"

"No."

Mr. Cuff inquired about the civil service classification of examiners and then said:

"As a matter of fact, the superintendent could not examine a bank?"

Justice Tompkins ordered this question stricken from the record despite Cuff's objections and cited the banking law that the superintendent "shall make or cause to be made" the semi-annual examinations.

Consulted Bank's Officers.

Mr. Rauch admitted, under questioning by Mr. Cuff, that he had consulted the bank's officers in regard to items in the examination. He said that was customary to accept information from officers.

"Then why make an examination?" interposed Justice Tompkins.

Mr. Rauch explained that this information was only for guidance of the examiner and was weighed in view of other information. Rauch admitted that notes were not verified or compared with the signature cards, that foreign exchange items were not checked abroad and that the examination in many details consisted of proving items by the simple process of addition to see if they correctly balanced, and that there was no examination of the genuineness of notes or appraisal of mortgages. It was assumed that the bank itself had verified these.

Mr. Cuff inquired if the fact that Francis X. Mancuso was chairman of the board and the knowledge that he was a judge carried any weight.

"Yes, it carried some weight," the witness replied.

Mr. Rauch had reported in his 1928 examination that directors' meetings were held irregularly, but he did not know, he said, until later of the "shocking laxity" which was disclosed.

Mr. Rauch told Mr. Pecora that if he had received such a report as he had made on the City Trust, "I'd be highly alarmed at such a report."

Mr. Cuff fought unsuccessfully to have this opinion excluded from the record.

Rauch was visibly relieved when Justice Tompkins adjourned court until this morning.

Mr. Cuff hopes to be able to complete his defense by tonight and the case may be in the hands of the jury by tomorrow night.

'Lemon Eaters' Bury Member Of Reich Sect of 'Bitter Lives'

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Oct. 29.—A strange German sect called the Lemon Eaters has just given an even stranger burial to one of its members who died at Zurich. There was no hearse and six men carried the coffin, decorated with lemons. At the head of the procession to the cemetery was a banner bearing the inscription that the lives of the members had been as bitter as a lemon.

After the coffin was lowered into the ground, the procession passed the grave, and into it everybody threw lemons from their pockets, nearly filling the grave with the fruit. There was no priest present, but one of the Lemon Eaters read a burial service and then planted the banner at the head of the grave.

GIRL IN SHIP KILLING PROVES A NEW YORKER

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 29 (AP).—The efforts of a young girl to shield her family from her shame failed today when "Iona Orde" stood revealed as Gloria R. Ouzer of Westchester, N. Y.

For weeks the girl paraded under a veil of secrecy rather than divulge her true identity. She became the jailed material witness in the Jack Kraft murder case and hoped to play the rôle of "Iona Orde" through to the end.

But a small gold medal with the name "Gloria" scratched with a pin on the back gave her away. It had been given to her by R. Taylor, a Westchester friend, who identified both the medal and the girl's picture. The medal bore this inscription: "St. Mark's Athletic Association. Won by R. Taylor. 1925. Spring Football, 1925 Junior Forward Pass, First."

Taylor told detectives that he gave her the medal while they were playing golf in 1925 on the links at St. Cloud, near Paris, where the girl and her mother were living in apparent affluence. Later, Taylor said, her mother died and the girl returned to the United States and he had never heard from her since.

Told in her cell of the identification, the girl cried:

"What business have you to dig into my history? Why do you wish to drag my family into this?"

In the same jail is John McGouldrick, second officer of the steamship Cheole, indicted for the murder of Jack Kraft, a former newspaper employe. At a preliminary hearing on Nov. 7 the State will attempt to show that McGouldrick shot Kraft in a fight over Gloria Ouzer and then hurled his body into the Mississippi River.

BUFFALO DIOCESE ELECTS DR. DAVIS

Chosen Bishop Coadjutor on the Fourth Ballot, He Is Expected to Head New Episcopal Division.

BUFFALO, Oct. 29 (AP).—The Rev. Dr. Cameron J. Davis, rector of Trinity Church of Buffalo, was elected Episcopal Bishop Coadjutor of Western New York this evening on the fourth ballot, over the Rev. Dr. Wyatt Brown of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Dr. Davis was within one-half vote of election on the third ballot of the closest election in the history of the diocese, having 51 clerical votes to Dr. Brown's 49, and 61½ lay votes to 39½ for Dr. Brown and 2 for the Rev. Dr. Henry F. Zwicker of Lockport. Dr. Zwicker then withdrew his name and Mr. Davis's election followed.

It is expected that the Bishop Coadjutator-elect will become Bishop of Western New York in two years, when division of the diocese will be completed. Bishop David Lincoln Ferris has indicated his intention of resigning the Bishopric of Western New York in order to accept that of a new diocese with Rochester as its see city in 1931, when the general convention is expected to approve the division. Under such circumstances, the Bishop Coadjutator automatically would succeed.

Dr. Davis was born in Watkins, N. Y., Dec. 13, 1878. He was graduated from De Veaux School, Niagara Falls, N. Y., in 1891 and from Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., in 1894. He was ordained deacon in 1897 and priest in 1898. He became curate of Trinity Church in 1897 and rector in 1901.

EACH ARRESTS THE OTHER.

Washington Policeman and Baltimore Dry Agent Clash on Bridge.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP).—Officer met officer on a bridge leading across the Potomac River last night, and they arrested each other.

Thomas Fogarty a park policeman, accused Louis J. Tutt, a prohibition agent attached to the Baltimore office, of driving forty miles an hour and booked him at a precinct station on charges of speeding.

That over, Fogarty was in turn taken into custody on charges of interfering with a Federal officer, the dry agent claiming that he was stopped.

Judge Garty now will let the judge decide his case with Tutt, who in turn will let a United States commissioner pass upon his case with Fogarty.

STATE INQUISITORS HIT AT RATE EXPERTS

Prendergast Admits That They Are Not Always Questioned on Reports.

"GOING VALUE" DISCUSSED

Public Service Chairman Tells How It Figures as Basis of Utility Charges.

APPRAISALS COST MILLIONS

Professor Bauer's Plan for Valuations Will Be Taken Up at Today's Session.

Testimony before the investigating commission appointed jointly by Governor Roosevelt and the Legislature indicated yesterday that the experts for the Public Service Commission who make property appraisals used in determining rates to be charged by public utilities are not always placed on the witness stand where their facts may be subject to examination and cross-examination.

William A. Prendergast, chairman of the Public Service Commission, admitted to Colonel William J. Donovan, counsel to the investigating commission that the experts should be placed under oath and subjected to questioning. Choice of placing the appraiser on the stand has been in the hands of the commissioner handling the case, said Mr. Prendergast, in explaining the present practice.

Professor James C. Bonbright of Columbia University, a member of the investigating commission, questioned Mr. Prendergast at some length on what action the Public Service Commission took when a municipality failed to prosecute a rate case adequately. In the course of their exchange the chairman said he knew of no example where a case has gone by default because the complainant had failed to furnish sufficient counter-evidence. He asked Professor Bonbright to mention some specific cases and the latter did not offer any.

Commissioners' Views Vary.

Mr. Prendergast maintained that the failure of cities to submit rebuttal valuations was probably due to the fact that the cities "know they haven't any argument."

"What is the basis of your feeling that a higher valuation should be given in an instance where your fellow members feel a lower valuation should be placed?" asked Professor Bonbright.

"I suppose it is the same basis as that which leads one man to eat beefsteak for breakfast and another oatmeal," replied the commissioner. "In consideration of business problems men take contrary views and disagree honestly."

"A casual reader with access to the records cannot tell if the differences are based on what is in the record," said Professor Bonbright.

"Isn't it a fact that you and Commissioner Van Namee lean in the direction of higher valuations than those of the majority of the commission members?"

"I am sure it is true, Professor," said Mr. Prendergast.

"Going Value" a Factor.

After considerable discussion the chairman said that "going value" of public utility corporations was considered as part of the assets in fixing valuation in some cases. At one time, he said, a table of going valuations showed that their percentage varied from 7 to 20 per cent. Professor Bonbright who was interested in determining whether there was a scientific method of determining "going value," obtained from Mr. Prendergast the statement that the percentage allocated to going value was determined by judgment only, by "a kind of inner feeling" which the witness asserted was really a crystallization of experiences and opinions of experts all over the country.

From the examination of Mr. Prendergast it also appeared that there was dissent among the members of the Public Service Commission as to how much weight to place on reproduction costs in fixing appraisals and rates.

Appraisals Costs Heavy.

Discussing the costs of appraisals Commissioner Prendergast said that the inventory and appraisal of the New York Telephone Company cost $5,000,000 and that $50,000 was appropriated and used by the commission in "spot-checking." The cost of the New York Edison Company's appraisal was upwards of $5,000,000 over a period of five years, he added.

A question by Colonel Donovan, concerning a possible method for establishing rates if the valuable water sites on the St. Lawrence should be leased to private power companies, was deferred at the suggestion of the witness and Senator John Knight who thought the question should wait until it was determined whether the committee has authority to make this inquiry.

The way was prepared yesterday for a discussion today of a plan of Dr. John Bauer for fixing a rate base. The plan was read into the record by Colonel Donovan and will be taken up today when the committee resumes its hearing at the Bar Association quarters.

OPPOSES RIO GRANDE PLAN.

Secretary Wilbur Tells Senate He Cannot Sanction Project.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP).—The Interior Department today disapproved the proposed Rio Grande River compact being considered by the Senate Irrigation Committee.

Secretary Wilbur notified the committee his department could not sanction it because the commission which formed the compact failed to apportion the Rio Grande waters among Colorado, New Mexico and Texas, the States party to the proposal.

The department also disapproved the compact because under its terms the Federal Government would have to pay any claims made by Mexico as a result of any agreement entered into by the three States.

SEARCH NOT UPHELD WITHOUT WARRANT

Interpretation of the Supreme Court's Refusal to Review Iowa Dry Case Incorrect.

NO OPINION WAS RENDERED

Denial of Petition for Writ of Review Does Not Necessarily Carry Endorsement of Lower Court.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Some confusion has been caused by variation in newspaper reports of the action of the United States Supreme Court on Oct. 21 in denying a petition for a writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of Iowa in a prohibition case in which the person involved sought to have the Iowa court's decision reviewed on the ground that it was in contravention of his rights under the Federal Constitution.

The claim was advanced by the petitioner that his house was entered without a search warrant for the purpose of getting evidence to show that he was violating the prohibition laws. It was admitted that such evidence was found, but the petitioner contended that without a search warrant law officers had no right to invade his premises.

In this case the Supreme Court did not render any opinion, but merely issued an order denying a petition for a writ to review the decision of the Supreme Court of Iowa. Washington dispatches to a number of newspapers, including THE NEW YORK TIMES, interpreted the Supreme Court's action as meaning that the court gave sanction to the course of prohibition officers in Iowa in searching a private home without authority of a search warrant.

It is now pointed out, however, that as the court did not render any opinion whatsoever in the matter, its action cannot be so construed. In other words, it is contended that the high court did not lay down any principle, but merely declined, for reasons not stated, to grant the petition for review.

Contention of Petitioner.

This case was docketed in the United States Supreme Court as that of A. C. Bamsey, petitioner, vs. State of Iowa. Among other things, Bamsey contended that the invasion of his premises without a search warrant was in violation of the Fourth Amendment of the Federal Constitution, which declares:

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated, and no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized."

The record shows that on Aug. 27, 1927, the grand jury of Union County, Iowa, returned an indictment against Bamsey, accusing him of illegally possessing intoxicating liquor on June 22, 1927, in violation of Section 1,924 of the 1924 Code of Iowa.

The accused was convicted by a jury in the trial court and sentenced to serve six months in jail and also to pay a fine of $1,000 and costs. Bamsey appealed to the Supreme Court of Iowa, the court of last resort in the State, which affirmed the judgment.

In the appeal to the State court and in briefs filed in the United States Supreme Court counsel for Bamsey emphasized that officers entered Bamsey's home, "stating to Mrs. Bamsey that they held a search warrant, which in fact they did not, and by force entered the dwelling," thus effecting the capture, as the officers contended, of three half-pint bottles "full of intoxicating liquor and a carton containing ten empty bottles."

Points at Issue in the Case.

The petition filed with the United States Supreme Court in behalf of Bamsey said in said:

"Petitioner was not at home when his premises were illegally entered and invaded by the police officers and there were no intoxicating liquors in his home at the time he left prior thereto.

"No search warrant was ever issued and no search warrant was ever served, or attempted to be served, regardless of the statement of the officers that they held one before the illegal invasion and search of petitioner's private dwelling."

The petition further said that the Iowa Supreme Court, on March 5, 1929, affirmed the decision of the District Court penalizing Bamsey by fine and imprisonment, "holding that the evidence obtained by the illegal search of petitioner's home without a search warrant was nevertheless admissible in prosecution for possessing intoxicating liquors, upon an indictment based on State law, and holding that the Federal rule was inapplicable."

The State Supreme Court further held that the petitioner's rights under various provisions of the Federal Constitution had not been violated.

The brief of the State of Iowa, opposing issuance of the writ in Bamsey's behalf, said:

"There can be no question but that the settled rule in Iowa is that: 'If the evidence offered is pertinent and material, the fact that it may have been secured by search and seizure, unsupported by a valid search warrant, is not a sustainable objection to the introduction of such evidence.'"

The State's brief further said:

"This court [Supreme Court of the United States] can have nothing to do whatever with the interpretation and application of these provisions of law, because no Federal constitutional question is involved." * * *

Practice in Declining to Review.

Here is the order that was read by Chief Justice Taft in this case on Oct. 21:

"No. 404, Bamsey, petitioner, v. State of Iowa. Petition for writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of Iowa denied."

That is all the Supreme Court said about the case. In newspaper reports carrying news of the order, including one printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Oct. 22, the court's action was interpreted as an affirmative approval of the decision below.

The newspaper interpretation that the Supreme Court of the United States placed its approval on the Iowa Supreme Court's decision by refusing to review the case of Bamsey is held by some lawyers here as not the correct view of the court's action, although it may have so seemed to the lay mind. Other lawyers take the position that an order by the high court permitting a decision below to stand is an approval of what has happened below.

In denying writs for certiorari or other forms of appeal for review of cases the court never gives its reasons for denying or granting such appeals. In a denial to review it is taken for granted that the court, in chambers, has held that there is no Federal question involved, or for some other reason or reasons does not believe that under the law it has jurisdiction or should assume jurisdiction.

In the Bamsey case, as in all other cases of the kind, where the court refuses to review the decision below stands, but it is pointed out that in this case the United States Supreme Court rendered no opinion and therefore its action cannot properly be construed as passing on the constitutional issues raised on the merits of the Bamsey case.

AIDS CANCER RESEARCH.

Chemical Foundation Gives Nearly $5,000 a Year to Johns Hopkins.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 29.—The Chemical Foundation has given nearly $5,000 a year for research in the study of cancer at Johns Hopkins University Medical School and Hospital. Work will begin at once in the cytological laboratory of Dr. Warren Lewis in the Carnegie Foundation Building at the hospital.

Dr. and Mrs. Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. George Gey will take charge of the cultivation of the cancer cell, a problem upon which Mr. Gey has been working for four years.

A year ago Francis P. Garvan, head of the Chemical Foundation, offered $10,000 for a laboratory and $10,000 a year for research in the study of cancer at Johns Hopkins. The laboratory has been completed and work is being done there by Dr. Charles Geschickter to find the differential stain for the cancer cell.

Investigators also have begun work in the Hunterion Laboratory to find an effective intravenous treatment of cancer, under the direction of Dr. F. D. Lee.

Friends and patients of Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood have contributed almost $15,000 for work in the surgical pathological laboratory.

His condition was reported by Dr. B. B. Ross of the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists, in explaining his absence from their meeting here today, the first in forty-five years which Dr. Wiley has failed to attend. As honorary president, Dr. Wiley was to have delivered an address. He is attended by Dr. Sterling Ruffin, and day and night nurses are assisting Mrs. Wiley in caring for him.

RAILROADS ARGUE COSTS.

Plead Higher Expenses in This State as Rate Rise Reason.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 29.—At the second day's session of the freight rate hearing before the Public Service Commission today George F. Bassett of New York, assistant to the controller of the New York Central Railroad, argued that the railroads should have increased freight rates because it cost more to operate them in this State than in adjacent States and because taxes were higher. He cited items and submitted exhibits.

A. F. Coon, engineering assistant to the president of the New York Central, gave similar testimony.

The carriers, who are seeking an increase of about 20 per cent in class freight rates, are expected to complete their side tomorrow. The shippers will be heard on Thursday and Friday.

"THE NEW YORK TIMES, which possesses undoubtedly the finest rotogravure newspaper plant in the world, has for many years led the way with the quality of its weekly supplements."

TAP CAPITAL WIRES; GET INDICTMENTS

Federal Agents Accuse Five of Buying Liquor From Atlantic Highlands Ring.

EIGHT PURCHASES ALLEGED

Fifty Cases of Champagne Were Included in "Orders" Dry Forces Heard Telephoned.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The first indictment in the District of Columbia based on "wire-tapping" by dry agents was reported today by the Federal grand jury in the form of a conspiracy charge to violate the tariff act by importing liquor without payment of customs duties. Those accused are Michael Tilton, Julia Tilton, William W. Keeler, Walter Keener and David Taven. The liquor is alleged to have come "off the boat" from a schooner in the Atlantic.

The indictment resulted from telephone conversations on which government operatives "listened in" and alleges that the defendants conspired to "feloniously, knowingly and fraudulently import and bring into the United States certain merchandise contrary to law, to wit, whisky, champagne, wine, gin and beer," on which no duty had been paid.

The alleged conspiracy is said to have dated back to Jan. 1, and eight overt acts are alleged against the accused, as follows:

On Jan. 21, Michael Tilton is said to have telephoned from Washington to Atlantic Highlands, N. J., and to have arranged with Keener for the purchase of fifty cases of champagne.

On the following day Julia Tilton is alleged to have telephoned from Atlantic Highlands to Michael Tilton and to have stated she had purchased from Keener sixteen cases of Scotch whiskey and five cases of claret.

Jan. 24 Julia and William W. Keeler are alleged to have traveled from Washington to Atlantic Highlands for the purpose of bringing intoxicants into the District of Columbia.

On the next day Keeler is said to have telephoned from Hyattsville, Md., to Michael Tilton in Washington, that he had procured certain quantities of intoxicants which Tilton is alleged to have directed him to take to the home of David Taven.

On the same date David Taven is alleged to have telephoned to Frances Taven and to have advised her to prepare to receive certain intoxicants from Keeler.

On Jan. 26 Michael Tilton is alleged to have telephoned to Julia Tilton and directed her to telephone Keeler and procure for him seven cases of champagne.

On the same day Julia Tilton is said to have telephoned from Washington to Keeler at Atlantic Highlands and to have arranged to purchase seven cases of champagne.

It is charged that two days later Julia Tilton and Keeler transported seventy-two bottles of champagne from Atlantic Highlands to Baltimore.

Five Subpoenaed Here.

Robert B. Watts, head of Federal Attorney Tuttle's prohibition bureau, subpoenaed five persons yesterday in connection with his investigation of the interstate liquor ring believed to have operated in New York as well as along the New Jersey coast. This is the ring said to have had machine guns and a wireless station at Atlantic Highlands from which to signal its rum-running vessels.

Mr. Watts refused to make public the names of those subpoenaed. He said he was investigating in cooperation with the New Jersey authorities and that any information concerning the ring's activities in New Jersey would be turned over to them. He expects the five persons subpoenaed to go before the grand jury today.

SCHOOL LEASE SUIT HEARD.

Injunction Asked to Stop Use of Parochial Quarters by City.

Supreme Court Justice Ingraham heard argument and reserved decision yesterday on the application by Franklin Ford for an injunction restraining the city from leasing rooms in Roman Catholic parochial schools and churches for public school uses. Decision was also reserved on a motion by the city to dismiss the case on the ground that no cause of action was stated. The plaintiff is suing as a taxpayer. He alleges waste of public funds on the ground that the payment of public money to a church for school rooms is a violation of the State education law and of the State and Federal Constitutions.

Assistant Corporation Counsel William E. C. Mayer, represented the city.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Tests conducted by the War Department with nine types of foreign and American semi-automatic rifles have led to the elimination of all but two, the Garand and Pedersen, both of American make, for further tests to determine which one shall be adopted as standard for the army.

The tests were begun on July 1 by a board headed by Brig. Gen. George S. Simonds, Assistant Chief of Staff. Under its report, which was approved today by Secretary Good, twenty Garand rifles of calibre .276 will be manufactured by the infantry and cavalry boards for comparison with the Pedersen rifle of similar calibre, numbers of which have previously been made.

RUMANIAN QUEEN IS 54.

Premier Avoids Clash by Sending Ministers to Congratulate Her.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 29.—Queen Marie celebrated her fifty-fourth birthday today at her Summer castle at Balcic, with Princess Hohenlohe.

It was much remarked that Premier Maniu did not go himself to congratulate Queen Marie but sent Ministers Madgearu and Raducanu to represent him, while he attended the military manoeuvres. These Ministers were not in Rumania during the recent election of a new member of the Regency Council, over which Queen Marie was much aroused.

To avoid every possibility of contact with Premier Maniu's Government, her dislike of which is now publicly evident, the Queen intends to spend the Winter at Balcic.

DOG WHO KNEW WORDS DIES AT NEWTON, MASS.

Pined When Left by Master for Four Weeks—Came Through Test at Columbia in 1927.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 29.—Fellows, the nationally known German shepherd dog and the only one in the world to recognize 500 words without the aid of gesture, is dead. He died from a broken heart, caused by the four-weeks' absence of his master, Jacob Herbert, of West Newton.

Mr. Herbert, a photographer, was called away on business and left Fellows with a friend in New York. When he returned to New York, accompanied by a friend, to bring the dog home, he found Fellows in a very bad condition and learned he had eaten little or nothing during his master's absence and had developed a kidney ailment.

The gratification of again seeing his master proved insufficient to aid the sick dog to recuperate. He was brought back to his West Newton home and died here last night.

The animal was 6 years and 8 months old. Mr. Herbert started to experiment with the dog when it was a pup to prove that it could be taught to understand many words from their sound.

Fellows was examined in 1927 by the animal psychologist at Columbia University, who pronounced the dog one of the most intelligent in the world, and the only known dog with the power of concentration. The animal was the subject of articles in newspapers and magazines at home and abroad.

Mr. Herbert will have it stuffed and hopes it will be placed in the American Museum of Natural History at New York.

HARVARD 'LIQUOR ADS' JOKES

Federal Official Solves Mystery in Student Publications.

BOSTON, Oct. 29 (AP).—Elihu D. Stone, Assistant United States Attorney in charge of liquor cases in the Federal Court here, said tonight that no prosecutions would result from the publishing of alleged bootleggers' advertisements in The Harvard Crimson and The Lampoon, student publications at Harvard University. He said that no reference to liquor was contained in the advertisements and therefore there were no grounds for prosecution.

The official expressed the belief that the advertisements might have been printed as a jest but added that "advertisements like this do not tend to elevate American youth."

The attention of the Federal authorities was directed toward the appearance in the last issues of the publications of advertisements which puzzled many readers. One of the advertisements in The Lampoon read:

"When an examination is over do you feel at a loss? Do you mix freely with your fellow man (homo sapiens), and, if so, what do you mix with him? Well, we can give you one good answer. When you know it, you can easily spend $10 to $15 right at home and never miss it."

Another was: "Try the loan and mortgage game; fund for your friends; stocks now in liquidation." A name and telephone number were placed at the bottom of the page.

A quarter page of The Crimson carried another "stocks and bond" advertisement with telephone numbers corresponding to those in The Lampoon.

Matthew Luce, Regent of the University, said he was astonished at the appearance but said he did not know what action would be taken by the college authorities.

FOR NEW ART INSTITUTE.

Blumenthal Finds Creation of Industrial Objects Haphazard.

Formation of an institution to act as coordinating factor between industries manufacturing industrial art objects and the creative artists themselves was advocated yesterday by Sidney Blumenthal, president of Sidney Blumenthal & Co., at a luncheon at the Hotel Vanderbilt, attended by department store owners and executives.

"The manufacturer today who brings out an article which has in it an art element," said Mr. Blumenthal, "must work haphazardly and without much knowledge as to whether his particular product fits into any broad scheme of decoration or even as to whether it is of the greatest possible utility in connection with other articles in the same line. The artist, on the other hand, frequently works in the dark unaware of whether his ideas are fully adapted to style trends, to the materials in which they must be carried out, and to the wishes of the buying public."

Mr. Blumenthal said the artists and art industries should jointly consider broad style and artistic trends and arrange for regular exchange of information.

TWENTY QUESTIONED ON APARTMENT FIRE

Examination of Witnesses to Suspicious Blaze in 183d St. Fails to Reveal Clues.

A JOBSEEKER IS HUNTED

Another, Who Failed to Get Work, Is Cleared — Brophy Denies Explosives Were Found.

The questioning of twenty witnesses, who were near the premises when a partly completed apartment house at Amsterdam Avenue and 183d Street was swept by a suspicious fire which took one life on Monday afternoon, failed yesterday to unearth either a motive or a suspect.

Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy, who is conducting the investigation, said that he was firmly convinced that the blaze was of suspicious origin, but that the laborer who had applied for work shortly before the fire broke out had been found and had satisfied the authorities of his innocence.

A second man, whose identity is yet unknown, and who applied for work on the same day, is being sought by fire marshals and a special squad of detectives, Mr. Brophy added. The damage caused by the fire, according to his latest estimate, does not exceed $75,000. The building's four walls and internal skeleton are still intact.

Replying to reports that traces of explosives had been found in the charred wreckage on the second floor where the fire started, Mr. Brophy said that there was not even the odor of burnt powder or chemicals present. He also denied having conferred with representatives of the National Board of Fire Underwriters concerning the advisability of requiring barricades and armed guards on all buildings under construction.

Detroit Police Say Family of Publisher Asked Their Aid.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Oct. 29.—William E. Scripps, publisher of The Detroit News, has been missing from his home in the Detroit Towers, an apartment house, since Friday, police said today. High officials admitted the report of Mr. Scripps's disappearance had been in their hands several days and that they were seeking him. Members of the family reported the disappearance, the police said.

They said they worked at first on the theory that the publisher had been kidnapped and was being held for ransom but added that they had dropped that theory. They thought it possible, they said, that Mr. Scripps had merely left the city on a business trip and had neglected to notify his family or business associates. However, they are continuing to seek him.

The police denied that they put any credence in rumors of Mr. Scripps's death, and said his wife was equally sure he was alive, although she did not know what had become of him.

Mr. Scripps is the son of the founder of The Detroit Evening News. Only a few months ago he became president of the company which publishes the paper, one of the most profitable newspaper enterprises in the country.

GAY OLD MUSIC HEARD IN TOWN HALL

Nathan Ensemble Concertante Begins a Season of Rarely Heard Foreign Works.

Old music, immortally young, fresh and gay, found new hearers at the Town Hall last evening, when the Nathan Ensemble Concertante, assisted by Maud von Steuben, soprano, entered on a season of rarely heard chamber music from the works of composers of more spacious days. Old English, French, Italian and Germans were represented in all combinations of from three to ten strings.

In this swift combing of the centuries it would have cleared the program's confusion of pretty mosaics of melody if the performers had paused, for instance, to show where Byrd's Autumn song of the period of the Mayflower and Purcell's scenes from "King Arthur" ended, and where French Couperin's "Apotheose de Lulli" and Rameau's brilliant "Concerts en Sextuor" began.

Leonardo Leo's concerto for four violins, Marcello's adagio and allegro for three 'cellos and a "Don Quichotte" of quaint episodes by Telemann prefaced the last major classics. These included Handel's sonata for two violins and piano and a final requested excerpt from the third Brandenburg concerto of Bach.

Ten players of the ensemble, which has gained experience and recruits from former seasons, were Morris and Eva Nathan and Leopold Busch, violins; René Pollain, Samuel Lipschetz and Rudolph Heinze, violas; Abrascha Bass, Otto Van Koppenhagen and Max Froelich, 'cellos, and Morris Tivin, contrabass. Harold Genthe accompanied Miss von Steuben's late group of songs and Samuel Jospe assisted the ensemble.

TWO MORE PLAYS COMING.

"Cross Roads" and "Thunder in Air" in Nov. 11 Week Premieres.

Two more Broadway openings for the week of Nov. 11, "Cross Roads" and "Thunder in the Air," were learned of last night. "Cross Roads" will succeed "Scarlet Pages" at the Morosco on Monday night, the 11th, while the latter play will come to the Bijou Theatre later in the week. "Scarlet Pages" will begin a road tour at the Shubert-Riviera Theatre on Nov. 11.

"Cross Roads," a play by Martin Flavin, was previously called "Grist to the Mill." It will be presented in Atlantic City next week by a cast including Sylvia Sidney, Eric Dressler, Irene Purcell, Mary Morris and Malcolm Duncan. Mr. Flavin is currently represented by "The Criminal Code." Another play of his authorship, "Broken Dishes," will open at the Ritz Theatre on Tuesday night.

"Thunder in the Air" is the work of Robins Millar, an editor of the Glasgow Evening News, who recently came over to see preliminary performances. The play was first announced for production here by David Belasco, who acquired it during its successful London engagement. Its present sponsors are Lee Shubert and Laura D. Wilck. Among the players are J. Fischer White, Cecilia Loftus, Master Freddie Stange, Robert Haslam, Selena Royle, Leonard Willey, Jeanette Sherwin and Wilfred Seagram.

A premiere already announced for Monday night, Nov. 11, is "Other Men's Wives," which will be presented at the Times Square Theatre. Other probabilities for that week include "Playboy," "The Silver Swan," "Seven Year Love," "Veneer" and "Queen Bee."

ELLY NEY GIVES RECITAL.

Pianist Impresses Audience With Lyric Freshness of Her Playing.

Elly Ney, in her first piano recital of the season last night in Carnegie Hall, impressed a large audience with the deep sincerity and lyric freshness and charm of her playing of an unusually well-arranged and interesting program, despite the familiar classics of which it was composed. These included seven preludes by Chopin from Opus 28: three études, a mazurka and the A flat Polonaise; Beethoven's Sonata Pathétique, Schumann's "Scenes from Childhood," Debussy's "Feux d'Artifice" and Liszt's "Mephisto Waltz." "Benediction of God in the Solitude" and Fantasy on Hungarian Themes.

Mme. Ney can on occasion mold her interpretations in heroic lines, though last night she accented the lyric and contemplative note with frequent flashes of dramatic intensity which invested her playing with infinite variety and interest. Her tone, even in the most brilliant pages of the showpieces on her list, was never forced, and she displayed her power to hold the attention of her audience. Despite the length of the printed program, Mme. Ney generously added several encores in response to the enthusiastic plaudits of her hearers.

To Give Concert at Hunter Tonight.

The Quartet Ensemble of New York will be featured on the program of the Lewisohn free concert at Hunter College this evening. Maurice Kaufman plays first violin, with Benjamin Levin at second violin, Giovanni Imperato at the viola and Russel Klingman at the 'cello. The Mendelssohn Quartet in D major, opus 44, and the Grieg Quartet in G minor will constitute the program for the evening.

Claire Luce Convalescing at Home.

Claire Luce, who was compelled to withdraw from the cast of "Scarlet Pages" last week because of illness, is now convalescing at her home, 77 Park Avenue. She was discharged from St. Luke's Hospital yesterday morning, where she had been a patient since Tuesday of last week. Her rôle at the Morosco is now being played by Kathryn March, who entered the cast last night, succeeding Elizabeth Council.

110 YOUTHS GIVE ORCHESTRA CONCERT

Society Founded by Mrs. E. H. Harriman Earns Ovation as Ninth Season Opens.

WELL-BALANCED PROGRAM

Tchaikovsky's Dramatic Fantasy, "Romeo and Juliet," One of the Features.

The American Orchestral Society, established by Mrs. E. H. Harriman for training young musicians in actual performance of the great masters, began its ninth season yesterday afternoon before an audience that filled Carnegie Hall's floor and boxes. Among 110 players who crowded the stage, aside from professionals engaged for special instruments, it was officially said that 85 per cent had never played in an orchestra up to three weeks ago.

Chalmers Clifton, the conductor, returning after a sabbatical year's study, gave his newcomers a full measure of professional tasks in Tchaikovsky's dramatic fantasy "Romeo and Juliet" and De Falla's "Nights in the Gardens of Spain," the latter with Bruce Simonds assisting at the piano. A well-balanced program opened with Haydn's ninth symphony in C minor and closed with Wagner's noble prelude to "Meistersinger."

For the precision and sonority of their performance of Tchaikovsky the youthful orchestra earned a friendly ovation from a house sincerely moved by this impassioned music. They won their spurs again in the more exotic tone-colorings of De Falla's translucent score, to which Mr. Simonds's lucid, alert and outstanding performance also contributed. Both the leader and soloist received repeated recalls.

METROPOLITAN OPERA VISITS TWO CITIES

Close upon its Broadway première, the Metropolitan Opera Company began weekly visits afield last night in two cities, presenting "Andrea Chenier," with Leonora Corona and Lauri-Volpi, here at the Brooklyn Academy and "La Campana Sommersa," with Rethberg and Martinelli at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia.

These outside performances increase the opening week's operas to eight different bills, while eight more are announced for a second busy week, or sixteen distinct productions in a fortnight. The "opera concerts" also will start next Sunday, with a program presenting Mmes. Aves, Claussen, Guilford and Telva and Messrs. Tokatyan, Tedesco, Tibbett and Rothier.

Strauss's "Rosenkavalier" opens the second week next Monday with a cast headed by Jeritza, Stueckgold, Fleischer and Mayr. Following this are "L'Africana" next Wednesday, with Ponselle, Gigli, Basiola and Pinsa, and on Thursday "La Juive," sung by Rakowska, Mario, Martinelli and Rothier.

Massenet's French "Manon" will be a special Friday matinee, Nov. 8, with Bori, Gigli, De Luca and Rothier; Friday night "Tosca," Jeritza, Lauri-Volpi and Scotti; Saturday matinee "Walküre," Rethberg, Claussen, Matzenauer, Kirchhoff and Whitehill, and Saturday night, "Traviata," with Mario, Tokatyan and De Luca.

Fox Company Leases Two Houses in Niagara Falls for 21 Years.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 29 (AP).—Acquisition of the Strand and Cataract Theatres, the two leading vaudeville and motion-picture houses of the city, by the Fox Theatres Corporation was announced today by A. C. Hayman, president of the Cataract Theatre Corporation, which owns the theatres. Mr. Hayman said the Fox company had acquired the theatres on a twenty-one-year lease at a total rental of $3,000,000. The Fox interests will take possession on Monday.

The theatres will be operated as at present until May 1, when work of razing the Cataract Theatre will be started. A new vaudeville and motion-picture house with a seating capacity of 3,500 will be erected on the site at a cost of $350,000, Mr. Hayman said.

Courtland Smith, manager of the Fox interests in the East, last night confirmed the leasing of the Strand and Cataract Theatres in Niagara Falls. He was silent on the disposition of or changes to be made in them.

Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. James Roosevelt and Governor and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt are among the patrons and patronesses.

Tickets may be obtained from Miss Fanshawe, 685 Madison Avenue.

E. H. Sothern to Aid Actors' Fund.

E. H. Sothern, presenting selections from "Othello" and other Shakespearian plays, will appear at the Lyceum Theatre on Nov. 11, in the interest of the Actors' Fund. Mr. Sothern will be presented by Daniel Frohman, under whose management he opened the Lyceum Theatre in 1903 in "The Proud Prince."

"JOURNEY'S END" TOURS.

Fifth of the American Companies to Open in Hartford Tomorrow.

The fifth of the American "Journey's End" companies will open tomorrow night in Hartford with Richard Bird, who has been transferred from the Chicago company, in the part of Stanhope. Other players are Henry Stephenson, Norman Pierce, Frederick Catling, G. P. Huntley Jr., and George Thorpe.

The company will begin an eight weeks' engagement on Monday at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, after which it will tour the larger Eastern cities. Besides the organizations at Henry Miller's Theatre here and the Adelphi Theatre Chicago, there are Pacific Coast and Southern companies now presenting the R. C. Sherriff war play.

TO SELL JOURNEY'S END Ms.

London League of Nations Union Gets Manuscript From Sherriff.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The manuscript of the play "Journey's End" has been presented by the author, R. C. Sherriff, to the League of Nations Union for an auction at the Guildhall on the occasion of the union's tenth anniversary dinner on Nov. 14.

It consists of about 400 odd-sized pages, some in pencil and others typed, with bewildering corrections in handwriting which would tax a veteran printer.

"If the manuscript is puzzling it at least contains every word written in the preparation of the finished play," said Mr. Sherriff tonight.

'ROBIN HOOD' FOR JOLSON'S

De Koven-Smith Operetta to Be Presented on Nov. 18.

The company producing a series of musical comedy revivals at Jolson's Theatre will deviate from its policy of presenting Victor Herbert's works on Nov. 18, when it will offer the De Koven-Smith operetta, "Robin Hood." This production will follow "The Fortune Teller," which will begin a two weeks' engagement on Monday, and will, in turn, be followed by "Babes in Toyland."

Newman Travel Talks Start Nov. 17

E. M. Newman has announced his annual travel talks at Carnegie Hall on Sunday evenings, starting Nov. 17. He will present motion pictures and color views, in part following President Hoover's tour of American republics, and finishing with Central Europe, which the lecturer has also revisited since last year. Five consecutive Sundays will be devoted to Argentina, Brazil and the circuit of South America, then the Rhine, Vienna and Budapest.

To Give Strindberg's "Pelican."

The MacDougal Street Playhouse, formerly occupied by the Provincetown group, will open on Nov. 11 with Strindberg's "The Pelican." The production will mark the play's first performance on the English stage, it is said. Under the direction of William D. Blake, "The Pelican" has gone into rehearsal with a cast including Barbara Benedict, Madelaine Ray, Anthony Grey and David De Sisto.

Golden to Show 'Salt Water' Nov. 26

John Golden's first production of the season, "Salt Water," a play by Dan Jarrett, will open at Mr. Golden's Theatre on Tuesday, Nov. 26. Frank Craven will head a cast which will include Edythe Elliott, Patricia O'Hearn, Una Merkle, Claude Cooper, Robert Burton, William Edmunds and James C. Lane.

"Weed-end," the attraction now at the Golden, will end its engagement after tomorrow night's performance.

To Name German Rhodes Scholars.

A. HAMMERSTEIN SAYS TALKIES WIN

On Way to Hollywood Producer Elaborates on His Reasons for Going Over to Rival Field.

HE CITES RISING COSTS HERE

He Admits for First Time Audible Film Has Done "Terrific Damage to the Stage."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—After twenty years as a musical comedy producer, Arthur Hammerstein admitted publicly for the first time here today that talking pictures have badly affected the legitimate stage.

"I'm going to Hollywood while the going is good, taking my money where the public is willing to pay," said the producer on his arrival here today.

"First I'm spending six months out there on a musical comedy, 'Bride 66,' and then I'm returning next year to Hollywood to put the first grand opera into the talkies. The talking pictures have done terrific damage to the stage."

His first talkie will mark the return to the movies of Dorothy Dalton, Mr. Hammerstein's wife. She left the pictures five years ago after their marriage here.

"Human flesh is different from the screen, I admit," Mr. Hammerstein continued. "But who can pay for flesh today? I'm going on producing musical comedies as long as I live. I put $300,000 in every musical comedy and take a chance on losing. Put it in a movie and you can't lose.

"Box office prices for a legitimate show are too high. Scalpers then double the regular prices. Wages for stage hands and musicians have gone up 500 to 1,000 per cent in the last ten years. It makes prices higher than in the talkies. And in the pictures you can get scenery and locale that cannot be shown on the stage."

BRINGING TALKIE NEGATIVE.

Arthur Hornblow Jr. to Deliver "Condemned" Here Today.

The master negative for "Condemned," the talking picture with Ronald Colman, which is to be shown at the Selwyn Theatre on Sunday evening, is being brought to New York by Arthur Hornblow Jr., production executive for Samuel Goldwyn, who will arrive from Hollywood today with the reels that were the first to be taken from the vaults of the Consolidated Film Laboratories in Hollywood after the fire last week.

Although his most important film was saved, Mr. Goldwyn said that 180,000 feet of uncut silent footage on "Condemned," prepared for foreign use, was entirely destroyed, together with the master negative of "The Awakening" and "The Rescue."

He also reported the loss of screen tests made of Broadway players for the proposed Goldwyn-Ziegfeld musical film. All the destroyed film was covered by insurance, Mr. Goldwyn added.

ANN ORR TO RESUME ACTING.

Former Musical Play Actress to Appear in "Death Takes a Holiday."

Ann Orr, a musical comedy actress who left the stage in 1919 to marry Archibald McNeil Jr., a naval officer, is scheduled to appear in "Death Takes a Holiday," which the Shuberts are producing. In it she will have her first dramatic part. Before her marriage Miss Orr acted leading rôles in various musical comedies, chief among them being "She's a Good Fellow," in which she was appearing at the time she married; "Very Good Eddie" and "Leave It to Jane." Late last year she was scheduled to return to the stage in a Shubert musical show.

Philip Merivale will head the cast of "Death Takes a Holiday," which has been adapted by Walter Ferris from the Italian of Alberto Cassello. Besides Miss Orr and Mr. Merivale the company will include James Dale, an English actor, who scored a hit here in "Loyalties."

Rehearsals are under way, and the play is booked to begin a preliminary tour in Washington on Nov. 18. It was tried out in May by Stuart Walker's Cincinnati company and was recently given several times by the Parish Players of Stony Creek, Conn.

KENYON PLAY DUE NOV. 25.

"Top o' the Hill" to Be Presented Here by Felix Young.

Felix Young, who was associated last season with Sam H. Harris in the production here of "The Marriage Bed," will present "Top o' the Hill," a play by Charles Kenyon, best known in the theatre as the author of "Kindling," at the Eltinge Theatre on Nov. 25.

"Top o' the Hill" was tried out on the Pacific Coast last Spring with Helen Menken in the leading rôle, a part that will be acted here by Ara Gerald, who is now in Boston with William Faversham's comedy, "Her Friend the King." Other members of the cast will be Charles Brown, Sidney Booth, Virginia Hammond, Mary Murray and Georgie Lee Hall. C. Worthington Miner will direct the play.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Ghost Parade" will open tonight at the Lyric Theatre.

"Playboy" is now the name of the Samson Raphaelson comedy which Horace Liveright is producing with Lou Holtz in the leading rôle. It will open Friday night in Hempstead.

Walter Abel will have the leading rôle in "Christopher Rand," the play by Eleanor Robson Belmont and Harriet Ford, which is now in rehearsal. Others in the cast will be Edward Butler, Ralph Roder and Dorothy Paule.

Paul Frawley has been engaged for "Top Speed," the new Bolton, Kalmar & Ruby musical show. Ben Pollack and his orchestra will also appear in it.

"See Naples and Die" was definitely announced yesterday to move from the Vanderbilt Theatre to the Eltinge next Monday night.

Laurence Schwab, who has been producing "Follow Thru" on the Pacific Coast, will return to New York on Monday.

Richard Bennett will close his tour in "Jarnegan" Saturday night at the Shubert-Riviera Theatre.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

A Slice of Tin Pan Alley.

JAZZ HEAVEN, with John Mack Brown, Clyde Cook, Blanche Frederici, Sally O'Neil, Joseph Cawthorne, Albert Conti, Henry Armetta, Ole M. Ness, J. Barney Sherry and Adele Watson, based on a story by Pauline Forney and Dudley Murphy, directed by Melville Brown; "Black and Tan"; "Gumboat Ginsburg." At the Globe Theatre.

Fun rides high over romance in "Jazz Heaven," an audible pictorial slice of Tin Pan Alley, which was launched last night by R. K. O. at the Globe Theatre. So good is the comedy of Joseph Cawthorne and Albert Conti that they are like a new Weber and Fields team without being imitative. And the merriment they furnish makes the love affair, portrayed by John Mack Brown and Sally O'Neil, one of passing interest.

This production, which is especially well recorded, is, however, an agreeable disappointment considering what one is led to expect from the title. It has its silly moments and there are a number of occasions when even the merry interludes would be all the better for a little more study and consequent footage. But it is at least free from the hoofer and his faithful partner. Many of the incidents may be anticipated in this present offering, but there is only one song, and while everybody raves over this melody in a surprising fashion, one is willing to gloss over this latitude so long as Messrs. Cawthorne and Conti are permitted to entertain one with their explosive utterances and their glee at getting the better of each other.

And there are two other comedians—Clyde Cook and Henry Armetta—who arouse a smile or two. Mr. Armetta is especially amusing when he and Mr. Cook are attacking the none-too-easy task of trying to carry a piano downstairs without waking that ogre, Mrs. Langley, to whom Mr. Cook is married in the yarn. This piano interlude is one instance where even better results might have been obtained by not permitting buffoonery in the end to take the place of clever comedy. The sight of these two men striving to make a noiseless job of lugging the piano down a narrow stairway is side-splitting, especially when Tony (Mr. Armetta) is squeezed against the banisters. His pained expression and his Latin accent make the chuckles that grow into ejaculations of laughter.

Barry Holmes (Mr. Brown) is, of course, the author of the much-discussed song, and Ruth Morgan (Miss O'Neil) is responsible for the final notes, through which she wins a lien on Barry's Southern heart. These young persons are useful as foils for the comedy, for without a pretty girl Messrs. Cawthorne and Conti might not have been so humorous.

Mr. Cawthorne figures as the snappy, elderly Herman Kemple and Mr. Conti is Walter Klucke, the junior partner in the song firm of Kemple & Klucke. Mr. Klucke thinks that it is good for business for him to be seen at the Follies with a pretty girl, but Mr. Kemple does not quite see the idea of paying $55 for the theatre tickets. They are both unduly interested in Ruth, who, in her anxiety to sell her sweetheart's song, causes Mr. Kemple a great deal of distress—or at least irritation at losing $500 in a wager with his partner. Ruth had promised Mr. Kemple that she would not go out to dinner with Mr. Klucke, but circumstances cause her to change her mind.

Mr. Kemple is at first seen ordering a dinner. He is alone and confides to the waiter that he wants a really good meal because his partner is paying for it. No sooner has the waiter walked away than Klucke and Ruth appear upon the scene and Mr. Kemple loses his appetite as well as the $500.

All this sounds rather flat after the manner in which it is acted by this clever team. Every word counts with them and there is nothing slipshod in the enunciation.

Melville Brown, the director, has shown in silent films that he has a keen sense of humor, and this fact is evidently to the advantage of this picture. He has handled his comedy interludes with sympathy, but the hard-up piano player and his love affair are unimportant.

Another passage, in which Mr. Brown shows imagination, is one depicting the various homes into which Barry's song goes over the radio. This sequence is all the more interesting because neither Barry nor Ruth knew that the song is being broadcast.

Lucy Robison Applauded in Debut.

Lucy Robison, pianist, made her New York début last night in Steinway Hall. Her program comprised Debussy's "Toccata" and "Clair de Lune," Chopin's Fantasie, Op. 49; Beethoven's Sonata, Op. 27, No. 2; Schumann's "Waldscenen," and the Bach-Busoni Chaconne. The young pianist revealed the results of serious study, genuine musical feeling and technical dexterity. Her tone, though occasionally hard, with brilliant and her phrasing well-considered and musicianly. An audience that filled the salon applauded the pianist with enthusiasm.

"Midnight Jollies" at Equity Ball.

The "Midnight Jollies," the entertainment program for the eleventh Equity ball, to be held at the Hotel Astor on Nov. 9, will include Irene Franklin of "Sweet Adeline," and Clifton Webb, Joan Carter Waddell, Lucy Monroe and John McCauley, all of the cast of "The Little Show," it was announced yesterday by Margaret Smith, general manager of the ball.

When you're down and out
Lift up your head and shout
There's going to be a Great Day

Promise that bye and bye
There's gonna be a Great Day

Some early morn
You will hear his horn
Rooty tootin'
It's not far away
Hold up your hands and say
There's gonna be a Great Day

SAYS IMPERIALISM HURTS OUR MISSIONS

Peking Professor Urges Action by Church Interests to Ease Sentiment in China.

PALESTINE CANON SPEAKS

Daily Vacation Bible Schools to Be World Foundation—New Officers Are Elected.

The American missionary movement in China is at present part of an imperialistic movement and must be disassociated from it, the Rev. Richard Ritter, a professor at Yenching University in Peking, said yesterday at the annual luncheon of the World Association of Daily Vacation Bible Schools, at the Hotel Astor. He demanded that Christians "bring pressure to bear upon Washington" to void the treaties giving the United States extra-territorial rights in China.

Americans should live in China "the same way Chinese live in the United States," he said. There is no anti-Christian feeling in China, but there is a decidedly strong anti-foreign feeling, he added. As evidence of the fact that there is no anti-Christian feeling he explained that there have been repeated instances recently in which Chinese have assumed the leading offices in Christian organizations.

"Unfortunately, however," he continued, "China has frequently been forced, at the point of the sword, to give up rights that belong to her. She is seeking to regain those rights and the anti-foreign feeling today is the result. The United States has had no wars with China, but we have been very willing to take advantage of England's conquests and to force treaties giving us extra-territorial rights.

"The Chinese object to the Christian movement in so far as they maintain that it is allied to an imperialistic movement. If we are sincere in wanting Christian work to continue in China we must first disassociate ourselves completely from any imperialistic movement. Second, we must bring pressure to bear upon Washington to have the existing extra-territorial treaties abolished."

The Rev. Canon Charles T. Bridgeman of St. George's Cathedral in Palestine, also spoke at the luncheon. Introducing him, the Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, rector of Holy Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, who presided, said that Christians would be "justified," in view of the recent Arab uprising, in uniting "to drive the Arabs out of the Holy Land and give it to the Jews."

Canon Bridgeman made no reference to Zionism. He said that he did not favor Protestant missionary work in Jerusalem. The temperament of the people, he explained, was much better suited to the Greek Orthodox and Armenian Churches than to Protestantism.

The association voted to incorporate under the title of the World Foundation of Daily Vacation Bible Schools and to seek an endowment of $1,000,000. A gift of $100,000 toward the endowment already has been offered anonymously, to be given as soon as an additional $100,000 is donated, it was announced.

The Right Rev. Pakenham Walsh of Calcutta and the Rev. Mr. C. Y. Cheng were elected yesterday as additional honorary vice presidents of the association. Other officers who served during the past year were re-elected.

CLERGY MEET ON GASTONIA.

Congregationalists to Discuss Labor Problems in South Today.

"Gastonia and Marion—A Moral Challenge to the Church" is the subject of an all-day conference called by the social relations department of the Congregational Churches for today at the Russell Sage Foundation Building, 130 East Twenty-second Street. The conference will open at 10:30 in the morning. More than 100 ministers have registered to attend.

"The present textile situation in the South is so serious in its implications as to demand the thoughtful consideration of all who seek peace and justice," the announcement of the conference said. "Issues at stake include: the right of labor to organize; freedom of speech and assembly; communism and labor controversies; lawlessness in public officials; the living wage; the part the Church may play in labor controversy."

The following are scheduled to speak:

ROGER BALDWIN of the Civil Liberties Union.

A. J. MUSTE, dean of Brookwood Labor College.

FRANK GORMAN, vice president of the United Textile Workers.

JAMES MYERS, secretary, Commission on the Church and Social Relations, Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

NORMAN THOMAS of the Emergency Committee for Strikers' Relief and Socialist candidate for Mayor.

HENRY P. KENDALL, Boston, Mass., president, Kendall Mills, Inc.

A representative of the National Textile Workers; a representative of the American Cotton Manufacturers Association and a representative of the National Association of Manufacturers will also speak.

LOEB MEMORIAL DESIGNED.

Granite Tomb to Contain Body of Child Welfare Worker.

A symbolic memorial of granite will mark the grave of Sophie Irene Loeb, child welfare worker, who died last Jan. 18, it was learned yesterday. She was buried in the Westchester Hills Cemetery of the Free Synagogue at Mount Hope, N. Y.

The memorial, plans for which were drawn by S. L. Waller, architect, of 14 West Forty-fifth Street, will have a base 17 by 8 feet, surmounted by a sarcophagus and a tablet bearing the legend, "Not Charity, but a Chance for Every Child." The contract for its construction has been let to the Charles G. Blake Company, Barre, Vt.

Women's City Club Radio Series.

A series of talks to be given weekly on Fridays at 5:15 P. M. over WEAF's network by leaders who are prominent in various fields of national life is to begin this week with an address by Mrs. H. Edward Dreier, under the sponsorship of the Women's City Club. Mrs. Dreir is to speak on "The Modern Woman and Her City." The following week Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will speak on "Women in Politics." On Nov. 15 Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson is to speak on "The Gibson Girl." The general title of the series is the "March of Events." Preparations are said to have been made by women's clubs throughout the country to listen in.

Panama Indians Saddened by Our 'Morals,' After Studying 6 Years in American Schools

COLON, Panama, Oct. 29 (AP).—Three San Blas Indians of the proud and warlike tribe which keeps rigidly aloof from other peoples returned here today after six years in American schools, greatly impressed by many points in American civilization but sadly disillusioned over the "morals" there.

They were particularly disgusted with the intermarriage of Americans with other nationalities and said their own tribe was far superior in this respect. Absolute purity of blood was maintained by them and intermarriage discouraged by the death penalty. Their women remain hidden from sight of visitors and none of the latter is allowed in the San Blas villages after nightfall.

The Indians are Federico Filos, Francisco Dias and Andres Hayes. Funds collected by Mrs. M. Purdy of Taunton, Mass., and Anne Cope of England, missionaries, had enabled them to spend the last six years at schools in North Carolina, Kentucky and Pennsylvania. There they were greatly impressed with the practice of medicine and sanitation and the business ability and generosity of Americans.

The San Blas archipelago is part of Panama and schools have been established by both Protestant and Catholic missionaries. The Indians gain their living from hunting and fishing and trading cocoanuts and ivory nuts. Although gold has been found in their country the natives have discouraged invasion by foreigners and efforts to mine it have so far been unsuccessful.

The men who returned today will establish schools to teach sanitation, English and religion. They hope particularly to abolish witchcraft practices. When they reach their own island of Naragana they also hope to raise funds for a return to the United States to complete their education.

GALA RADIO PROGRAM TO GO TO ALL LANDS

Station KDKA, in New Studios, Will Celebrate Nine Years of Broadcasting.

A gala program celebrating nine years of broadcasting by station KDKA is scheduled to begin at 8:30 o'clock on Friday morning and to continue on the air for forty consecutive hours. A feature of the celebration will be the announcement of programs in fifteen different languages, and the transmission of the presentations to all the countries of the world by means of short-wave stations associated with the "World's Pioneer Broadcasting Station."

Other features will be specially prepared radio presentations from foreign broadcasters, which are to be intercepted and rebroadcast by KDKA over its 306-meter wave, for local listeners.

H. P. Davis, vice president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, known as the "Father of Broadcasting," is to speak on Saturday at 8 P. M., which is said to be the exact hour at which the first regular scheduled presentation was begun in 1920 by KDKA. Some of the features put on the air early in 1920 by KDKA will be re-enacted for this anniversary of the broadcaster. Among them will be a re-presentation of the first ringside description of a boxing bout transmitted from Duquesne Garden, Pittsburgh, on April 11, 1921. The contestants were Johnny Ray and Johnny Dundee. Florence Gibson, said to be the first sports announcer, will tell the details of the fight.

The program will also mark the formal opening of new KDKA studios in the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh. The first KDKA studio was atop the Westinghouse plant at East Pittsburgh. In the draped room, twenty feet square, were only a microphone and a piano.

Socialists Ban Wine at Communion.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Oct. 29.—The Socialist paper Volkszeitung of Zurich reports that the local Socialist party at a recent meeting decided by eleven votes to two to abolish wine at holy communion in church and replace it with grape juice because many Socialists who are teetotalers objected to wine being served to their children at the altar.

PROTESTANT UNION URGED BY BAPTIST

Dr. Swetland Tells New Jersey Convention Churches Should Combine Their Resources.

WOULD END OVERLAPPING

Leader Predicts Vast Suburban Growth in State and Asks $2,500,000 Expansion Fund.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 29.—The Rev. Dr. Roger W. Swetland of Highstown, president of the New Jersey Baptist Convention, pleaded here today for united effort among denominations and scored the waste of Protestantism in dissipating its combined material resources in frequent overlapping of work. He addressed the centennial anniversary meeting of the Baptist body.

Dr. Swetland said it was not necessary to have an organic union, but added that certain kinds of church work could be carried out more satisfactorily by merging the denominations.

"There are in existence thirty-seven different Protestant denominational church boards," he said, "each trying to do the same thing; each has its own rented or owned offices and paid secretaries, funds, officers and missionaries. Their activities overlap until the waste is terrific. Can you imagine a large business concern carrying out a program in that manner?

"The big problem is the inability of Protestantism, as now divided, to cope with the changing conditions in city and suburban life. A policy of church comity with all Protestant denominations working within the State on a commanding program of church unity would attract prominent laymen in business and professional life. The warfare of the sects and schisms is the cause for existence of large numbers of unchurched people in all nations. Many who would respond to the appeal of authority lose the force of any appeal amid the confusions of tongues and loud voices of divided claimants."

Dr. Swetland recommended that the State centennial revolving fund for the establishment of new Baptist churches now being raised be increased from $250,000 to $2,500,000. He predicted that within the next century the entire State of New Jersey would be suburbanized.

"Together with a highly trained ministry, he said, a highly trained laity was needed. He asserted that the weakness of the church lay in the fact that the laity did not give the same careful attention to church administration that they gave to their own businesses.

Dr. Swetland, who is headmaster of Peddie Institute, was nominated to succeed himself as president. Elections will take place tomorrow.

ASKS NEW RADIO STATION.

Dollar Steamship Company Seeks Plant at Garden City.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Station WWRL at Woodside, N. Y., asked the Federal Radio Commission today for permission to install automatic frequency control.

The Robert Dollar Company applied for a construction permit for an experimental station at Garden City, using 30,000 watts power.

The Jenkins Television Corporation at Jersey City applied on behalf of its experimental station W2XCR for a change of frequency from 2,100-2,200 kilocycles to 2,750-2,850 kilocycles, with 5,000 watts power.

Station WEIOL at Tupper Lake, N. Y., obtained special authority to operate the night of Oct. 31, using 1,420 kilocycles.

The commission renewed the license of WCAX at the University of Vermont, at Burlington, on 1,200 kilocycles, with 100 watts power, sharing time with WNBX.

Station WnSO of Needham, Mass., received authority to install equipment with a maximum power of 500 watts and to change its frequency from 780 to 920 kilocycles for daytime operation on 250 watts power, with an additional 250 watts on an experimental basis.

TWO 5TH AV. JEWELERS IN REMODELED HOME

Merger of Black, Starr & Frost and Gorham to Be Complete With Opening Today.

Formal opening today of the enlarged and remodeled building of Black, Starr & Frost-Gorham, Inc., at Fifth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street, will mark the official consummation of the consolidation of the two well-known jewelry houses.

The building will be open for inspection during the remainder of the week. Among the articles on exhibition will be a pearl necklace valued at $725,000 and a platinum set formerly owned by Diamond Jim Brady. The cuff links, tie pin and other pieces in the Brady set are models of airplanes, trains, automobiles and other modes of transportation.

The redecorated structure is in sixteenth century Italian Gothic style. The new Forty-eighth Street section is divided into a series of individual sales shops, with arched vestibule reproduced from the old Piazzo Communale in Italy. Carvings and colonnettes are after La Casa Bogatti Valsecchi, Milan. Adjoining the Forty-eighth Street store is the Tudor room, of old English design, after Haddon Hall in Derbyshire. The jewelry department, on the Fifth Avenue front, is of sixteenth century Renaissance design. The second-floor salon is finished in the design of Sutton Court, Chiswick. Starrett & Van Vleck were the architects.

Edmund Cooper Mayo, president of the Gorham Manufacturing Company, is chairman of the board of directors of the merged concerns and Witherbee Black is president. The history of Black, Starr & Frost dates back to the founding of the shop of Isaac Marquand at 166 Broadway in 1810. The Gorham firm was established by Jabez Gorham of Providence nearly 100 years ago.

Captain W. J. Pedrick, executive vice president of the Fifth Avenue Association, spoke at a luncheon given by the company yesterday at the Ritz-Carlton.

Hershey Says Food Merger Will Make Possible Expansion of School.

Special to The New York Times.

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 29.—Through the formation of the International Quality Products Company, the Hershey Industrial School at Hershey, Pa., will benefit by about $50,000, according to a statement today by Milton S. Hershey, chocolate manufacturer and founder of the school.

He said that the merger of the Hershey Chocolate Company, the Kraft-Phenix Cheese Company and the Colgate Palm-Olive Peet Company was nearly completed and that the profits from the consolidation would be used in a general expansion of the industrial school, with the addition of new buildings, new equipment and new homes for orphaned children.

The school now has 243 boys in its charge. It is expected that the expansion will care for orphans awaiting admission.

INVESTMENT SERVICE
These are not the reflections in which one would like to indulge; but it is impossible to understand the existing situation without frankly allowing for them. Meantime, outside the Stock Exchange the day's news was not unfavorable. The United States Steel Corporation's quarterly report of earnings would have exhilarated a different market. Its August net receipts were, except for the preceding May, the largest of any month since the war; the three months' total had similarly been exceeded only in the preceding quarter.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Until shortly before the end of yesterday's stock market there was no abatement whatever in the fury of liquidation. The day's actual transactions of 16,400,000 shares ran far beyond last Thursday's 12,800,000, and, in a long list of well-known shares, declines ran from 25 to 40 points. One stock, du Pont, which had cut a conspicuous figure in the ill-fated speculation for the rise, fell 70 points yesterday; another motor stock, lately forced up sensationally by its "pool," fell 65. At their lowest prices of the day, some of the highest-grade shares showed losses from last week's closing figures ranging from 75 to 87 points. Measured by another comparison, so varied a group of shares as General Electric, Allied Chemical, Radio, du Pont, Westinghouse, Standard Gas and General Motors sold yesterday 43 to 77 per cent below their high prices of the year.

The outpour of stocks, which seemed at times to be thrown on the market regardless of price, undoubtedly in large part resulted from blind panic. Even with holders who were not forced to sell, the abnormally violent succession of downward plunges on the Stock Exchange appeared to have caused the kind of fright which can be allayed by nothing but instant extrication from such a market at any sacrifice. Many of them may discover that they had imposed needless losses on themselves, and the buyers who took the best of these stocks at the moment of greatest demoralization may have reason for gratification later on.

But exhaustion of credit resources in the hands of speculative holders also and necessarily played its part and the character of the heaviest selling, like that of Monday, plainly indicated that speculators of very largely extended professional activities had been forced to go to the bottom of their strong-boxes. These aspects of the market cannot well be dismissed as evidence of blind hysteria.

In the market's later hours there was irregular recovery, evidently due to increasingly large purchases by wealthy "bargain-hunters" as prices were lowered to invite it. This support, which ought normally to grow in magnitude with the successive scaling down of prices, would at ordinary times have stopped the market's disintegration before this. How soon it will do so effectively remains to be determined. The condition into which yesterday's market fell was the obvious penalty for two outstanding policies pursued by the stock market itself in its heyday of speculation.

Wall Street had sedulously cultivated the highly precarious cooperation of an immense array of speculative plungers scattered throughout the country and greater in number than in any previous speculative mania of history. With the camp followers equaling in number and aggregate commitments those of Wall Street's own trained army, it was as inevitable in the market's course as it would have been on the field of battle that the first great defeat of the campaign should become a rout, that "sauve qui peut" should be the single instinct. The second bit of Nemesis is the action of Wall Street toward the foreign markets. In the worst of the Stock Exchange's old-time disordered markets European buying repeatedly saved the situation in a crisis. But our own speculative market had for months been stripping Europe of its necessary capital, turning the foreign markets into confusion and necessitating, for their own financial safety, the erecting of barriers against the return of their resources to the relief of Wall Street.

These are not the reflections in which one would like to indulge; but it is impossible to understand the existing situation without frankly allowing for them. Meantime, outside the Stock Exchange the day's news was not unfavorable. The United States Steel Corporation's quarterly report of earnings would have exhilarated a different market. Its August net receipts were, except for the preceding May, the largest of any month since the war; the three months' total had similarly been exceeded only in the preceding quarter.

MARKET FOR LOS ANGELES.

Plans Completed for Forming New Stock Exchange.

Plans have been completed for a new market, to be known as the California Stock Exchange, in Los Angeles, according to an announcement yesterday by the newly selected board of governors after its first meeting in Los Angeles. The trading operations of the new exchange will be country-wide, through membership affiliation with brokers on the New York and Chicago Stock Exchanges, the Chicago Board of Trade, the New York Curb and the Philadelphia, Detroit and other markets.

The board includes Harold G. Ferguson, chairman; A. Frank, Patrick M. Logan, Frank L. Maline, L. R. Martineau, A. R. Walker, Amos W. Elliott, C. P. Matthews and Wallace M. Cunningham. Frank Partridge has been elected secretary, Harrison S. Martin and Mr. Matthews, who were selected by the New York brokers interested in the Exchange to supervise the technical details of this organization, are former New York Stock Exchange officials. Mr. Martin is to be technical director and Mr. Matthews Exchange secretary.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

So great was the confusion in Wall Street yesterday that the wide-open break on the Stock Exchange was generally accepted as an episode of a week-old debacle. The state of mind in stock market circles was such that the smashing destruction of values seemed a commonplace occurrence. The financial district was enveloped in gloom until late in the day, when a better feeling appeared. The occasional rallies in certain stocks failed to lift the clouds. At the end of the day Wall Street had no accurate knowledge of what values were, but it was realized generally that the market was in the most serious phase of its reaction. To enumerate the wide losses would mean listing nearly all active stocks. Only a handful escaped in the general collapse. The speculative element was in that mood which blinded it to everything but the most unpleasant sensations.

The Use of Discretion.

Members of the Stock Exchange, and particularly the specialists on the floor, had free rein yesterday in the use of discretion, and it was this, more than anything else, that prevented more calamitous happenings. For instance, it was an open secret that orders in certain stocks were held up for long periods so that better conditions might develop. Market orders did not fare any better, in emergencies, than limited orders. Many customers do not yet know what they received or paid for stocks.

Establishing Losses.

For the first time in several years the practice of establishing losses for income tax purposes was being followed yesterday by wealthy individuals, it was reported in Wall Street. During the bull markets of the last three years these operations have been practically impossible, but the tremendous losses suffered by many wealthy individuals have made it possible in many cases to wipe out income tax payments for the year. The law, which prohibits repurchase for thirty days of stocks sold to establish a loss, is being circumvented by several wealthy persons, it was reported. One man who bought Consolidated Gas at 150 sold it yesterday below 100 and then purchased an even larger amount of Columbia Gas below 70. In other words, while the law prevents wash sales to establish losses, it cannot prevent individuals from selling one issue and purchasing a similar one which has shown a corresponding decline.

Building Buying Power.

Great reliance evidently is being placed on sound accounts to bring a turn in the market trend, as exemplified by the decision of the banks to lend brokers funds on a basis of 25 per cent of the marked down loan values of stocks. The compression of values due to the persistent declines in stocks has had the compensating effect of enhancing their lending value at the lower levels. This in turn will serve to build up buying power at a time when distress selling by impaired accounts has not ceased, with the result that a change in trend will occur automatically. In the best opinion available yesterday, however, the recovery will be a matter of individual securities at the outset.

Brokers' Loan Contraction.

From all sides yesterday came reports of a tremendous reduction in brokers' loans, which, added to the reductions accomplished on previous days, undoubtedly will make an impressive showing when the week's figures have been compiled by the Federal Reserve Board authorities. There were predictions yesterday that a decline of more than a billion dollars is not unlikely, judging from the reduced commitments of many of the leading houses and also from the contraction of market values, estimated to have been 30 per cent since last Wednesday.

Ringing the Knell.

The closing gong of the Stock Exchange took on a new significance yesterday. As usual, it beat out its warning notes amid a chorus of brokers who sought to make split-second executions. When its reverberations had ceased, one of the few spectators admitted to the visitors' gallery remarked: "There's the knell for many a bank account."

Constructive Developments.

The fact that the directors of the United States Steel Corporation and of the American Can Company, each the leader in its field, declared extra dividends of $1 a share yesterday was almost lost to sight in the tremendous rush to sell stocks. In ordinary circumstances they would have operated as market factors of major importance, and probably they did have some sentimental effect in rallying the market from its extreme lows of the day. The market situation was so desperate, however, that it overshadowed all other considerations, and the prices at which stocks sold were of more importance to those who watched the market than any sort of outside news.

Trying to Stem Niagara.

Many bankers and brokers were willing to testify last night that any attempt to support the market by buying stocks yesterday was like trying to stem the falls of Niagara. Stocks came into market in veritable floods and supporting orders were violently swept away as stocks of all sorts plunged downward with unprecedented velocity. The order generally was to sell at the market. It represented real, forced liquidation and a desperate anxiety to get entirely out of the stock market on the part of thousands of persons in all parts of the country. It was such a situation as probably never will develop again in this country, and those who stood on the side lines and witnessed it were literally awe-struck by the violence of the shrinkage in values and the tremendous losses established by individuals and institutions.

MONEY.

Tuesday, Oct. 29, 1929.

Except for the slight firming up in Stock Exchange call-loan rate to 6 per cent from 5, other departments of the money market were easier and rates lower. In time money 6 per cent was quoted for all dates, and ninety days was the popular maturity at that figure. This is a low for the year. Acceptances were cut another ⅛ in yield, with potential buying power "just around the corner" waiting for cheaper rates. Commercial paper also softened on choice names to 6 per cent and more banks are evidencing buying interest than previously.

I. R. T. IN QUARTER EARNED $1,977,895

FARE RISE IS DISCUSSED

Hedley's Report Says 7-Cent Charge Would Benefit City More Than Company.

Frank Hedley, president and general manager of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, presented to the board of directors yesterday a report of the earnings and expenses for September and the third quarter of this year. He stated that the recent settlement of disputed accounts involving a total of more than $14,000,000 up to June 30, 1929, having been paid on a lump sum basis, made it impossible to readjust the detail accounts for the previous year to show the effect of the settlement. A satisfactory comparison was, therefore, impracticable, he asserted.

The readjustment of the company's accounts for prior years has not yet progressed to the point where the amount remaining payable for back dividend rental on the Manhattan modified guaranteed 5 per cent stock can be definitely determined, Mr. Hedley said.

The September earning statement, without 1928 comparisons, shows gross revenue from all sources amounting to $5,674,365 for the month and to $16,578,469 for the September quarter. Net earnings after all taxes and expenses were $1,977,895 and $4,975,759 respectively.

In September there was a net income of $355,407 before and of $122,536 after the Manhattan 5 per cent rental, while for the quarter a net income of $236,626 was shown before deducting the rental, which is in arrears, and a deficit of $456,987 after subtracting the amount of the rental for the quarter.

The accrued deficits in subway preferentials having been received in full prior to July 1, 1929, the Interborough Company since that date is entitled to deduct from subway earnings only its current preferentials, the official statement issued last night says. For the first quarter of the present fiscal year, ended Sept. 30, 1929, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company received a balance of $1,004,640. After deducting from the same a deficit of $766,014 in charges on the elevated division, $238,625 was left to apply upon the quarterly rental of 5 per cent per annum on the Manhattan modified guaranteed stock, which will be paid in due course in accordance with the readjustment agreement, the statement said. The remainder of the quarterly instalment, amounting to $456,987, is payable if and when future net earnings of the system are sufficient for that purpose.

The fixed charges upon $47,506,362 bonds and notes issued for money borrowed by the Interborough since 1913 to build the elevated centre tracks, connections with the subway and additions to power plant, amounted to $790,926 for the quarter, the statement said, adding that the Interborough company must pay these charges out of its subway preferentials, which are just about sufficient for the purpose, so long as the elevated division fails to earn sufficient to meet them, because they are direct legal obligations.

"The net result for the quarter is that about one-third of the quarter's rental on the Manhattan Elevated was available for Manhattan stockholders but nothing for Interborough stockholders." The statement continued in part: "The city will receive $51,514 for the quarter because that amount was earned in excess of the Interborough current preferentials. Hereafter no matter how prosperous the subway operations may be or what the rate of fare, every dollar of subway earnings above the Interborough annual net preferential of $3,178,000 must be applied in reduction of the city deficit, which was $93,522,846 on July 31, 1929. That deficit is not, however, a debt of the Interborough Company. It is payable only out of earnings. When extinguished, the profits will be divided equally between the company and the city.

"A seven-cent fare on both the subway and the elevated would enable the Interborough to pay the charges and rental on the Manhattan Elevated and leave about half of its net preferential or about $1,500,000 a year for its own corporate uses or less than 5 per cent on its own stock. Every other dollar would go for additional wages, equipment and service and in addition thereto the city would receive enough and more every year to make its investment in the Interborough subway self-sustaining. A seven-cent fare would benefit the city much more than the Interborough. It ought to extinguish its deficit in ten years."

THIRD AV. RAILWAY GAINS.

A deficit of $25,650 is reported by the Third Avenue Railway for the month of September, comparing with a deficit of $35,566 for the same month last year, while for the September quarter the deficit was $128,072, against $129,786 for the same period of 1928.

Operating revenue for the month was $311,838 higher, at $1,279,549, and for the quarter $15,162 lower, at $3,816,235. Operating income, after expenses and taxes in September totaled $211,863, up $15,013, and in the September quarter totaled $596,967, up $20,278.

CHAIN STORES OPTIMISTIC.

Executives Say Sales Will Not Be Reduced by Stock Crash.

The declines in stock prices will not affect the volume of retail sales through chain stores, according to executives of thirty-six chain store systems in a consensus prepared by the Chain Store Research Bureau. William J. Baxter, director of the bureau, said that the necessity to shop economically was greatest during periods of deflation.

Chain store sales so far this year are of an average of 7½ per cent ahead of last year's, according to the report which states that at present less than 20 per cent of the country's retail business is done through chain stores. Because of this many profitable years of expansion are seen ahead for chain stores.

NOW THE INVESTOR MOVES IN

He moves slowly and deliberately. And he uses a type of sound judgment that is unknown to the speculator.

The speculator is an opportunist when things go with him. When things go against him he moves only when he has to. He has had to move in this market.

This country is sound. It is sounder today than it ever has been.

It is sounder by far than when representative stocks sold at unwarranted prices on the basis of abused credit.

The high prices that recently were commanded by the common stocks of our leading corporations doubtless will be duplicated. They can be duplicated.

They can be duplicated on the basis of sound economic values. We do not need mad speculation to bring sound stocks back to these former high prices.

Nothing, not even the temporary period of mad speculation, can stop the progress of this nation with its vast untapped natural resources, so long as the large majority of men will keep their feet on the ground and their hands to their work.

When will the downward trend of stocks be arrested?

The bottom of this market will be reached when investors—not the speculators—are satisfied that they own the right stocks.

Hundreds of thousands of people are alarmed over their personal losses. Few are alarmed over the future prosperity of this country.

The wise investor continues to analyze industry, and in his own self interest on the basis of this analysis, he is aroused only to the point of seeking more safety for his capital.

He has perhaps been too lenient in the placement of his money. He cannot afford to be lenient now.

For, make no mistake about it, men and women by the millions right now are thinking only of one thing—mending their fences. In real earnest they must now seek safe industries and more than ever before safety will be the key to investing.

Those unable to distinguish between basically sound and unsound economic conditions will seek fixed income investments—high grade bonds.

Those who are able to understand the conditions in a given industry that make for sound economic situations and who are able to understand the conditions in a given industry that make for sound investments, will continue to seek sound profit sharing securities.

The man who now loses confidence in investments as investments, never will be a successful investor. Sound investments are just as sound now as they have ever been. They are sounder than they have ever been.

This is simply a time to seek the soundest investment. And having found it to make it one's own.

Remember that no investment can possibly be sounder than the industry that stands behind it.

To investors who seek sound profit sharing investments, we recommend certain securities of the water works industry which are ideally suited to the present needs. As long as people drink and use water these securities will be safe and sound.

The water tap will continue to be turned and water companies will continue to earn profits regardless of the conditions prevailing in any other branch of industry.

We are prepared to submit definite recommendations to inquiring investors.

"Buy Bonds at Present Prices

BECAUSE continued high money rates had forced down bond prices creating an unusual opportunity to buy for high income return and profit possibilities. Now, cheaper money is stimulating bond buying and prices are advancing. At this time, however, it is still possible to select a well diversified list on which the average yield is around 6%.

BRAZILIAN LETTER AIDS COFFEE PRICES

Consul General Defends Financial Position of Country in a Statement to Exchange.

DENIES A LOAN IS SOUGHT

A flat denial that Brazil had applied to any financial market in the world for a loan to defend its coffee policies was sufficient, when read aloud in the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange yesterday, to send coffee futures there from prices below Monday's low points to closing prices 75 to 95 points higher than Monday's final quotations. The denial was from Sebastian Sampaio, Consul General of Brazil at New York, addressed as an open letter to the Exchange, where prices had been dipping steadily for thirty days.

The letter was read aloud. The reversal of the price trend set in immediately. The letter read in part:

"It is entirely untrue that Brazil is in the financial markets of the world for any loan to defend our coffee policies, a statement which I make fully authorized by my government.

Holds Decline Was Artificial.

"Crop statistics and estimates, world stocks, stocks in warehouses, coffee port entries in Brazil and everywhere else did not meet any surprise or suffer any alteration that would justify the sudden and artificial decline of the last thirty days in New York. In the last thirty days coffee dropped even more than 7 cents a pound on your Exchange. But the fact remains that even yesterday the Santos Coffee Exchange in Brazil sold October coffees 6 cents higher than December 4's sold yesterday in your New York market."

The Consul General wrote that during the past year Brazil had exported 13,881,445 bags of coffee at a medium price of five pounds sterling each. At present there were in Brazil 14,000,000 bags, and on 9,000,000 of these the Sao Paulo Coffee Institute had advanced one and one-half pounds sterling a bag to the producers. The institute and the Banco do Estado de Sao Paulo were proceeding with their policies and rules without any alteration.

After denouncing what it described as a campaign of rumors from speculative sources and charging that it had provoked the present "artificial decline" in coffee prices in this country, the Consul General's letter gave figures showing big gold deposits and a ratio of 700 to 1 between the resources and deposits of the Banco de Brazil, and continued:

Brazilian Finance Strong.

"If you note how firm the Brazilian Exchange is in spite of all this campaign; if you give your attention to the fact that the Brazilian budget is continuing in full surplus, then you will understand why I insist in emphasizing that the coffee situation cannot be affected by the world's financial crisis to such an extent as to justify any substantial decline in prices."

After the reading of the letter, coffee futures rebounded and A contracts closed from 77 to 92 points higher, while D contracts closed from 75 to 95 points higher.

DENIES BRAZIL INTENDS TO ORDER MORATORIUM

President Tells Coffee Group It Is Not Needed—Situation Continues Serious.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAO PAULO, Oct. 29.—Confronted by persistent rumors that Brazil intended to declare a national moratorium, President Washington Luis, according to reports from Rio de Janeiro today, categorically denied that such a step was contemplated.

The statement was made to a delegation of the Sao Paulo Commercial Association, which called upon the President, laying the coffee situation before him, and asking for remedial measures.

The President of the Santos Commercial Association stated that the only solution possible was a moratorium, to which President Washington Luis sharply replied that it was absolutely unnecessary.

After listening to the grievances of the deputation the President stated that the situation was not so serious as painted on account of the panic atmosphere, adding that the Banco do Brazil was doing everything possible toward relieving the financial necessities of the Sao Paulo coffee market, but that too much must not be expected, as the Banco do Brazil is a Federal institution and depository and it was impossible to divert all its resources for the relief of one particular section of the large country.

The President advocated a greater sale of the finer grades of coffee in the United States, as New York buyers are unwilling to purchase poorer grades of coffee, stating that more than two-thirds of the Santos coffee stock was of poor quality. He asserted that increasing the movement would increase the number of sales abroad, thereby bringing more money to Brazil.

While not indicating his attitude toward the possibility of a drop in coffee prices if this course be carried out, the President strongly urged support of the coffee defense plan and promised to send the chief of the Banco do Brazil to Santos for the purpose of working out their problems with Santos coffee circles.

According to the Diario de Noite, the Rio de Janeiro coffee market, which was closed yesterday by its directors, was reopened this morning at the direction of President Luis. No transactions were reported. No information was forthcoming as to whether the President will reopen the Santos Coffee Bolsa, which was closed today for futures, although old business was still being attended to.

Bankers here are extremely pessimistic and little buying is taking place. It is reported that construction of the new connecting railroad line between Santos and Sao Paulo on the State-owned Sorocabana Railroad will be discontinued tomorrow.

Industrials, Rails, Utilities Show Gains in Net Earnings

A preliminary compilation by Ernst & Ernst, accountants, showed that earnings by industrials, utilities and railroads in the first nine months of the year were substantially ahead of those in the same period last year.

Net earnings of 163 industrials in the period totaled $993,621,000, an increase of 25.1 per cent from the same priod in 1928. Net earnings for thirty utilities were up 14.3 per cent. Net for seventy-three railroads was up 14.77 per cent. Of the 163 industrials, 143 reported increased earnings and twenty reported decreased earnings.

Later reports may change the percentages of increase, but the compilation includes such corporations as the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the General Motors Corporation and the United States Steel Corporation. Ernst & Ernst say earnings in 1928 were at a high record, and that, for this reason, in some cases earnings in the third quarter of 1929 were below those in the same period of 1928.

Merged Chains Expect to Do $31,000,000 Business a Year in 5c to $1 Retail Lines.

STOCK WILL BE EXCHANGED

F. & W. Grand Holders to Receive Dividend in Shares—Owners of Debentures Protected.

A gross chain store business of approximately $31,000,000 annually was established yesterday with a merger of the F. & W. Grand 5-10-25 Cent Stores and Isaac Silver & Brothers, Inc., which was announced in a statement issued by Adolph F. Stone, president of the Grand Stores, and Nobel, Crandal of George H. Burr & Co., bankers for both organizations. The statement was issued after the plan had been approved by the directors of each chain.

A new holding company, to be known as the F. & W. Grand-Silver Stores, Inc., will be formed to operate 140 stores in all parts of the country specializing in merchandize ranging in price from 5 cents to a dollar. The holding company will issue its securities in exchange for the outstanding securities of the two companies on a share for share basis.

The new company will continue under the management of the old executives. Mr. Stone will be chairman of the board of directors of the new holding company; Harold F. Stone, executive vice president of the F. & W. Grand Company, will be president, and Isaac Silver, president of Isaac Silver, Inc., will be chairman of the executive committee.

Stock Dividend Is Planned.

The F. & W. Grand Company announced that, prior to the consummation of the consolidation, it would declare a stock dividend of 5 per cent in common stock to make the necessary adjustments for the transaction. Payment of this dividend, however, will not affect the ratio of conversion of the preferred stock outstanding, which is convertible into common stock. Holders of 6 per cent debentures of F. & W. Grand Properties, a subsidiary, it is said, will be protected through readjustment of prices at which the debentures may be converted. The management of the Grand company announced also that it intended to place the common stock of the new holding company on a basis of 4 per cent annually, payable in common stock, and that any cash dividends in the future will be in the form of extras.

In 1928 the stores of the two companies did a gross business of $23,70,000, and Mr. Stone announced that the gross volume this year would exceed $31,000,000 on the basis of official figures covering the first nine months. Of the 140 stores the new company will operate, 94 are Grand stores and 46 Silver stores.

Authorized Capital 2,000,000 Shares.

The new holding company will have authorized capital of 2,000,000 no-par common shares, of which approximately 381,000 will be outstanding on completion of the merger. One share of the new common stock will be issued in exchange for one share of the common stock of both the Grand and the Silver companies. The Manufacturers Trust Company has been named depository for receiving stock under the plan.

Adolph F. Stone said he estimated the new holding company would earn approximately $5 a share on the stock to be issued, basing his estimates upon official figures for the current year. The net profit for the combined companies in 1928 was $1,599,000, equivalent to $3.87 a share on the Grand common stock and to $3.52 a share on the Silver common stock.

The slump in the securities markets will not affect the business of the stores included in the combination, according to Mr. Stone, who said that past records indicate that sales of variety chain stores companies specializing in low priced merchandise have steadily increased even in periods of general depression. He added that the merger would result in material reductions in overhead expenses and an increase in the purchasing power.

SEEKS SHORT LINE STOCK.

New York Central Asks Right to Buy Into 3 West Virginia Roads.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP).—Permission was asked of the Interstate Commerce Commission today by the New York Central Railroad to acquire half interest in three West Virginia railroads now controlled by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway.

The roads are the Sewell Valley, the Loop & Lookout and the Greenbrier & Eastern. The deal would be made through purchase of one-half of the capital stock of the companies.

Authorization also was asked by the New York Central to guarantee one-half of the principal and interest of $300,000 first mortgage 5 per cent bonds of the Sewell Valley.

Market Drop Stops Sugar Sales.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Oct. 29.—No further offers to purchase sugar will be accepted by the Cuban Exporting Corporation as long as abnormal conditions prevail in the value of stocks, it was announced today by Viriato Gutierrez Valladon, president of the board. The measure is taken in defense of the sugar interests, which are represented as taking into consideration the fact that the stock situation affects numerous commercial firms and companies which were heretofore interested in the purchase of Cuban sugar.

IN our opinion the present affords a favorable opportunity to acquire the stocks of banks and insurance companies for long-term investment.

Two Factors of timely importance to investors . . .

DESPITE styles and markets, fundamentals do not change and security prices generally seek their proper level . . . based eventually on intrinsic worth. Therefore, not only is it prudent but usually it is more profitable to consider fundamentals whenever securities are chosen.

Two factors especially have an important bearing upon the sound value of securities: Capable management in the company; the proven and potential growth in earning power of the business.

Shares of such companies, bought for investment, usually bring far more satisfaction than those chosen less conservatively and less with the idea of permanent investment.

For many years this organization has regarded capable management and sustained earning capacity as most important to the securities it sponsors. Our current investment suggestions are available, without obligation, upon request. Write today for list 2216.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

General Slump on English Exchange in Sympathy With Wall Street.

FRENCH STOCKS DECLINE

Prices Tumble in Heavy Wave of Selling—German Boerse Is Again Depressed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Black pessimism shrouded the London Stock Exchange today, with disastrous falls in international securities. The single exception was the Kylsant shipping group, in which Royal Mail rose ½ to 40½ and White Star preference advanced 6d to 15s 6d. Even gilt edge issues felt the effects of the Wall Street selling avalanche. The war loan declined 3-16 to £100 1-16, while the funding loan sank ⅜ to £86⅜.

Anglo-American issues cracked wide open, especially toward the close, when the first hours of the Wall Street quotations left traders here aghast. Blocks of shares went tumbling into the market on forced selling and prices fell rapidly. Among those hard hit were Associated Electric, which closed 3s 9d down at 29s 3d; General Electric 4s lower at 44s 6d; radios, which tumbled $10½ to $42; Columbia Graphophone, which fell £1 3-16 to £5¼, and His Master's Voice Graphophone 5-16 lower at 5 9-16. Hydroelectric weakened 5½ to $47, Cable and Wireless B ordinary fell 3½ to 47½, while Canadian Marconi finished 5s lower at 17s 6d.

Oils Finally Give Way.

Ford fell ⅛ to 2⅝, while textiles and tobaccos also were affected, although to moderate extent. Both Margarine Union and Margarine Unie declined 3-16 to £4, partly owing to the collapse on the Amsterdam Bourse. Oils, which escaped until today, finally gave way; Mexican Eagle sank 10½d to 17s 6d, Royal Dutch fell £1¼ to £21⅝, with other leaders also lower.

The price of rubber fell 5-16d to 8 15-16d a pound, dragging prices of rubber shares with it. Rhodesian coppers slumped badly, as blocks of these shares are held in New York; Bwana finished 2s 7½d down at 26s, Chartered sank 2s 6d to 36s, while Loangwa at 7s 3d, and Roan at £1 15-16 were all lower. De Beers fell ⅞ to £11⅝, thus losing most of last week's gains.

Money was tight in Lombard Street at 6½ per cent for overnight loans. Later the charge eased to 5%. Discounts hardened to 6 per cent for three-month bills, partly owing to the purchase of £899,300 of bar gold by the Bank of England. Of this sum France later bought £328,404, but the net influx was encouraging. Sterling weakened slightly to $4.87 25-32.

Stocks Hard Hit in Paris.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—A combination of the Wall Street slump, the London market's dullness and the confused political situation in France was too much for the Bourse today. The market opened weak and a selling movement rapidly got under way. All prices were swept downward and the day's losses are expected to weigh heavily on trading for a while.

French rentes were not as much affected as other stocks by the selling drive and resisted the market's general tendency. They closed as follows: The 3 per cents, 77.70; 1917 4s, 94.50; 1918 4s, 94.25; 1920 amortizable 5s, 124.75; 1928 5s, 100.40; 1920 6s, 105; 1927 amortizable 6s, 107.25.

Prices Lower in Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—The renewed landslide on the New York Stock Exchange and Amsterdam's weakness reacted on the Boerse today which opened with a depressed tendency. The weakness became pronounced in the course of the session. A considerable amount of material was offered from abroad and a number of unconfirmed rumors added to the general nervousness.

At the beginning of the second hour the banks' stabilization committee began operations, which to a certain extent halted the downward movement, although the day's losses were only partly recovered. A. E. G. shares of the artificial silk group which yesterday were quoted unofficially at 170 opened today at 141 and finally eased to 137. Bemberg fell 11 points. Siemens of the electricals slumped to 268, a drop of 15 points, Salzdetfurth declined 15 points, Polyphon 13, Julius Berger 11, Deutsche Linoleum 10, Conti Caoutchouc 9 and Reichsbank 8 points. Call money was 7 to 9 per cent.

CHATHAM PHENIX BANK IN DEAL WITH COMPTON

The Chatham Phenix National Bank and Trust Company is completing negotiations for the acquisition of the sales agencies of the William R. Compton Company of St. Louis, investment bankers, it was announced last night by Louis Gravenet Kaufman, president of the bank. Mr. Kaufman said William R. Compton, head of the company bearing his name, had been in New York several days carrying on the negotiations.

It is expected that the arrangements will be completed within a few weeks and that the terms of the deal can then be made public. At present the only announcement that can be made, according to Mr. Kaufman, is that the branches will be acquired.

The deal involves between forty and fifty sales agencies in various parts of the country. The individual management and personnel of each agency probably will be maintained intact, according to Mr. Kaufman. The general management of the whole group, however, will be transferred to the Chatham Phenix Bank. Mr. Kaufman said it was unlikely that any members of the St. Louis firm would be taken into the management of the bank to continue contact with the agencies.

The Compton Company, Mr. Kaufman said, was retiring from this branch of its business entirely and the deal did not involve any extension of Chatham Phenix control to the company.

BERLIN BANKS FORM $64,000,000 MERGER

Hundreds Thrown Out of Work by Union of Deutsche and Disconto Gesellschaft.

PROTESTS BY CLERKS' UNION

Two Other Large Institutions in German Capital Expected to Join In "Anti-Trust" Move.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—At general meetings today the shareholders of the Deutsche Bank and the Disconto Gesellschaft voted in favor of the $64,000,000 merger of the institutions, an agreement for which was signed last September. The new combination will be called the Dedi Bank.

Bank circles say it is only a question of time when two other leading banks, the Dresdner Bank and the Darmstaedter and National Bank, will follow the example of these banks and form an "anti-trust."

The importance of the meeting of the Disconto Gesellschaft was reflected in the large number of personages in industry and commerce who came from all parts of Germany to attend it. Director Wassermann said the main purpose of the merger was to reduce expenses and thereby increase profits.

As a result of the consolidation 156 directors and 167 subdirectors, besides several thousand minor bank clerks, will be discharged. The announcement of this called representatives of the Bank Clerks Union to the fore, and Max Fuerstenberg questioned Director Wassermann's assertion that the merger would be beneficial to Germany's entire economic situation. It was, he asserted, made only in the interests of private capital. Karl Marx, president of the radical bank clerks' organization, proposed that the number of directors of the new bank be reduced to eight, whose income should be limited to $30,000 annually.

The merger was carried by a vote of 756,728 against 2,183.

At a similar meeting held by the Disconto Bank, an American shareholder, Mr. Lamark, gave the directors valuable information, for which Dr. Mosler thanked him in the name of the directors.

NEW YORK BANKERS IN CUBA

400 on Two-Day Visit Received by Havana Financiers.

HAVANA, Oct. 29 (AP).—More than 400 New York bankers, members of the Savings Banks Association of New York City, arrived today aboard the Holland-America liner Volendam for a two-day visit in Havana.

Received by representatives of the Havana Clearing House and leading banks of the city and special agents of the Cuban Government, who extended customs and immigration courtesies, the visitors were immediately taken on a tour of the city and its environs. Returning shortly before noon; they were the recipients of an informal reception by the Havana Clearing House.

The bankers will sail for New York on Thursday aboard the Volendam, which they chartered for the Havana cruise.

Amsterdam Steadier After Drop.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Oct. 29 (AP).—After a weak opening, the market steadied this afternoon, although prices were well below those of yesterday. American stocks, mostly steels and Anaconda Copper, were generally much weaker. Mining shares remained very weak. Royal Dutch recovered from 375 to 383.

Profit from Experience

REGRETTABLE as your experience may have been in the last few days, it points to the dangers of striving for easy money and quick profits - - it demonstrates unmistakably the folly of speculation as a basis for building one's fortune.

Our investment experience extends over many periods of expansion and depression. We have seen fortunes made and watched them melt away, and we believe that every security buyer whether of large or moderate means should place a percentage of his funds in guaranteed first mortgages where the yield is above the average and both principal and interest are guaranteed from the date of investment to the date of maturity.

Your funds invested in National Title Guaranty Company First Mortgages and Certificates . . . in amounts from $100 up . . . will return a larger income than is obtainable in any other investment of comparable safety . . . at the same time you will have the satisfaction of knowing that payment of both principal and interest is guaranteed.

Phone, write or call for full particulars immediately.

SIMPSON RETAINED IN CUBA CANE CASE

Appointment as Receiver Made Permanent—Terms of Settlement Opposed.

MANAGEMENT NOW ASSAILED

$25,000,000 in Debentures and New Common Stock Are Included in Reorganization Plan.

The appointment, on Oct. 1, of Colonel John R. Simpson as receiver in equity for the Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation was made permanent yesterday by Federal Judge Thomas D. Thacher. Elihu Root Jr. and the Irving Trust Company were named as co-receivers for the $100,000,000 corporation. Colonel Simpson was head of the company when it became involved in temporary difficulties. At that time it was said there were no charges of mismanagement or inefficiency.

Argument on the reorganization plan was heard later by Judge Thacher. This was opposed by Henry F. Cochran, attorney for preferred stockholders. Charles Shankroff, a minority common stockholder, charged that the corporation had been "mismanaged for thirteen years." He refused to endorse the plan.

The committee in charge of reorganization is headed by Charles Hayden of Hayden, Stone & Co., with Wilbur F. Cummings as attorney. Mr. Cummings said the plan was favored by holders of 86 per cent of the $25,000,000 of debentures due on Jan. 1 next and by holders of 88 per cent of the preferred stock, as well as by many common stockholders. Mr. Cummings argued that, with sufficient capital to tide it over until the marketing of the new sugar crop, the corporation would on that crop realize $7,000,000 or $8,000,000.

The reorganization plan provides for a funded debt of $25,000,00 expressed in new debenture bonds that the holders of the old bonds will share "dollar for dollar." Bondholders would receive also one share of the new common, no-par stock for each $100 of the old bonds.

Under the plan each holder of a share of the preferred stock would have the right to subscribe to 1½ shares of the new common at $5 a share. Preferred stockholders would get also an option on two shares of the new common at $20 and common stockholders would have the right to subscribe to new common at $7.50 a share, with option warrants similar to those for preferred stockholders.

Mr. Cochran argued that the company, under efficient management, could be pulled through its difficulties in about two years with raw sugar remaining at its level of 2½ cents a pound. Mr. Cummings replied that the company needed working capital to do anything. Mr. Cochran said the common stock was worthless.

The date for the continuation of the hearing will be set after Nov. 29, when certain acceptances will fall due.

STOCK LOAN MARKET ACTIVE

Reduction in Short Interest Has Little Effect—25 Issues Lend Flat.

Although it was plain that the short interest had been greatly reduced by covering in the last few days, the stock loan market was unusually active yesterday and more than twenty-five active issues were lending flat.

Premiums were being exacted on Gimbel preferred and Wheeling & Lake Erie, but this was not unusual. Among the stocks lending flat were American Brown Boveri, American Woolen common and preferred, Armour B, National Bellas Hess, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Cuyamel Fruit, Devoe & Raynolds, Foundation, Lehigh Valley, Manhattan Electrical Supply, International Mercantile Marine preferred, National Lead, Pressed Steel Car, Real Silk Hosiery, Savage Arms, Sloss Sheffield, United States Rubber first preferred, Virginia-Carolina Chemical common and preferred and Western Union.

Consolidated Cigar Reports.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30 the Consolidated Cigar Corporation and subsidiary report a net profit of $2,345,054, after interest, depreciation and Federal taxes, equivalent, after requirements on prior preferred and preferred stocks, to $6.51 a share on 250,000 no-par common shares, against $2,629,183, or $7.63 a share, in the first nine months last year. For the quarter ended Sept. 30, the net totaled $899,796, after above charges, equal to $2.65 a share on common, against $986,680, or $2.99 a share, in the third quarter last year.

Two Starrett Concerns to Join.

The Starrett Corporation has contracted to acquire all outstanding capital stock of the Starrett Building Company of Chicago, according to an announcement yesterday by Colonel W. A. Starrett, president of the corporation. The statement reports that earnings for the six months ended Sept. 30 were at the rate of $3.50 a year on common stock.

Treasury Calls $22,733,200.

The United States Treasury has called for repayment of $6,582,400 by depositary institutions in the New York Federal Reserve district on Friday. This is 12½ per cent of the amounts remaining on deposit for the account of certificates of indebtedness issued dated Sept. 15. After this withdrawal there will remain on deposit in this district $46,076,900. For the entire country the amount called for repayment on Friday is $22,733,200.

Will Redeem $68,000 Bonds.

The National City Bank, as trustee under the trust indentures securing the Saxon State Mortgage Institution 6½ per cent and 7 per cent collateral sinking fund guaranteed gold bonds, due Dec. 1, 1946 and 1945, respectively, has issued notice that $30,000 of the 6½ per cent bonds and $38,000 of the 7 per cent bonds have been selected for redemption at par on Dec. 1, 1929.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS AND OTHERS LOWER

High-Grade Issues Depressed by Selling Attributed to Calls for Margins.

Reflection of the weakness in the stock market was found in declines suffered by the higher grades of issues in the bond market on the Stock Exchange yesterday. Convertible bonds were the leaders in the recession, but the sharp selling of gilt-edge securities was explained on the ground that owners were sacrificing their holdings to appease the demands for margins on their stocks.

The easing of money rates yesterday was expected to improve the demand for bonds, especially in the gilt-edge class, but this seemed to have no influence.

The heavy trading in the convertible issues caused high records for volume to be reached. Among the securities in this class which suffered the worst decline were American Telephone and Telegraph 4½s, which at one time were 35 points below the close of the preceding day, but before the session ended a part of this loss was recovered. International Telephone and Telegraph 4½s were off 12½ points, and Public Service of New Jersey 4½s lost 2½ points.

The best grade rail mortgage bonds dropped 1 to 2 points. United States Government issues were irregularly lower.

Bonds of German Steel Works Called

Dillon, Read & Co., fiscal agents for the United Steel Works Corporation of Germany, announced yesterday the calling of $300,000 of the company's twenty-five-year 6½ per cent bonds, series A, and $100,000 series C bonds of the same issue by lot for redemption on Dec. 1 at par. Payment is to be made at the office of Dillon, Read & Co. here or at that of J. Henry Schroder & Co., in London.

CHINA IS DEVELOPING MOTOR AND AIR TRAVEL

Commercial Attache Tells Hoover American Trade Is Gaining There Satisfactorily.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—American trade with China is developing at a satisfactory rate, despite that country's internal disturbances, Julean Arnold, Commercial Attaché at Peiping, said today, after a conference with President Hoover at the White House. Mr. Arnold said he had informed the President of the general conditions in China.

Railway development is apparently being hurdled for the time being, he said, while the country is building up its system of roads, motor transportation lines and airways.

Szechuen Province, which he called the "Texas of China," although possessing not a single mile of railway, is constructing motor roads and looking forward to airplane transportation to all sections of the country.

The American population in China, numbering 11,000, has increased fivefold in the last quarter century, Mr. Arnold said, while American trade with China has developed to a greater extent than the remainder of China's foreign trade. He estimated the total of American trade in 1928 at $400,000,000.

Mr. Arnold said that American investments in China total some $200,000,000, exclusive of about $75,000,000 in missionary and non-commercial investments, and in addition to between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 in secured and unsecured obligations against the Chinese Government held by Americans.

SEES HOLIDAY TRADE GOOD DESPITE CRASH

OTHERS ARE RETICENT

Nemerov Believes That Average Consumer Is Financially Better Off Than Year Ago.

Characterizing the developments in the stock market as hysteria, Philip Le Boutillier, president of Best & Co., took an optimistic view yesterday of the outlook for retail sales during the Christmas holiday period.

"Best & Co.'s sales increase during October," he said, "will exceed 15 per cent. "We expect our Christmas season to show a substantial increase over last year in both volume and profits."

"When the present hysteria has passed, and it always does," Mr. Le Boutellier continued, "the United States will reappear as the most progressive, the most energetic and richest nation in the world. Its prosperity has not been destroyed. The development of its enormous resources and the filling of the needs of its 110,000,000 people will proceed as before. The basic fundamentals are sound, as will soon be demonstrated. We note no marked expansion of inventories or forward ordering."

David Nemerov, vice president of Russek's Fifth Avenue, Inc., said he believed that despite the crash in stocks, the average consumer was better off financially than a year ago. "On that premise," he went on, "the decline will not materially affect the holiday business. It is problematical that even high-priced merchandise will be greatly affected. Purchasing power continues good and it is our expectation that holiday sales will forge ahead of last year."

While declining to be quoted, some executives foresaw the security decline as certain to affect the retail outlook. To some extent, it was said, an adverse effect on the sale of certain merchandise of the luxury and semi-luxury type already has been noted. According to one executive, present conditions will prove a severe test of instalment selling.

CRUISES UNHURT BY SLUMP.

Steamship Agents Find No Falling Off Yet in Bookings.

The slump in stock market values has not yet discouraged thousands planning to spend the Winter months on ninety cruises planned to various parts of the world, according to officials of steamship companies and tourist agencies.

Twenty passengers, an unusually large number for a single day, were booked yesterday for the world cruise of the Red Star liner Belgenland, which will start in December. Although the average price of accommodation for this 133-day cruise is $4,000, these twenty bookings included one of a suite at $27,000 and another at $15,000.

J. Mahool, passenger traffic manager of the International Mercantile Marine Company, which operates the White Star, Red Star and Atlantic Transport Lines in the North Atlantic, said that Transatlantic bookings in general are ahead of last year.

Malcolm LaTrade, manager of the booking department of Cook's Tours, reported that bookings were up to standard.

SHOW BUSINESS HOLDS UP.

Theatre Agencies Report Demand for Comedies and Musical Plays.

To the surprise of theatre managers, who believed that the Wall Street break would seriously affect patronage, last night's business in the Broadway playhouses was, if anything, better than usual. The successful attractions sold out and even the less popular shows held their own and were not greatly affected by the market slump.

At the ticket agencies, however, business was reported to be considerably below normal. It was said that ticket buyers were expressing a preference for comedies and musical shows, and that the serious plays would suffer. At the largest cut-rate agency, it was pointed out that the week before election is always a bad one in the theatre and that, considering this, last night's sales were not far below average.

COTTON FUTURES OFF 17 TO 18 POINTS

PRICES IN SHARP RECOVERY

Trading on the Cotton Exchange continued yesterday to be overshadowed by the course of the stock market, and forced liquidation of between 50,000 and 75,000 bales caused a decline of about $1 a bale. The lowest levels of the day were reached soon after the opening call. Then the market met so large a quantity of buying orders for domestic and foreign mill account that a sharp recovery followed. Concentrated selling developed again in the last hour, leaving final quotations 17 to 18 points lower on the day.

Opening selling was the heaviest so far this month, 5,000 and 10,000 bale lots of December and May contracts being distributed, but, instead of attracting liquidation from other directions, the lower level brought in trade price fixing on an extensive scale.

According to the New York Cotton Exchange Service, world consumption for the first two months of the current season is estimated at approximately last year's figures. Though domestic mills used more cotton than last year, stoppage of Lancashire mills owing to the wage dispute reduced the European total. Reports from India indicate a yield 100,000 to 300,000 bales in excess of last year, making a total supply of Indian cotton about 250,000 bales more than last season and nearly 1,250,000 greater than two years ago.

Although some factors in the general business situation are not as favorable as they might be, the reports say, the conditions as a whole have indicated an improvement over the same period last year. In hardware the price revisions have been minor in character, and the credit situation remains satisfactory.

WHEAT HAS A RALLY BUT CLOSES LOWER

Prices Decline 6⅞ Cents on Early Selling, but Rise Rapidly Later.

MILLIONS OF BUSHELS SOLD

Wet Weather Brings Buying of Corn, Which Largely Offsets the Break in Wheat.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Liquidation by frightened holders was on in wheat at the opening today, with first sales showing as much as 6¾ cents under the finish of the previous day. The market developed a strong undertone almost immediately, with immense buying orders coming in from commission houses, foreigners, millers and holders of bids. After millions of bushels had changed hands values started upward with the highest figures of the day made toward the close with net losses of 1⅝ to 2¼ cents.

At no time during the day were prices as low as the inside figures of Thursday and values at the close were actually only a fraction under the finish of last Wednesday. It is known that flour sales in the last few days have been enormous but quantities cannot be obtained. The removal of hedges against flour sales have been an important factor in holding the market steady in the face of the demoralization which has prevailed in securities.

At times during the day it was possible to trade in a million bushels of wheat without affecting the price even ¼ cent, while at others small orders had a decided effect. A wild cheer was heard in the smoking room of the Exchange when a ticker flash said that United States Steel had rallied to 186, an in an instant wheat prices had jumped over 1 cent per bushel.

A house that acts for important foreign connections was a heavy buyer of wheat during the day, and there was also buying by the East and Northwest while the Minneapolis market showed more strength than Chicago, being off only 1½ cents at the last with mills taking futures on a large scale there.

There were intimations of a liberal export business in hard Winters and it was claimed that bids of 1 cent under December were made at the Gulf for No. 1 hard Winter, the best basis so far. One cargo was said to have been sold there during the day.

The Winnipeg wheat market closed 2¼ to 2⅝ cents lower with the pool reported as being on the buying side, while Buenos Aires was 1⅝ to 2¼ cents lower. Liverpool lost 2¼ to 2⅝ pence for the day, but the May delivery there was 8⅝ cents over Chicago at the time it closed, the largest premium in many weeks.

Primary arrivals of wheat today, 1,235,000 bushels; a week ago, 1,361,-000 bushels; last year, 1,883,000 bushels. Shipments, 819,000 bushels; week ago, 1,455,000 bushels; last year, 1,221,000.

Wet weather over the Corn Belt resulted in fair commission house buying which largely offset the effect of the break in wheat and the finish was ⅝ to ¾ cent lower, with values at the inside showing only 1⅛ cents under the finish of the previous day. Local weak on both sides of the market. Chasers were made for 200,000 bushels to Georgian Bay.

Primary receipts today, 568,000 bushels; week ago, 747,000 bushels; last year, 1,286,000 bushels. Shipments, 324,000 bushels; week ago, 377,000 bushels; last year, 877,000 bushels.

The oat market weakened early but rallied toward the last and finished ⅝ to ¾ cents lower. Rye was 1⅞ to 2¼ cents lower.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

Buyers in Market Declined.

Fewer buyers were registered in the market during the week ended yesterday when compared with the number listed for the preceding week. The total, however, still held over the number reported at the same period last year. For the week 913 buyers were listed, against 1,142 in the preceding week and 835 in the corresponding week a year ago, according to the lists published in THE TIMES. The number of buyers reported yesterday was 378, a drop under the number reported last Tuesday, when 443 were listed.

Pewter Ware Again in Demand.

Buyers of tableware and home novelties are showing a renewed interest in pewter, and orders for smoking sets, table pieces, vases and candle sticks have been heavy. The pewter vogue started over a year ago, but died out during the Spring and Summer of this year. Its return to popularity has proved a surprise to many in the trade. Pieces with conservative decorations and severely simple designs are selling best. Popular retail price ranges are from $5 to $10.

***

Black Heel Hose Coming Back.

The strong vogue for black in women's outer apparel and the prospect that it will hold throughout the season is bringing back to vogue black heel hosiery in such shades as sable, "dusky," and light gunmetal. With them there is an increasing call for black shoes and black-trimmed shoes. Hose with black heels were in considerable demand earlier in the year, but lost favor later when brown came so strongly to the fore. Brown hosiery still is paramount, but well-posted factors say that buying of this shade is now at its crest. From now on, it is contended, black heel stockings will be the market feature.

Floral Ornaments Well Ordered.

Floral ornaments are benefiting from the new styles, orders for both coat and dress flowers showing a gain over last year at this time, according to wholesalers here. In demand for evening wear are flowers of chiffon and transparent velvet. For wear with coats considerable interest has been shown in new types of pearlized gardenias and violets. For holiday selling wholesalers are featuring individual boxes of cluster flowers of a variety of types and colors. These are intended for wear with coats and are priced to retail from $9 cents up.

Coats to Show New Trimmings.

Many of the newer models of tweed coats, the continued popularity of which presages their being carried over into the Spring season, will be set off by novelties in belts, it was learned here yesterday. Unusual effects in leather belts will be used, as will belts of tweed fabric piped with leather and fastened with leather buckles. A development in newer coat models other than tweeds will be the increased use of button trimmings. These will include buttons of wood, crystal, imitation gems, bone and novelty compositions, as well as the cloth-covered type. Another prospective trimming development, both for coats and ensembles, is a much broader use of astrakhan fur in large shawl collars and big "melon" muffs.

Confident About Toy Outlook.

No serious decline in toy sales is expected during the holidays should any slump of proportions develop in retail sales because of the debacle in the stock market, according to opinions expressed yesterday. The budget of the average family, it was said, will make provision for toys even if other items have to be neglected. The possibility exists, however, that higher-priced toys may be somewhat affected. No cancellations of importance have as yet been noted. Retailers in many instances are now beginning to arrange their toy departments in holiday array to develop earlier consumer-buying than usual.

Popular Jewelry Not Affected.

Moderate and popular price jewelry and accessories stand to benefit from any decline in buying of the more expensive pieces, in the opinion of manufacturers of the former type. They said yesterday that they had noticed no reaction in their lines as yet and were confident that the holiday season would be satisfactory. Retailers are continuing to place an excellent volume of orders. One of the more noticeable things recently is the gain in the call for cigarette cases for women. These are being made in sizes to fit the handbag and yet contain from ten to fifteen cigarettes. The cases feature unbreakable colored enamel on sterling silver, with lighter to match. Silver plate models are also offered.

Reorders Heavy on Curtains.

Reorders on curtains of all materials have been plentiful during the last two weeks as stores prepare for an expected rush of business in the weeks before Thanksgiving. Lace curtains show a proportionately larger degree of action than the other types. Due to the popularity of the tailored edge in the latter, sales have been well in advance of the figures for last year. The heavy call for these styles has prompted the trade to feature them in Spring lines. It is believed that the vogue will be good for another year at least.

Jobbers' Group Not Dissolving.

Reports current in the local knit goods trade that the National Textile Distributors Corporation was about to dissolve were denied yesterday by an executive of the concern. The reports were that two members of the group, which acted as purchasing agent of hosiery, shirts and underwear for several prominent wholesale concerns in various parts of the country, had already withdrawn, and that four others were preparing to withdraw. All of the latter have been named as members of the United Dry Goods Corporation, a merger of the prominent dry goods houses that has been in the process of formation for some time.

Gray Goods Very Dull.

The sharp break in stocks yesterday was held responsible for the very limited business done in gray goods here. The volume was the smallest in some time. Small sales of near-by 38½-inch 60-48s and 44-40s were made in the printcloths at 6¾ and 4¾ cents, respectively. Sheetings were very quiet, with some business done in 36-inch 6.50s at 9¾ cents and in 36-inch 6.15s (40-square) at 5¾ cents. In the specialties some additional trading in eastern extras was done on the basis of 11¼ cents for 37½-inch 4.87s. Beyond that there was little worthy of comment.

LATEST DEALINGS IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

ELKINS WILL GIVES BROTHER $3,000,000

Son of Former Senator Also Bequeathed $1,000 Monthly to Friend of Family.

R. W. HILDRETH HAD $100,000

Trainer Divided Property Between Wife and Sister—Testament of Mrs. I. W. French Filed Here.

Disposing of an estate of more than $3,000,000 in three paragraphs, the will of Stephen B. Elkins of Washington, D. C., a son of the late United States Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, was filed in Surrogate's Court here yesterday. It directs the payment of $1,000 monthly for life to Mrs. E. I. Martin of Hollis, L. I., a close friend of the family for more than twenty-five years, and leaves the entire residue to a brother, David Elkins, also a former United States Senator, who now resides at 133 East Sixty-fourth Street.

As the testator was a resident of Washington, where he lived at 1,626 K Street, counsel for the estate said yesterday that the will, dated Jan. 28, 1926, will be probated there. The document was removed from Mr. Elkins's private safe in the Corn Exchange Safe Deposit Company here by permission of Surrogate O'Brien, who has consented to its probate in Washington.

Philip E. Doulin, attorney for the estate, said most of the assets are securities and coal mining property in West Virginia. The testator was president of the Elkins Coal and Coke Company.

Mr. Elkins, who was 52 years old, died on Oct. 20 in his apartment at 281 Park Avenue. After his father's death it was estimated that each of the children would inherit about $2,000,000.

C. M. Higgins Left $1,500,000.

An estate of $1,500,000 was left by Charles M. Higgins, drawing ink manufacturer of Brooklyn, it was disclosed yesterday when his will was filed in the Surrogate's Court in Brooklyn, leaving the bulk of his wealth to his wife and children.

Mr. Higgins died on Oct. 21 last. He was one of the founders of the Kings County Historical Society and was actively identified with several other organizations. He was the head of Charles M. Higgins & Co. of Brooklyn.

Mr. Higgins distributed an undetermined share to more than seventy-five employes and servants and left more than a dozen legacies to charities and churches of several denominations. Papers filed with his will gave the value of his estate as $700,000 in real estate and $800,000 in personal property.

The bequests to charity included $500 to the Friends' School, 101 Schermerhorn Street; $300 to the Little Sisters of the Poor, Sixteenth and Eighth Streets; $200 to the Church of St. Thomas Aquinas, Fourth Avenue and Ninth Street; $200 to St. Saviour's Church, Eighth Avenue and Sixth Street; $100 to the Church of St. Philip and St. James, St. James, L. I.; $2,000 to the Ethical Culture Society, and $100 to the Smithtown (L. I.) Library.

Will of Mrs. I. W. French Filed.

A legacy of $5,000 contingent upon the date of her death is contained in the will of Mrs. Ida Wynne French, daughter of theiate Robert J. Wynne, Postmaster General in President Roosevelt's Cabinet, and wife of the late Major Hugh R. French of the British Army, which was offered for probate here yesterday. The unusual bequest was made to the late Max Darowski of London, a friend, and was to be paid, the testament stated, only if Mrs. French died prior to Jan. 1, 1930. If she had died after that date, the bequest was to be invalidated. The will was executed on Feb. 14, 1928.

Counsel for the estate explained yesterday that the bequest was made in contemplation of "a contractual obligation which Mr. Darewski did not fulfill." In view of this, it was said, Mr. Darewski's heirs are not expected to claim the legacy, which was to have had priority over any other bequests in the will.

Mrs. French, who died on Feb. 10 last, divided the rest of her estate of undetermined value among her sister, Mrs. Ruth Everard of 14 East Sixteenth Street, and two brothers, Charles J. and John S. Wynne, both of Washington. All three are socially prominent in Washington, as was the testatrix.

C. E. Goodwin Left Only $500.

Charles Emery Goodwin, member of the old Seventy-first Regiment and veteran of the World War, who died last Oct. 10, left an estate of only $500, it was disclosed yesterday when his will was filed for probate. A brother, Richard Goodwin of 420 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, is the sole legatee. The testator lived at 10 Fifth Avenue.

The will of Samuel W. Hildreth, racing trainer, was filed for probate before Surrogate Daniel Noble of Jamaica, Queens, yesterday. Mr. Hildreth left an estate consisting of $50,000 personal property and $50,000 in real estate, according to the will.

A trust of $50,000 is to be administered by the Central Union Trust Company of Manhattan for Mrs. Alice Henry, a sister, of Pine Lawn, Mo. The widow is the residuary legatee. Mr. Hildreth died at sea Sept. 14.

GUGGENHEIMER ESTATE VALUED AT $1,445,724

Mrs. Eliza Guggenheimer, widow of H. Randolph Guggenheimer, of the law firm of Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall, left an estate appraised yesterday at $1,634,302 gross and $1,1445,724 net. The sum of $1,043,214 was in mortgages, including a second mortgage for $1,100,000 on the property at 715-727 Broadway, which had been owned by Mrs. Guggenheimer, but which was valued at only $880,000 because it is now being foreclosed due to the inability of the owner to pay interest since the removal from that neighborhood of the clothing industry.

Mrs. Guggenheimer, who died Dec. 9, 1927, gave $480,574 each to her sons, Harry R. and Charles S. Guggenheimer, and to her daughter, Mrs. Adele G. Lewisohn. She gave $2,500 to her maid, Lena Reiffel, and $250 each to six other servants. She owned stocks worth $293,259, which included 278 shares of the Chemical National Bank worth $264,795.

Directs Holding of Paper Marks.

An appraisal filed yesterday by the estate of Hector H. Tyndale, for years a member of the law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, who died Feb. 24, 1928, at the age of 73 years, shows that his net estate of $725,249 will be divided equally among the Lenox Hill Hospital, the New York Association for the Blind, the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, the Charity Organization Society, and the Children's Aid Society, upon the death of nephews, nieces and more distant relatives who receive the income.

The will contained a provision disclosing Mr. Tyndale's faith that the German paper marks issued during the World War will eventually pay something. "In the belief that the German people will ultimately require the redemption of all outstanding German paper marks issued during the World War at reasonable prices," said the will, "I direct my executor to continue to hold the German paper marks which may belong to me at the time of my death, amounting to a hundred and forty trillion marks, according to the American method of reckoning, until said marks can be sold at about the cost thereof to me, about $6,000." The will was made in June, 1926.

Frederick C. Bangs, counsel for the estate, reported that Mr. Tyndale held only 154,000,000 paper marks when he died, and said that they were valueless. Mr. Tyndale's will directed that his body be cremated and his ashes "strewn upon the surface or under the surface of clean ground in the open country, or on the open sea."

The property has been in the Wing family, piano manufacturers, for many years, having been acquired by the selling interests from William Waldorf Astor under a lease. The loft was built by the Wing estate, which later purchased the fee to the land.

Another leading deal yesterday emphasized the scattered nature of trading in Manhattan. NEW GRAIN BODY IS INCORPORATED

Files Articles in Delaware With $10,000,000 Capital and Will Handle 500,000,000 Bushels.

TO BE MEDIUM FOR LOANS

Farm Board Predicts It Will Eliminate Waste and Stabilize the Markets.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The National Farmers' Grain Corporation, a central marketing agency for the grain cooperatives of the United States, came into existence today when articles of incorporation were filed in Wilmington, Del. The corporation, capitalized at $10,000,000, will handle annually a volume in excess of 500,000,000 bushels of grains.

The corporation was set up under the guidance of the Federal Farm Board and may buy the grain or handle it on a brokerage basis. It will undertake to assist and strengthen its member associations, and where duplication of effort or wasteful practices exist it will seek to eliminate such conditions as soon as practicable.

The headquarters of the corporation are in Chicago.

"This," the Federal Farm Board said today, "is the first national commodity cooperative sales association to be set up under the guidance of the Federal Farm Board. Similar organizations for the wool and mohair and live stock cooperatives are in the process of formation and will be completed at an early date.

"The corporation is organized on a strictly cooperative basis which will make use, to the greatest extent possible, of all existing farmer-owned grain-marketing facilities. General and active management of the corporation will be in the hands of a general manager, who, the by-laws provide, 'shall be a person acceptable to the said Federal Farm Board.'

"This corporation provides a medium through which the Federal Farm Board may make loans to cooperative grain-marketing associations, both for current marketing purposes and for the acquirement of physical facilities.

"Such an organization, if properly managed and properly supported by the farmer-owned grain-marketing associations, should not only reduce local and terminal marketing costs and eliminate much waste in marketing but also should exert a strong influence toward greater market-price stabilization.

"The plan which has been provided is the result of conscientious effort on the part of a committee representing all types of existing farmer-owned grain marketing agencies.

"It provides a means whereby the grain producers may help themselves through their own efforts rather than by receiving what might be termed a direct 'dole' out of public funds."

No patronage dividends will be distributed until the capital and surplus total $20,000,000, while dividends on all stocks will be limited to 8 per cent.

Stock may be subscribed for only by farmer elevator associations, farmer-owned grain sales agencies and growers' grain pools upon a minimum basis of one $100 share for each 2,000 bushels of grain handled by the association.

Stock can be paid for in full or on terms. If purchased on terms, 10 per cent must be paid down, the balance to be secured by five notes of equal amounts, one of which is payable annually.

The directorate will consist of nineteen members, seven of whom will be selected by the farmers' elevator associations, five by the farmer-owned grain sales agencies, five by the growers' grain pools and one each by the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange and the Patrons of Husbandry.

S. J. Cottington of Stanhope, Iowa, is president; C. E. Huff of Salina, Kan., is vice president, and L. E. Webb of Dodge City Kan., is secretary and treasurer of the association.

Passaic Realty Man Accused of Embezzlement by New York Dentist.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Oct. 29.—Warrants for the arrest of Saul E. Scher, lawyer and real estate man, of 102 Pennington Avenue, this city, were issued by Justice of Peace Samuel Bernstein today, following a complaint by Dr. Jacob S. Kalman, New York dentist, that Scher embezzled $40,000 from him. The money, Dr. Kalman swore, was entrusted to Scher for investment on the stock market. He further charged that the Passaic dealer had used it for other purposes.

Friends of Scher, who has been absent two weeks, say he is on his way to Europe.

SEPTEMBER SALES LARGER THIS YEAR

Federal Reserve Agent Reports Moderate Gain Over 1928 by Stores in This District.

Sales of reporting wholesale firms, chain store systems and department stores in this district showed moderate advances over the figures for a year ago during September, according to the monthly review of credit and business conditions made by the Federal Reserve agent at New York.

"The September sales of wholesale firms in this district," the review reads, "showed a 4 per cent increase over a year ago, the smallest since March. The grocery, drug, stationery and paper firms continued to report increases in sales over last year, and dealers in shoes and diamonds also reported increases, following decreases in August. Sales of wholesale jewelry houses showed the largest increase in many months. The Silk Association also reported a substantial increase in quantity sales of silk goods over those of a year ago.

"According to figures reported by the National Machine Tool Builders' Association there was a 9 per cent decrease in machine tool orders as compared with the very large volume of September, 1928, the first decrease in nearly two years. There were decreases also in sales of hardware and cotton goods.

"Wholesale dealers' stocks of groceries, drugs and silk goods remained larger than last year, but stocks of cotton goods, shoes, hardware and diamonds and jewelry declined. September collections averaged somewhat better than last year.

"The total September sales of leading department stores in this district were over 5 per cent larger than a year previous, but after allowance for the fact that there was one more selling day than in September, 1928, in the metropolitan district and a half day more in other cities, it appears that average daily sales were about 2 per cent larger than last year. Sales of New York City and Newark stores showed substantial increases over September, 1928, but department store business in other localities was very irregular. The large apparel stores reported about the same average increase as the department stores.

"Stocks of merchandise on hand in department stores continued somewhat larger than last year, but the average rate of stock turnover showed little change. The percentage of collections during September of charge accounts outstanding at the end of August was noticeably larger this year than in 1928.

"Reporting chain store systems in September showed the smallest increase in sales for any month since April, 1928. Grocery, drug and variety store organizations reported moderately large increases in sales, but ten-cent store sales showed little change, while candy chains showed a slight decrease in sales and shoe chains showed a considerable decline following substantial increases in previous months. Sales per store were generally smaller than a year ago, except in grocery chains."

ROOSEVELT AIDS SEAMEN.

Backs $1,500,000 Campaign of Church Institute Here.

Governor Roosevelt endorsed the work of the Seamen's Church Institute, which is now trying to raise by public subscription the balance of a $1,500,000 debt, in a letter made public yesterday. Governor Roosevelt, who is a vice president of the institute, said:

"It makes me very happy to learn of the continued progress which the Seamen's Church Institute of New York is making in the providing of more and better accommodations for seamen in the port of New York.

"When I look back twenty years it seems almost that the impossible has been accomplished in the providing of the splendid building and the extension of the work of service. I know, however, that our goal is not yet reached, and I hope that the coming year will see the completion of our plans."

The fund which is sought will be used to pay for a new thirteen-story annex, which has been built this year, and which is the shore home of thousands of members of the American merchant marine.

JERSEY PORT SUIT TO I. C. C. TOMORROW

Luncheon to Mark Opening of State Fight to End Free Lighterage.

CAMPAIGN ONE YEAR OLD

Details of State Plea Will Be Revealed to Business Groups at Meeting in Newark.

New Jersey will apply for the elimination of free lighterage in the port of New York in a complaint to be filed tomorrow with the Interstate Commerce Commission. In celebration of the action a luncheon meeting will be held tomorrow at noon at the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark by several hundred officials of New Jersey cities and leaders of industry in the State will be present.

The campaign to bring about a readjustment of freight transportation in the harbor by the addition of a fee for the lighterage of freight from the rail ends in New Jersey to consignees in various parts of the harbor was begun one year ago tomorrow. An organization known as the New York-New Jersey Business Associates was created, with Norman F. Titus as general manager and J. Spencer Smith, president of the New Jersey State Board of Commerce and Navigation, as executive head.

The organization carried on a campaign which brought Governor Larson and Attorney General Stevens into the fight. Willard J. Hamilton, president of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce, will preside at tomorrow's luncheon, and the speakers will be Mr. Titus and Deputy Attorney General J. Raymond Tiffany, who will participate in the lighterage case before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

RULES OUT FEAR IN CHILD TRAINING

Mrs. S. M. Gruenberg Declares That Punishment Must Be Replaced by Psychology.

INFANT REASON DISCUSSED

Dr. J. E. Anderson Tells Child Study Group It Differs From Adult Processes Only in Complexity.

New methods of rearing children, utilizing reason and psychology rather than punishment, were discussed yesterday at the Manhattan Conference of the Child Study Association of America at the Pennsylvania. The need for education of parents as well as of children was stressed by speakers.

Holding that both parents and children were more greatly influenced today than formerly by matters outside the family, Mrs. Sidonie M. Gruenberg, director of the association, declared:

"One of the first things that parents seem to need is realization that the world is actually changing, that new conditions impose new objectives upon our efforts, and that new knowledge imposes responsibility for using a better technique.

"We must learn that children need to be trained not for obedience but through obedience, that obedience serves merely as a useful instrument of control by means of which those responsible for guiding the child's development lead him to formulate and obey his own rules of life. We must learn to guide the child not through fear of punishment but by the use of techniques that enable him to assume responsibilities without being overawed, to assert himself without overriding others, to serve without truculence or condescension, to enjoy life without apologizing for it."

Dr. John E. Anderson, director of the Institute of Child Welfare of the University of Minnesota, declared that infant and adult reasoning processes differed only in complexity, and urged that children be taught to speak correctly while very young, rather than have to use time later on learning correct English.

The "spirit of cooperation" in children is not affected by their age, intelligence, physical condition or food, according to Dr. Goodwin B. Watson, Associate Professor of Education at Teachers College, who said he had made a two-year study of the subject. A child's standard of conduct, he said, was most greatly influenced by schoolroom associates. Children studying under modern methods were more trustworthy, he declared, than those trained in the public schools. He urged adequate education in sex.

Other speakers were Dr. Lydia Roberts, Associate Professor of Home Economics at the University of Chicago; Mrs. Cecile Pilpel, director of study groups of the association, and Leroy Bowman, secretary of the City Recreation Committee.

At an evening session Dr. Malson E. Kenworthy, director of the mental hygiene department of the New York School of Social Work, declared that better knowledge by the parents of the phychological factors in child rearing would "save 90 per cent of the neurotic manifestations in the children in later life." Children who receive excessive attention from their parents become dependent upon others throughout life, she said. Other speakers were Dr. C. M. Hincks of Toronto, medical director of the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, and Dr. Lawson G. Lowery, director of the Institute for Child Guidance here.

Travelers' Checks Reduced To Size of New Currency

A new form of traveler's check designed to embody the latest improvements in engraving and of a size reduced to that of the new currency has been adopted by the American Bankers Association and the Bankers Trust Company, its agent in issuing the checks. The change was authorized at the meeting of the association in San Francisco last month. The new check is engraved on paper chemically treated to prevent alteration, containing colored discs and tinted with a process hitherto used on foreign currencies.

An initial order for 10,000,000 of the new checks has been placed with the American Bank Note Company. The engraving employs ten processes in six different colors and will take four months. They will be distributed to 10,000 issuing banks here and 1,000 abroad.

'MILLER DAY' TOMORROW.

Forget-Me-Not, His Emblem, Chosen to Call Attention to Record.

The forget-me-not, emblem of Julius Miller, candidate for re-election as Borough President of Manhattan on the Democratic ticket, is expected to be in evidence during the "Miller Day" drive tomorrow, when 25,000 men and women distribute 2,000,000 cards, each with a spray of forget-me-not pinned to Mr. Miller's picture. The forget-me-not was chosen as the Miller emblem as a reminder of the Borough President's record in initiating and putting through many important public improvements.

There will be "Miller Day" parades throughout the borough. In the evening Mr. Miller will speak at the Osceola Club, the Democratic club of the Fifteenth Assembly District, in which Mr. Miller has his home.

Welfare Workers Give Tea.

Presidents of the 157 affiliated organizations of the Federation of Jewish Women's Organizations were the guests of honor at a reception and tea yesterday afternoon given by the board of directors at 12 East Eighty-sixth Street.—Mrs. David H. Goldfarb, president of the Federation, was hostess, assisted by officers and committee chairmen.

ROUTS ARMED BURGLAR.

Maplewood Man Wrests Pistol From Thief, Who Then Flees.

Special to The New York Times.

MAPLEWOOD, N. J., Oct. 29.—Faced by an armed burglar in his home last night, William F. Pridham, 58 years old, 28 Suffolk Avenue, ignored the threats of the intruder that he would shoot, wrested the pistol from him and fired three shots as the burglar plunged through a window and escaped in the dark.

Police found that the burglar had gained entrance by breaking the glass in the rear door and turning the key on the inside.

Mr. Pridham found the man in the house when he returned from an automobile ride and grappled with him. It was found later that three rooms had been ransacked.

This simple Frigidaire equipment makes your ice-box an automatic refrigerator. And it pays for itself with the money it saves.

SAVE MONEY make your ice-box a Frigidaire

Do you know that the ice-box you have right now, can be converted into Frigidaire? And once the change is made your refrigeration worries are over. • • • You have no more ice to buy. You have no more spoiled foods to be thrown away. You can buy in larger quantities at lower prices. And in these three ways you can soon save more than enough to pay for your equipment. • • • The Frigidaire "Frost-coil" goes in the ice compartment of your refrigerator. The sturdy Frigidaire compressor can be placed wherever convenient, and it uses surprisingly little current.

Yet it is capable of developing reserve refrigerating power... power that is always there when you want it... power that is made instantly available by the "Frigidaire Cold Control" which is one of the latest developments of Frigidaire and General Motors engineers. It gives you six different freezing speeds under control. • • • If you are considering electrical refrigeration come in to any one of our conveniently located showrooms, and let us explain how easily and economically you can convert your present ice-box into a Frigidaire.
